PROTEST PARTITION

Ten Persons Die, Scores Hurt In Algerian Rioting

ALGIERS (AP) — Militant Algerian nationalists raised their green and white rebel flag and clashed with French police Saturday in bloody street rioting here and in two other Algerian towns.

The wild fighting appeared to be a prelude to a campaign against partition of Algeria.

French officials said 10 persons were killed and 71 wounded in Algiers, at nearby Blida and in the suburb of Baraki.

The casualties included five Moslems dead, and 40 persons injured in Algiers. The 40 wounded included 25 Moslems and 15 French riot troopers.

VIOLENCE ERUPTS

Flag-waving Moslem nationalist youths staged a series of demonstrations—which quickly erupted into violence—to protest any partition of Algeria between the wealthy and largely European urban areas and the arid, largely Moslem, hinterland. They also were protesting any split of the Sahara from Algeria.

The rioting raged through the morning but by midday police had generally restored order. Two similar but minor demonstrations occurred here in the afternoon, and in the suburb of Bouzareah Saturday night.

A spokesman for the Rebel National Liberation Front (FLN) in Tunis condemned the French police for the manner in which the demonstrations were handled.

"The reaction of French authorities has been, as always, violence and gunfire against unarmed civilians," said the FLN spokesman. "The number of Algerian victims exceeds by far the cynical official totals published by the French administration."

The FLN spokesman called for a massive demonstration on Wednesday, July 5, against partition. July 5 is the anniversary of the French occupation of Algiers in 1830.

Word-of-mouth orders and tracts from the Rebel National Liberation Front (FLN) circulated Friday night, calling for a general strike by the Moslems.

The strike paralyzed the sprawling port and closed Moslem shops in the teeming Casbah and in Moslem quarters on the edge of the city.

State Gains Year To Act On Welfare

Congress Rider Extends Time On Revision Of Law

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Governor Jimmie H. Davis and the 1962 legislature once again will have to decide what to do about a new state law cracking down on dollar support of illegitimate children.

Of the 22,500 children—mostly Negroes—originally dropped from the rolls last year, wealfare officers said Saturday all but about 4,500 have been restored.

MAY REVISE LAW

The state may have to revise that law next year, if it wants to continue receiving millions in federal aid for the children's program.

Because of a new rider attached to President Kennedy's recent social security legislature, Louisiana gained a year's time before it will have to act.

Until the rider was adopted, a federal ruling held that any state failing to alter its suitable home law after July 1 this year would lose federal funds supporting the Aid to Dependent Children (ADC) program.

State welfare officials said the rider will hold up the effect of the federal ruling until Sept. 1, 1962.

The original ruling, under the Eisenhower administration, threatened to hold back federal aid funds in any state with suitable homes laws if they did not change them to comply with federal regulations.

In Louisiana, welfare officials said, the ADC program supporting 70,328 children now, requires about $25 million, of which approximately $20 million is in federal funds.

Welfare officials said while the so-called Fleming ruling has been postponed until September, 1962, the new legislation with the rider may have had the effect of confirming in the new administration the preious federal ruling on the question.

Louisiana drew critical fire as far away as England, after adop-

British Land War Forces In Sheikdom

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

British soldiers, tanks and planes poured into oil-rich Kuwait Saturday to bolster the Persian Gulf sheikdom's stand against threatened annexation by Iraq.

The show of force, endorsed by the United States, came as British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan urged Iraqi Premier Abdel Karim Kassem to avoid aggressive action over the former British protectorate.

CALLS MEETING

At U.N. headquarters in New York, Security Council President Leopoldo Benites of Ecuador called an urgent council meeting for 11:30 a.m. Sunday to take up Kuwait's complaint that Iraq is threatening its independence.

There were reports that Iraqi troops were massing along the Kuwait border to put teeth into Kassem's claim that the sheikdom is Iraq's southern province.

But in Baghdad, the Iraqi radio said the reports of troop movements were baseless. The state-owned radio said they were "circulated by foreign agencies so imperialist quarters can fish in troubled waters."

Along with British forces, help was on the way for Kuwait's ruler — Sheik Sir Abdullah as-Salim as-Sabah — from Saud Arabia. The government radio in Kuwait said King Saud was reported to have dispatched Arabian troops to supplement the sheik's 2,000-man army and several thousand Bedouin tribesmen.

The British commando carrier, Bulwark, put ashore 14 tanks and 750 troops, most of them marine commandos. A dozen Hunter jets also arrived. Two frigates accompanied the 22,000-ton Bulwark. Canberra jet bombers were dispatched to the Persian Gulf area.

Macmillan expressed hope the British forces would never need

Cohen Gets Fine, Term Of 15 Years

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Mickey Cohen, a former mobster, was sentenced to 15 years in prison Saturday and fined $30,000 for federal income-tax evasion.

The onetime boss of West Coast bookies could have gotten up to 32 years in prison and a $65,000 fine.

Cohen, 47, was convicted Saturday by a seven-man, five-woman federal court jury. It acquitted him of five other counts.

The jury had deliberated 22½ hours before deciding. The trial lasted eight weeks, and witnesses included Jerry Lewis, Red Skelton, former welterweight champion Don Jordan, author Ben Hecht and stripteaser Candy Barr.

Cohen, 5-feet-5, dapper and chubby, clasped his hands and bowed his head when he heard the verdict.

Cohen later told newsmen, "They convicted me because I am Mickey Cohen. They thought they had to."

Prosecutors charged Cohen owed the government nearly $400,000—including about $310,000 in taxes, penalties and interest for 1945-50, for which Cohen was convicted 10 years ago.

The prosecution presented about 190 witnesses, who testified about Cohen's big spending, his $250 suits, $75 shoes, and the government argued all this was evidence of high income, hence taxable.

Monroe Mayor W. L. Howard, who is leading a Southern drive against federal aid excesses at home, was asked Saturday by the chairman of the National Democratic Party to support President Kennedy's foreign aid program.

NO RUBBER STAMP

"I want it understood that I'm not a left wing rubber - stamp Democrat," Howard said. "Apparently Mr. Bailey feels that so long as you are a Democratic public office holder that you automatically support any and every piece of legislation offered in the name of the Democratic party.

"Just to keep the record straight, I am neither a left-winger, liberal or national party Democrat. I am opposed to most of the things which the national Democratic Party advocates, and especially this foreign aid give-away program, and federal aid to education, along with many other programs sponsored by the national Democrats.

Rain Delays Beauty Show Competition

LAKE PROVIDENCE (Special) — The Lake Providence Miss Louisiana Pageant, interrupted by rain Saturday night, will resume today at 7 p.m. when the winners of the evening dress competition will be announced.

The 7 p.m. time is an hour earlier than planned, since the thundershowers shortened the Saturday night agenda.

After the rain stopped, the pageant crowd watched a parade of 28 state beauty contest winners, attired at first in evening dresses then in swim suits.

RAIN STARTS

The rain came as Miss Judith Ann Coday, reigning Miss Louisiana, was presenting a medly of songs. She finished her songs as the first drops fell, then retreated to the bleachers with the rest of the pageant.

Judges were trying to decide the evening dress competition winner when the rain started.

A 31-year-old Monroe man was dead on arrival at the St. Francis Hospital yesterday evening after being struck by a bolt of lightning while riding in his boat on the Ouachita River.

Roy Dancy of 2101 Jasmine St. died despite attempts of a companion to revive him by mouth-to-mouth resuscitation. Ouachita Parish Coroner Dr. John P. Burton said he died from accidental electrical shock.

According to deputies from the Ouachita Parish sheriff's department, the accident took place just north of the Monroe Boat Dock between 6 and 6:30 p.m.

TIED UP BOAT

Dancy, his wife and three children, had tied up their houseboat on Long John's Beach for the weekend, according to friends.

Late yesterday afternoon he left the houseboat in a 11-foot speedboat to pick up the R. E. Teagle family from Ruston who were slated to spend the holiday weekend with the Dancy's.

Deputies said that Dancy had

Woman Talked Out Of Crashing Plane

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — An attractive 22-year-old secretary, threatening suicide, took off from the municipal airport Saturday and spent a harrowing two hours in the air before her instructor talked her down.

"I'm going to crash this plane because they took my baby," instructor Doug Reeves quoted the woman, Mrs. Mildred Murphy, as saying as she flew to the south.

Reeves said the woman, a secretary for an exterminating company here, had six hours and 20 minutes of dual instruction over a period of a year.

She was to receive another lesson Saturday, he said, and asked him to get a pair of shoes from her car just before takeoff. "When I looked up, the plane was gone," he said.

Reeves notified Ed Jones, his boss at the Nashville Flying Service, who took off after the woman in another plane. George Wallace, pilot for Gov. Buford Ellington, was returning from a flight to Knoxville, heard on his radio what was happening, and joined in the search. Reeves went to the control tower.

Wallace recognized from the woman's description of the terrain that she was over Lewisburg, about 40 miles to the south. He and Jones guided her in and Reeves talked her down from the tower for a landing.

She passed out on reaching the ground and was rushed to a hospital, where she was given sedation and placed under observation.

Relatives, who were unaware that Mrs. Murphy was taking flying lessons, said she had left her 2-year-old son with a babysitter.

They said Mrs. Murphy and her husband are separated. It was not clear who she thought had taken her child.

New School Operation Is Planned

COLUMBIA (Special) — A site for a new consolidated Caldwell Parish high school will be recommended by a planning committee at a school board meeting here July 11.

The scheduled action follows a proposal by an evaluation team to combine the student bodies of high schools at Grayson, Kelly and Columbia. Combined enrollment at the schools is 628.

The committee will recommend to the board that a consolidated school be located at the foot of Columbia Hill in the Wiley Hollow area.

The committee was appointed by the school board. Superintendent of Schools Ted L. Johnston said the move is still in the planning stage, and, "It will be necessary to have an architect determine the overall cost as well as the costs of improving the existing school plants."

A survey report by the evaluation team said an enriched curriculum could be offered with a lower cost if the schools were consolidated.

If the board approves site of the school, the project will be taken before a citizens committee.

The planning committee is headed by Dr. E. L. Carroll. Other members are Tom Tingle, Ward 10; S. H. Smith, Ward Two; M. T. Gough, Ward Six and James Mott, Ward Eight.

Cloudburst Hits In Twin Cities

A sudden lightning-laced thunderstorm dumped an unofficial total of 1.70 inches of rain on the Twin Cities late Saturday and the forecast for today is clear to partly cloudy and perhaps more widely-scattered thundershowers.

The weatherman sees not much change in temperature Sunday, with the high ranging from 88-92 degrees.

High Friday temperature was 91. Early morning temperatures in the area dipped to a cool low of 67.

IN FORSYTHE PARK

July 4th Schedule Set

A spectacular fireworks demonstration, scheduled for 8 p.m. at Neville Stadium, will highlight the all-day Old-Fashioned Fourth of July Celebration this Tuesday, it was announced yesterday by Jaycee and Chamber of Commerce spokesmen.

A turnout as large as 10,000 people is expected for the Independence Day outing which will kick-off at 11 a.m. Tuesday morning in Forsythe Park with an official welcome by Monroe Mayor W. L. Howard.

Most Twin Cities businesses — both Monroe and West Monroe — will be open on the 3rd of July, Monday, but will observe the Independence Day holiday.

The Old-Fashioned Fourth, co-sponsored by both Monroe and West Monroe civic organizations, was designed to restore Fourth of July spirit to the flag - waving, fireworks exploding, holidays of years gone by.

11:00 a.m. Official welcome by Mayor Howard.

11:30 a.m. Horseshoe pitching and other games. Will continue until dark.

12:30 p.m. Judo exhibition featuring Capt. Allen Corbin of the Monroe Police Department.

2 p.m. Official Flag Raising Ceremony.

3:15 p.m. Barrel fight between the Monroe and West Monroe Fire Departments.

4:30 p.m. Husbands and wives softball games.

5:30 p.m. Tug of War between Monroe and West Monroe men.

8:00 p.m. Fireworks display, Neville stadium.

Spokesmen for the Old-Fashioned Fourth urged the public to bring picnic baskets and stay for the entire day.

Eight concession stands will be open in the park from 11 a.m. to 9:00 p.m.

Congress Rider Extends Time On Revision Of Law

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Governor Jimmie H. Davis and the 1962 legislature once again will have to decide what to do about a new state law cracking down on dollar support of illegitimate children.

Of the 22,500 children—mostly Negroes—originally dropped from the rolls last year, wealfare officers said Saturday all but about 4,500 have been restored.

IN FORSYTHE PARK

July 4th Schedule Set

A spectacular fireworks demonstration, scheduled for 8 p.m. at Neville Stadium, will highlight the all-day Old-Fashioned Fourth of July Celebration this Tuesday, it was announced yesterday by Jaycee and Chamber of Commerce spokesmen.

A turnout as large as 10,000 people is expected for the Independence Day outing which will kick-off at 11 a.m. Tuesday morning in Forsythe Park with an official welcome by Monroe Mayor W. L. Howard.

Most Twin Cities businesses — both Monroe and West Monroe — will be open on the 3rd of July, Monday, but will observe the Independence Day holiday.

The Old-Fashioned Fourth, co-sponsored by both Monroe and West Monroe civic organizations, was designed to restore Fourth of July spirit to the flag - waving, fireworks exploding, holidays of years gone by.

11:00 a.m. Official welcome by Mayor Howard.

11:30 a.m. Horseshoe pitching and other games. Will continue until dark.

12:30 p.m. Judo exhibition featuring Capt. Allen Corbin of the Monroe Police Department.

2 p.m. Official Flag Raising Ceremony.

3:15 p.m. Barrel fight between the Monroe and West Monroe Fire Departments.

4:30 p.m. Husbands and wives softball games.

5:30 p.m. Tug of War between Monroe and West Monroe men.

8:00 p.m. Fireworks display, Neville stadium.

Spokesmen for the Old-Fashioned Fourth urged the public to bring picnic baskets and stay for the entire day.

Eight concession stands will be open in the park from 11 a.m. to 9:00 p.m.

British Land War Forces In Sheikdom

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

British soldiers, tanks and planes poured into oil-rich Kuwait Saturday to bolster the Persian Gulf sheikdom's stand against threatened annexation by Iraq.

The show of force, endorsed by the United States, came as British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan urged Iraqi Premier Abdel Karim Kassem to avoid aggressive action over the former British protectorate.

CALLS MEETING

At U.N. headquarters in New York, Security Council President Leopoldo Benites of Ecuador called an urgent council meeting for 11:30 a.m. Sunday to take up Kuwait's complaint that Iraq is threatening its independence.

There were reports that Iraqi troops were massing along the Kuwait border to put teeth into Kassem's claim that the sheikdom is Iraq's southern province.

But in Baghdad, the Iraqi radio said the reports of troop movements were baseless. The state-owned radio said they were "circulated by foreign agencies so imperialist quarters can fish in troubled waters."

Along with British forces, help was on the way for Kuwait's ruler — Sheik Sir Abdullah as-Salim as-Sabah — from Saud Arabia. The government radio in Kuwait said King Saud was reported to have dispatched Arabian troops to supplement the sheik's 2,400-man army and several thousand Bedouin tribesmen.

The British commando carrier, Bulwark, put ashore 14 tanks and 750 troops, most of them marine commandos. A dozen Hunter jets also arrived. Two frigates accompanied the 22,000-ton Bulwark. Canberra jet bombers were dispatched to the Persian Gulf area.

Macmillan expressed hope the British forces would never need

Cohen Gets Fine, Term Of 15 Years

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Mickey Cohen, a former mobster, was sentenced to 15 years in prison Saturday and fined $30,000 for federal income-tax evasion.

The onetime boss of West Coast bookies could have gotten up to 32 years in prison and a $65,000 fine.

Cohen, 47, was convicted Saturday by a seven-man, five-woman federal court jury. It acquitted him of five other counts.

The jury had deliberated 22½ hours before deciding. The trial lasted eight weeks, and witnesses included Jerry Lewis, Red Skelton, former welterweight champion Don Jordan, author Ben Hecht and stripteaser Candy Barr.

Cohen, 5-feet-5, dapper and chubby, clasped his hands and bowed his head when he heard the verdict.

Cohen later told newsmen, "They convicted me because I am Mickey Cohen. They thought they had to."

Prosecutors charged Cohen owed the government nearly $400,000—including about $350,000 in taxes, penalties and interest for 1945-50, for which Cohen was convicted 10 years ago.

The prosecution presented about 190 witnesses, who testified about Cohen's big spending, his $250 suits, $75 shoes, and the government argued all this was evidence of high income, hence taxable.

dred strong, began streaming through the streets at midmorning, defiantly waving green and white rebel flags and shouting nationalist slogans.

Most of the Moslems were teenage youths. They were egged on by veiled Moslem women who sent up their traditional piercing war cry—"you-yu'yu'."

As the demonstrators moved toward outlying European areas of the city, helmeted soldiers and police cut them off. Riot squads hurled tear-gas grenades, charging with swinging sticks and at several points fired their guns. The Moslems replied with stones and clubs.

A rebel flag was run up over a small hospital. Nearby a city bus was commandeered by Moslems who attempted to ram it through police lines.

President Charles de Gaulle has agreed to the rebel demand for independence. But he has said—and he repeated it again Saturday—that unless guarantees could be worked out for peaceful association between France and Algeria, the country would be partitioned.

The one million-strong European minority and pro-French Moslems would be grouped in the major cities on the rich coastal plain.

The rebels long have resisted any such move.

formal move to take over, pending settlement of the struggle.

Several days ago, Funchess filed a suit challenging his removal after a board 6-5 vote rescinded what he claimed had been a board election to a four-year term in his post.

The board majority, which included the four recent appointees of Gov. Jimmie H. Davis, later directed that Funchess get out by Friday midnight.

Earlier this week, Funchess lost his initial move seeking an injunction against Lindsey replacing him immediately although the court didn't rule which was the legal occupant. That issue is still ahead.

Benton also administered an oath for a new four-year term. Both moves were designed to establish grounds for possession of the office in the face of legal skirmishes.

tion of its 1960 suitable homes law. It banned welfare for any mother who gave birth to an illegitimate offspring after receiving a welfare check.

It was made retroactive and the 22,500 children were cut off had established to the satisfaction of local welfare boards they were providing suitable homes.

This was tied by the legislature to another 1960 law making common law marriages illegal. Getting married legally was considered one proper way of establishing a suitable home.

But former U.S. Welfare Secretary Arthur Fleming had ruled a state could not deny assistance to a needy child because it was living in an unsuitable home, and then leave the child in that home.

Either state would have to put the child in a foster home, under the ruling, or face the loss of the federal support.

Famed U.S. Inventor Dies At Age Of 87

He had been bedridden for almost two years with bladder and heart trouble.

It made possible the development of radio broadcasting, television and radar. Transcontinental and transoceanic telephoning, sound movies and other electronic devices came into being. He made contributions to each, as well as to aircraft-guiding beams, wire transmission of pictures, cosmic-ray measurement and many other developments.

The inventor-scientist held more than 300 patents. He celebrated his 84th birthday by applying for a patent of a four-inch thick television set that can be hung on a wall like a picture.

A man of remarkable physical stamina, De Forest survived a serious bout with pneumonia in 1955 and a short-lived spell of minor heart trouble two years later.

Mayor Won't Aid Federal Program

There was no immediate explanation of why Howard was recipient of such a request, since he has been a strong advocate of easing federal aid programs.

Only last week the Louisiana Municipal Association gave full support to a proposal by Howard for the organization of a southern conference of mayors to speak out against federal aid to education, and other federal programs adversely affecting the south.

Howard said Bailey probably was following some set formula in sending out the telegrams, such as directing them to mayors of cities in certain population ranges.

"It is of utmost importance that we do everything possible to develop public understanding and acceptance of President Kennedy's foreign aid program. Request you use every available opportunity in addressing public gatherings, press interviews, etc., to support president's program and encourage your constituents to write, wire, and speak to their congressional representatives and senators. The program for international development is critical to the security of the United States, and peace of the world. Earnestly urge your all-out support during next few weeks."

Mayor Howard said he had been spurred into action by the telegram, but not in the way in which it suggested.

"In response to the telegram from the chairman of the national Democratic committee urging support for the foreign aid program," said Howard, "I felt it my duty to contact our congressmen and two senators.

"To me it's unbelieveable that the government of the United States would be pouring millions and even billions of dollars in the form of foreign aid into practically every nation around the globe.

"Many of these nations such as Poland and Yugoslavia are out and out communist nations and are part of the communist empire. And yet our leaders are foolish enough to give them American dollars. It is obvious from the facts that the foreign give-away program is a farce and an unnecessary drain on the American taxpayer.

"I have complied with his request with respect to my own personal feelings and now through medium of the press ask the general public to contact their congressman and both U. S. senators and express to them their opinions on this matter.

"Since this wire was received from the chairman of the Democratic national committee, it appears an all-out effort will be made to pass the total foreign aid program."

Mayor Howard pointed out that Fifth District Congressman Otto Passman of Monroe, is chairman of the House sub-committee on appropriations, and has been a long-time opponent of excessive foreign aid programs.

Howard said that in telephone conversations with mayors of cities in six other southern states, he inquired if they had received telegrams from Bailey. All of them said they had not.

He said this pointed to the possibility that the appeal for foreign aid program support was being directed in the district represented by Passman in an effort to bring pressure on him and members of his committee to go along with the administration.

"In view of this I want to urge the people of the Fifth District to uphold Passman in his stand on foreign aid," Howard concluded.

Death Rate For Holiday Is Alarming

By United Press International

The National Safety Council Saturday night feared that a record number of deaths might be set for a Fourth of July holiday or any summer holiday during this Independence Day period.

"The rate is alarming," said a council spokesman, "it threatens to break the highway fatality rate for any summer holiday."

A United Press International count at 10:30 p. m. EST, more than 28 hours after the Fourth of July holiday started at 6 p. m. Friday, showed 131 persons dead in traffic accidents.

NEVADA LEADS

Sparsely populated Nevada, usually low in traffic deaths, led the nation with 13. Eleven of these died Friday night when a speeding pickup truck, driving on the wrong side of a highway south of Las Vegas smashed into a station wagon and wiped out three generations of a vacationing California family.

In other states, California was second with 9, Texas, 6, and New York 6.

The National Safety Council had estimated 450 persons would die over the four-day holiday period. During a similar non-holiday period at this time of year, the council said, a total of 370 persons could be expected to die.

The council said by 6 p.m. Saturday, 75 persons would have died in traffic accidents during a non-holiday weekend.

At Saturday's killing pace, the council said, a new Independence Day holiday death record will go into the books.

The council reported that:

The death count was running ahead of last year's Fourth of July toll when 439 persons died. The 1960 holiday was a three-day weekend, as compared to this year's four days.

The extra day for holiday trips and motor carnage this year could mean the final death count will be closer to 500. The record for a July 4 holiday — and for all summer holidays — is the 491 total of the four-day 1950 July 4 weekend.

This year's death count was also running at close to double the rate of the last four-day July 4 holiday, in 1957, when 426 persons died in traffic.

Near-Record Heat Strikes In Britain

LONDON (AP)—Britain baked in a near-record heatwave Saturday with thermometers climbing into the nineties to register the nation's hottest day in 14 years.

Thousands were tempted out of their homes which are usually not air conditioned to head for the seashore—only to find themselves stationary and sizzling in mammoth traffic jams.

picked up Teagle, his wife and two children, and was enroute back up the river to the houseboat.

Teagle, in relating to deputies what happened, said there was a blinding flash at the front of the boat where he and Dancy were riding. It knocked Teagle momentarily unconscious.

He said that when he came to, Dancy was slumped over the steering wheel of the boat, and it was swaying from side to side.

Teagle reached over, turned off the ignition on the boat and pulled Dancy away from the steering wheel. He said he noticed that Dancy was burned and laid him down in the bottom of the boat. Teagle then applied mouth - to - mouth resuscitation.

Three men in a nearby boat, seeing what had happened, came alongside the Dancy craft and rendered Teagle aid in resuscitation.

They also lifted Dancy from his boat, transferring him into their boat. He was taken to Monroe Boat Dock where a Mulhearn ambulance rushed him to the St. Francis hospital.

Deputies traveled up the river to notify Dancy's family of the disaster and then brought Mrs. Dancy back to Monroe.

Funeral arrangements for the 34-year-old salesman were incomplete last night but will be under direction of Mulhearn's Funeral Home.

Survivors include his widow and three children — two boys, aged nine and seven, and one girl, aged four.

Teagle was kept in the hospital overnight while tests were being run. His wife and two children escaped harm in the incident.

At the first sign of lightning and thunder, the river should be immediately vacated in order to avoid a re-occurrence of this sort of disaster, Grant stressed.

to fight. "I still trust that the threats against Kuwait are no more than words and that the government of Iraq will refrain from aggressive action," Macmillan said in a speech at Calne in West England.

In Washington the State Department noted that in granting Kuwait full independence recently, Britain had promised to go to the assistance of the ruler when requested.

"The ruler of Kuwait has now asked for assistance and the British government has moved to fulfill its commitment," the State Department said. "The United States government believes the United Kingdom has acted quite appropriately. . ."

The department said the U.S. government is doing everything possible to prevent the Kuwait crisis from developing into a shooting conflict.

Meanwhile in Beirut, Lebanese Premier Saeb Salam told newsmen he had information from his ambassador in Baghdad "which makes me certain that Arab brotherhood will prevail over political disputes and that the crisis will remain confined within the political sphere." Salam did not elaborate.

Army Provides Barges At Dam

SHEFFIELD, Ala. (UPI)—The Tennessee Valley Authority said Saturday the U. S. Army had contributed 11 steel barges for use at Wheeler Dam here as buffeting "wharves" to allow trans-shipment of goods across the dam.

The Army barges, which are being transported overland in sections, are to be used on each side of the dam as a protective measure for the dam and a mooring point for laden barges.

Normal traffic on the Tennessee River was disrupted June 2, when water forced through the lock gates and smashed a lock wall.

Death Rate For Holiday Is Alarming

The National Safety Council Saturday night feared that a record number of deaths might be set for a Fourth of July holiday or any summer holiday during this Independence Day period.

"The rate is alarming," said a council spokesman, "it threatens to break the highway fatality rate for any summer holiday."

A United Press International count at 10:30 p. m. EST, more than 28 hours after the Fourth of July holiday started at 6 p. m. Friday, showed 134 persons dead in traffic accidents.

NEVADA LEADS

Sparsely populated Nevada, usually low in traffic deaths, led the nation with 13. Eleven of these died Friday night when a speeding pickup truck, driving on the wrong side of a highway south of Las Vegas smashed into a station wagon and wiped out three generations of a vacationing California family.

In other states, California was second with 9, Texas, 6, and New York 6.

The National Safety Council had estimated 450 persons would die over the four-day holiday period. During a similar non-holiday period at this time of year, the council said, a total of 370 persons could be expected to die.

The council said by 6 p.m. Saturday, 75 persons would have died in traffic accidents during a non-holiday weekend.

At Saturday's killing pace, the council said, a new Independence Day holiday death record will go into the books.

The council reported that:

· The death count was running ahead of last year's Fourth of July toll when 439 persons died. The 1960 holiday was a three-day weekend, as compared to this year's four days.

The extra day for holiday trips and motor carnage this year could mean the final death count will be closer to 500. The record for a July 4 holiday — and for all summer holidays — is the 491 total of the four-day 1950 July 4 weekend.

This year's death count was also running at close to double the rate of the last four-day July 4 holiday, in 1957, when 426 persons died in traffic.

Near-Record Heat Strikes In Britain

LONDON (AP)—Britain baked in a near-record heatwave Saturday with thermometers climbing into the nineties to register the nation's hottest day in 14 years.

Thousands were tempted out of their homes which are usually not air conditioned to head for the seashore—only to find themselves stationary and sizzling in mammoth traffic jams.

picked up Teagle, his wife and two children, and was enroute back up the river to the house-boat.

Teagle, in relating to deputies what happened, said there was a blinding flash at the front of the boat where he and Dancy were riding. It knocked Teagle momentarily unconscious.

He said that when he came to, Dancy was slumped over the steering wheel of the boat, and it was swaying from side to side.

Teagle reached over, turned off the ignition on the boat and pulled Dancy away from the steering wheel. He said he noticed that Dancy was burned and laid him down in the bottom of the boat. Teagle then applied mouth - to-mouth resuscitation.

Three men in a nearby boat, seeing what had happened, came alongside the Dancy craft and rendered Teagle aid in resuscitation.

They also lifted Dancy from his boat, transferring him into their boat. He was taken to Monroe Boat Dock where a Mulhearn ambulance rushed him to the St. Francis hospital.

Deputies traveled up the river to notify Dancy's family of the disaster and then brought Mrs. Dancy back to Monroe.

Funeral arrangements for the 34-year-old salesman were incomplete last night but will be under direction of Mulhearn's Funeral Home.

Survivors include his widow and three children — two boys, aged nine and seven, and one girl, aged four.

Teagle was kept in the hospital overnight while tests were being run. His wife and two children escaped harm in the incident.

At the first sign of lightning and thunder, the river should be immediately vacated in order to avoid a re-occurrence of this sort of disaster, Grant stressed.

to fight. "I still trust that the threats against Kuwait are no more than words and that the government of Iraq will refrain from aggressive action," Macmillan said in a speech at Calne in West England.

In Washington the State Department noted that in granting Kuwait full independence recently, Britain had promised to go to the assistance of the ruler when requested.

"The ruler of Kuwait has now asked for assistance and the British government has moved to fulfill its commitment," the State Department said. "The United States government believes the United Kingdom has acted quite appropriately. . ."

The department said the U.S. government is doing everything possible to prevent the Kuwait crisis from developing into a shooting conflict.

Meanwhile in Beirut, Lebanese Premier Saeb Salam told newsmen he had information from his ambassador in Baghdad "which makes me certain that Arab brotherhood will prevail over political disputes and that the crisis will remain confined within the political sphere." Salam did not elaborate.

Army Provides Barges At Dam

SHEFFIELD, Ala. (UPI)—The Tennessee Valley Authority said Saturday the U. S. Army had contributed 11 steel barges for use at Wheeler Dam here as buffeting "wharves" to allow trans-shipment of goods across the dam.

The Army barges, which are being transported overland in sections, are to be used on each side of the dam as a protective measure for the dam and a mooring point for laden barges.

Normal traffic on the Tennessee River was disrupted June 2, when water forced through the lock gates and smashed a lock wall.

MOVING TO AUSTRALIA

Florida Cattleman Eyes New Frontier

FORT MYERS, Fla. (AP) — Asa Townsend, a wealthy Florida cattleman, is preparing to move to Australia with his wife, three sons and 12 grandchildren, "to find a new frontier."

Although they have 4,640 acres of pasture in wildlands 35 miles east of Fort Myers, Townsend said the move was being made to assure a future in ranching for his family.

"We are frontier kind of people and we like frontier living," said Townsend. "We are going to Australia, just as my family went to Carolina in pre-Revolutionary days, and just as my great-grandfather came to Florida in the early 1800's with 'Old Hickory' Andrew Jackson."

The Townsends are not making the move on impulse. They have been planning it since 1956 when Townsen and his sons toured interior Australia.

"Interior Australia is at about the same stage now as the United States of 100 years ago," said Townsend. "It sure will be good to get back again to a land where there is plenty of room, where you aren't hemmed in by barbed wire fences."

Townsend can't set a definite date for the move until he sells his land and cattle here.

Townsend said good grazing land is available in interior Australia, owned by the government and leased for up to 99 years at prices of 50 cents to $15 per square mile—640 acres—annually.

He said he found the people "friendly and a lot like the people here in the United States." He hopes to locate in the area inland from Brisbane where the climate is similar to southwest Florida.

Townsend anticipates few hardships in this new-frontier living. He and his sons plan comfortable homes with electric service and indoor plumbing.

Gore Blasts London Critic Of Kennedy

LONDON (UPI) — Sen. Albert Gore, D-Tenn., Saturday criticized a London Times article on President Kennedy as betraying "a superficial understanding of the United States political system.

In a letter referring to a June 23 article in which the Times criticized the first months of the Kennedy administration, Gore said the newspaper used "a compendium of criticisms both partisan and snide."

Defending the Kennedy administration, Gore said Kennedy "has shown the ability both to recognize the points of stress and strain in the ship of state and to move effectively to correct them...

"Unquestionably President Kennedy is the captain of the ship...

"He holds firmly in his hands the reins of government, both as to foreign policy and as to domestic matters."

Gore said the new administration has had a "shake-down cruise" which "is usually beneficial."

Gore said Kennedy had met with great success in his legislative program, which he well knew because he had opposed part of it.

He denied a Times accusation that Kennedy had weakened his position by giving in to vested interests, and said, "few others than your correspondent would characterize as caution and compromise the forthright action taken by the administration to protect the constitutional rights of citizens."

"Your correspondent undertakes to support this generalized assessment (that the Kennedy administration has failed to exercise proper and effective leadership) with a compendium of criticism both partisan and snide, which one can readily pick up, since partisan politics is a year-round phenomenon in the United States—a profession with some, a hobby with others."

Sugar Output At Record High

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department said Saturday world production of sugar set a new high of 60.9 million short tons in the 1960-61 season.

"By a phenomenal one-year increase of 7.3 million tons, world production overcame the 1959-60 interruption in the rapid rise of recent years, and placed the world total in line with the upward trend of more than 3 million tons increase per year in the last 5 years," the department said in its publication, Foreign Corps and Markets.

Harriman Hopes For Paris Talks With Phouma

WASHINGTON (AP)—U.S. Ambassador W. Averell Harriman hopes to consult in Paris in the next day or so with Prince Souvanna Phouma, neutralist leader of Laos, who would play a key role in the formation of any neutral government.

The State Department reported Saturday that Harriman is returning to Europe this weekend. He came here from the Geneva conference on Laos earlier this week to be on hand for the Washington visit of Gen. Phoumi Nosavan, who is pro-Western.

Press officer Lincoln White said Harriman would stay in Paris over July 4 and go on to Geneva on July 5.

"If Souvanna Phouma is still in Paris," White said, "the ambassador may see him."

The United States recently invited Souvanna Phouma as well as Gen. Phoumi to visit Washington. The neutralist leader, who had visited Moscow, declined the bid to come here, at least until after a neutralist government is formed in Laos.

2 Youths Booked Following Fight

Two white youths were booked early Saturday morning for disturbing the peace after allegedly engaging in a fight at a local cafe.

They were identified as Dallas Alford, 21, of 504 Morrison St., Monroe, and Paul Jerry Higgins, 17, of 408 Pine St., West Monroe.

Officers later in the day booked Higgins with a second charge — theft. His bond was set at $350 for the theft charge and $40 on the other charge. Alford was held under a $40 bond.

Clothing Theft Is Being Probed

A theft of $50 worth of clothing is being investigated by the Monroe police department.

Officials said yesterday that Wayne Bunn of Eros told officers at midnight Friday the clothing had been taken from his car which was parked at the Bowlero Bowling Lanes on Louisville Avenue.

Officers are also investigating the theft of a portable television set which was reported taken from a parked car at Sears Town parking lot yesterday afternoon.

Battery Counts Lodged Against Local Negroes

Two Negro men were booked on counts of aggravated battery and use of a dangerous weapon by Monroe police early Saturday morning.

Investigation of a cutting at 12:55 a.m. revealed that Eunice Blunt, Negro of 133 Lee St., West Monroe, had been allegedly cut by Robert Jordan, 36-year-old Negro of 1302 DeSiard St.

A witness told police that he heard the two arguing at 14th and Washington streets where the cutting took place. Jordan was booked for aggravated battery and use of a weapon.

At 3 a.m., two Negroes were taken to St. Francis hospital suffering from knife wounds, allegedly inflicted by Cordell Johnson, Negro, 34 of Route One, Monroe.

Sherman Reeves, of 830 Atkinson St., was hospitalized with lacerations of the back, head and lower abdomen and Luesittie Pipper, Negro of 606 Atkinson St., suffered a cut on the right arm.

Johnson allegedly hid in the Pipper woman's house and cut them when they came in, police said.

Negro Is Booked In West Monroe

Monroe police boooked a 27-year old West Monroe Negro for driving while under the influence of intoxicating beverages and two other traffic violations early Saturday morning.

Shortly after midnight Friday, L. M. Powell, of 105 Bonanza St., was arrested at Jackson and DeSiard streets intersection.

He was booked for DWI, operating a vehicle without a valid state driver's license in his possession and reckless driving.

His bond was set at $500 and he will be tried in Monroe city court.

Battery Counts Lodged Against Local Negroes

Two Negro men were booked on counts of aggravated battery and use of a dangerous weapon by Monroe police early Saturday morning.

Investigation of a cutting at 12:55 a.m. revealed that Eunice Blunt, Negro of 133 Lee St., West Monroe, had been allegedly cut by Robert Jordan, 36-year-old Negro of 1302 DeSiard St.

A witness told police that he heard the two arguing at 14th and Washington streets where the cutting took place. Jordan was booked for aggravated battery and use of a weapon.

At 3 a.m., two Negroes were taken to St. Francis hospital suffering from knife wounds, allegedly inflicted by Cordell Johnson, Negro, 34 of Route One, Monroe.

Sherman Reeves, of 830 Atkinson St., was hospitalized with lacerations of the back, head and lower abdomen and Luesittie Pipper, Negro of 606 Atkinson St., suffered a cut on the right arm.

Johnson allegedly hid in the Pipper woman's house and cut them when they came in, police said.

Negro Is Booked In West Monroe

Monroe police boooked a 27-year old West Monroe Negro for driving while under the influence of intoxicating beverages and two other traffic violations early Saturday morning.

Shortly after midnight Friday, L. M. Powell, of 105 Bonanza St., was arrested at Jackson and DeSiard streets intersection.

He was booked for DWI, operating a vehicle without a valid state driver's license in his possession and reckless driving.

His bond was set at $500 and he will be tried in Monroe city court.

Mississippi VFW Leads In Contest

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI) — A state official of Veterans of Foreign Wars said Saturday that the Mississippi VFW leads the group's national membership contest.

Vice Commander Paul Smith of Jackson said the state VFW lists a membership of 17,007 and had shown a 116 per cent increase over the 1960 membership. The contest is conducted on a yearly basis.

Compromise Reached On Laos Issue

GENEVA (UPI) — Britain and Russia, after seven weeks of an argument, reached a compromise agreement Saturday to permit the International Control Commission in Laos to obtain some of the equipment it needs to supervise the cease-fire there.

Malcolm MacDonald and Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Georgi Pushkin, British and Soviet co-chairmen of the 14 nation conference on Laos, decided to send a message immediately informing the control commission of the decision.

The compromise agreement was the first concrete agreement to be reached in Geneva since the Laos conference started May 16. It could still be balked by Communist Poland which is a member of the commission with Canada and India.

Canada told the conference last month that a minimum of three helicopters and three light planes in addition to trucks and jeeps and radio equipment were needed immediately. And more would be needed [illegible] commission's long-term job of safeguarding Laotian neutrality in the future.

The West has insisted on adequate truce - policing equipment; Russia has been opposed to doing anything that would strengthen the control commission. The agreement reached Saturday was a compromise that would let the commission obtain what it needs locally—from the rebels or the pro-Western government.

The United States has offered helicopters and other equipment and France has offered planes. Communist bloc has denounced these offers and the Polish member of the commission might try even now to block the commission from getting the equipment.

There have been sources of violations of the cease-fire since the first one was announced May 3 but the commission has been unable to check. Its members for the most part have been confined to rebel headquarters at Xieng Khouang, the Laotian capital of Vientiane and the truce village of Ban Namone where Laotian peace talks have been held.

Details of the agreement were not published and the co-chairmen said they would be announced when the Geneva conference resumes on Monday.

IN INDEPENDENCE FIGHT

U.S. Once Planned Attack On Britain

NEW YORK (AP)—A little-known letter disclosed today that American Revolutionary War leaders, at an early stage in the fight for independence, considered launching a counterattack on Great Britain.

One of the aims was revenge, presumably for wanton destruction by the British armies in the New Jersey and New York campaigns of late 1776 and 1777.

The daring plan for an attack on Britain by the colonists was described in a letter from John Jay on Aug. 23, 1777, to another patriot leader, Robert Morris.

Under the plan, camouflaged warships would have struck the British coast, "plundering and burning" Liverpool and Glasgow.

The letter, omitted from all previous collections of Jay's papers and virtually unknown among historians, was part of a gift of 15 letters and other revolutionary war documents presented to Columbia University by Mr. and Mrs. Alfred C. Berol, of New York City.

It was published in the current issue of Columbia Library Columns. In it Jay describes the invasion plan as the brainchild of Silas Deane, an American diplomat.

The letter to Morris says: "Mr. Deane, in a letter of the 28 May last, after recommending an attack on the Greenland fishery & Hudsons Bay trade, desired me to communicate the following plan to congress viz.

" 'To send three frigates loaded with tobacco to Nantz or Bordeaux, equipped in the best manner and on their arrival hide the chief of their guns and appear as citizens.

" 'Intelligence may be had every week what the station of the British fleet is, and how the coast is defended, and a sudden blow may be struck which will alarm & shake Great Britain to the center.

" 'This plan will appear bold and extravagant—so much the more likely to succeed as it will be unexpected, & the plundering and burning of Liverpool & Glasgow would be a most Glorious revenge. And believe me it is very easily effected—I dare put my life on the issue of it, if left to my management, and I can get good men to execute.' "

Legion Says Studios Hire Communists

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — The California American Legion said Saturday six major Hollywood movie studios and many independents had repeatedly issued films "surreptitiously employing identified Communists."

The Legion said it therefore accepts as final "the motion picture industry's abolition of the Waldorf declaration," an agreement by the studios not to employ known Communists.

The statement was in a resolution adopted unanimously by 3,800 of the 4,300 delegates registered at the legion's state convention.

The resolution said certain producers had placed monetary gains above obligation to their patrons. It pledged the legion would continue "to alert the American public of those who infringe upon the high standards of our American heritage and liberties for self aggrandizement."

The resolution named Columbia, 20th Century-Fox, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, Paramount, Allied Artists and Universal-International. It did not name the independents to whom it referred.

The movie personalities named were: Lester Cole, Al Levitt, Hugo Butler, Marguerite Roberts, Dorothy Parker, Michael Wilson, Ian Hunter, Jeff Corey, Jules Dassin and Ned Young.

Sanford Abrahams, publicity director for Allied Artists productions, said: "Our policy is against hiring any known Communists. We certainly don't intend to do anything un-American. It's hard to answer such a general chastisement as the one made by the American Legion."

Individuals named could not be reached.

In 1947 motion picture executives pledged at a two-day meeting in New York City's Waldorf-Astoria Hotel to purge their industry of known Communists. They agreed to discharge or suspend without pay 10 Hollywood figures cited by the House of Representatives for contempt of the House Un-American Activities Committee.

Their statement added: "We will not knowingly employ a Communist or a member of any party or group which advocates the overthrow of the government of the United States by force or by any illegal or unconstitutional methods."

The legion in other resolutions, many of them shouted into passage, called for freeing of Cuba from the Castro dictatorship by force of arms if necessary, fulfillment of commitments to free nations and defense of West Berlin at all costs.

"Legionnaires want to awaken America to the threat of the Communist conspiracy," state commander John E. Hahn of Merced told newsmen. "In effect, we have declared war on those in the movie industry who are obviously coddling commies by ignoring the Waldorf declaration."

Hospital Approved For Indigent Care

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI) — The State Hospital Commission said Saturday that a Memphis, Tenn., hospital has been approved for participation in Mississippi's indigent care program.

Although restricted to Shelby county, Tenn., many emergency patients from areas of North Mississippi use the John Gaston Hospital in nearby Memphis.

Participating in the state's indigent program provides for payment of $7 per day for care given Mississippians who are unable to pay for hospital service.

BETTIE GIBBS, Northeast Louisiana State College student, portrays the image of sailors' dreams and Ensign Pulver (Chuck Morgan) enjoys the reverie as the cast readies for the forthcoming presentation of "Mr. Roberts," the hilarious Broadway comedy to be presented by a Monroe cast in the Little Theatre on Lamy Lane, with nightly performances at 8:15 July 6-12. Co-sponsored by the Monroe Little Theatre and Northeast Louisiana State College, the play is the first of three to be produced during the summer.

SHOWING SET HERE

'Mr. Roberts' Is Wholesome Play

"Mr. Roberts," the broadway comedy to be presented here by a local cast of the Little Theatre, is a wholesome, hilarious production loaded with witty quips showing peace-time sailors and their antics to overcome boredom.

Co-sponsored by the Little Theatre and Northeast Louisiana State College, "Mr. Roberts" will be presented in the Little Theatre on Lamy Lane nightly at 8:15 July 6-12, according to Mrs. Ray Magruder, Little Theatre president.

The public is invited to the presentations. Only 250 seats will be available each night. Reservations for tickets costing $1.50 for adults and $1.00 for students and children may be made by calling FA 3-1235 from 1-7 p.m., July 4-12. Tickets may be picked up at the Little Theatre.

Drama critics have acclaimed that "Mr. Roberts" is not overly sentimental nor maudlin, but that it does present a wholesome and optimistic view.

The bitterness and sensuality that have occupied so much a part of modern drama is not present in this play. Here is to be found in its best form the attitude that belongs to this generation, say New York critics.

Audiences of the Broadway performance, which ran for more than three years, discovered that "Mr. Roberts" offers sailors in an attitude that gives a tendency to laugh at what is inescapable, to accept no authority without reservation, and to avoid illusion.

Critics say that Mr. Robert's convictions supply him with a rare, attractive gallantry infinitely more appealing and perhaps more realistic than the brutal despair of the aggressively indoctrinated heroes of stronger fiction.

Costumes and technical advice for the production have been provided by the local Navy Reserve unit.

State Business Edges Upwards Slightly In May

BATON ROUGE (AP)—Louisiana business in May for the first time showed a slight touch of optimism when it edged upwards 7 per cent, researchers said Saturday.

The slight increase was in comparison with May a year ago.

Business researchers at the Louisiana State University college of commerce said May gained 6.8 per cent over April this year.

Petroleum manufacturing sales, up 19.9 per cent; crude petroleum production, up 11.1 per cent; department store sales, up 3 per cent.

Losses were:

Industrial electric power consumption, down 8.2 per cent; employment, off 2.2 per cent; and freight carloadings, down 1.1 per cent.

May, compared with April, showed a 17.9 per cent gain in department store sales and 10 per cent hike in petroleum manufacturing sales, while freight carloadings were up 9.3 per cent.

Congolese Hurl Accusations At Catholic Church

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP) — The central government Saturday accused the Roman Catholic Church of interfering in Congolese politics, diplomatic informants said. They asserted the charge came after a sermon delivered Friday at Leopoldville's Notre Dame Cathedral.

The protest, a warning to the church to stay out of politics, was contained in a note from Foreign Minister Justin Bomboko to the apostolic delegate in Leopoldville, Msgr. Mojaski Perrelli, the informants said.

The sermon was delivered at a high mass in honor of the first anniversary of the Congo's independence by the auxiliary bishop of Leopoldville, Joseph Malula. President Joseph Kasavubu, Premier Joseph Ileo and leading members of the government were in the congregation.

"You must bring peace to your people, who elected you and who are now suffering," the bishop said. "If you use the people as a springboard for your own ambitions they will come to hate you. Rivalries and ambition constitute a mortal poison for our land."

The apostolic delegate was unavailable for comment on the report of the government's protest.

Man Is Booked By Police After Gunshot Deaht

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A Gretna man was booked for investigation Saturday in the apparent accidental gunshot death of John B. St. Pe.

St. Pe, a 34-year-old Harahan man, was killed in his car after a gun tucked into his trousers discharged.

Joseph Barros, 32, held by police, was driving. He said St. Pe took the gun from the glove compartment and shortly afterward the weapon discharged.

Barros said St. Pe cried, "I shot myself in the leg. I'm bleeding bad."

Police said the bullet struck St. Pe below his right pelvis. There was no bullet hole in his trousers.

Barros said he put the gun in the glove compartment. He said St. Pe gave him the weapon years ago and had indicated he wanted it back.

Police said St. Pe had a long records of arrests for armed robbery.

Negro Requests Aid From Court

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—James Meredith, 27-year-old Kosciusko Negro, asked federal district judge Sidney Mize Friday for a court order to keep the University of Mississippi from barring him because of his race.

Meredith asked for a preliminary injunction directed at the University and the state in time for the second summer session beginning July 17.

Meredith asked a hearing on the matter on July 11 or as soon afterward as the health of assistant Atty. Gen. Dugas Shands permits. Shands had been ill and the state gained a 15-day extension this week in the time for filing answers in the case.

R. Jesse Brown of Vicksburg, Negro lawyer for Meredith, said the new request was an effort to get Meredith into the university this summer.

He said the illness of Shands, with resulting postponements in the earlier proceedings, might delay the court decision on a permanent order until too late to enter this summer.

Meredith went to court May 31 with a motion for a temporary injunction and the court heard arguments on the motion June 12 at Biloxi, then set the case for trial July 10. It later was delayed until July 11.

In the new motion, Meredith said he had sought admission to the University for the second semester of the regular term Feb. 8, but was denied admission on grounds the application was received after Jan. 25. He then asked consideration for his application for the first summer session June 8.

The motion said Meredith was not denied admission to the first summer session until May 26, when he got a letter from registrar Robert Ellis saying the request was denied on grounds he was attending a non-accredited institution and had failed to furnish necessary alumni certificates.

The 117-year-old university is an all-white institution and Meredith's court action is the first attempt in federal courts to desegregate it.

Meredith had asked for a restraining order to halt the university from refusing him admittance, and an injunction ordering the university to enroll him.

In another federal court action, attorneys for the city bus lines here asked Mize for an order requiring a group of Jackson Negroes to spell out more definitely their complaint against the city bus firm in a suit to keep police from arresting those who seek to desegregate transportation facilities here.

The suit will go before a three-judge federal court, including Mize, on July 10.

The city bus lines said in their request the part of the complaint involving it was "couched in language so vague and ambiguous that this defendant cannot be reasonably required to frame a responsive pleading or prepare for trial".

U.S. Judge Takes Oath In Tennessee

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (UPI) Frank Wilson, Oak Ridge, officially became U. S. district judge for East Tennessee Saturday then held his first session after taking the oath.

After the oath, administered by U. S. District Judge Robert L. Taylor, Knoxville, who becomes chief district judge through Darr's retirement, Wilson was robed by his wife.

He was escorted to the bench and took his place with Darr and Taylor. His first official act was to administer the oath of office to Bruce Guthrie, a Chattanooga attorney, as assistant U. S. district attorney for the Eastern District.

Judge Wilson then adjourned the court.

Wilson, who announced his intention to start trying cases July 18, was presented to the bar by Jack Dowdy, Knoxville, and welcomed by Richard Dietzen, president of the Chattanooga Bar Association.

Wilson also said he intended to hold a special court term in Winchester the first two weeks in August.

Sen. Estes Kefauver, D-Tenn., Wilson's close friend, was on hand for the ceremonies. Wilson is a former campaign manager for the senior Tennessee senator, who was a prime mover in getting the lawyer the judgeship.

State Business Edges Upwards Slightly In May

BATON ROUGE (AP)—Louisiana business in May for the first time showed a slight touch of optimism when it edged upwards .7 per cent, researchers said Saturday.

The slight increase was in comparison with May a year ago.

Business researchers at the Louisiana State University college of commerce said May gained 6.8 per cent over April, this year.

Petroleum manufacturing sales, up 19.9 per cent; crude petroleum production, up 11.1 per cent; department store sales, up .5 per cent.

Losses were:

Industrial electric power consumption, down 8.2 per cent; employment, off 2.2 per cent, and freight carloadings, down 1.1 per cent.

May, compared with April, showed a 17.9 per cent gain in department store sales and 10 per cent hike in petroleum manufacturing sales, while freight carloadings were up 9.3 per cent.

Kennedy's Hopes For School Aid Appear Slimmer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The bright hopes of the Kennedy administration for a broad federal aid-to-education program have faded to a glimmer as Congress heads for a holiday breather.

Caught in a political and emotional tangle from which it may be impossible to extricate them are three bills that would provide $6.1 billion for a variety of assistance to all levels from grammar to graduate school.

The very brightness of the hopes for such programs six months ago is in large measure responsible for the mess they are in today. Everybody wanted to get into the act.

Teachers, school administrators, college presidents, parents and spokesmen for the Roman Catholic Church descended on Washington to back proposals they wanted included. Administration forces in Congress, anxious to get the broadest possible support for program, tried to take care of them all.

The three bills that resulted are a $2.5-billion, three-year program to aid the public school system, a $1.8-billion, five-year program for colleges and a $1.8-billion, four-year extension—on a greatly expanded scale—of an existing program, the National Defense Education Act. The public school bill is considered the heart of the Kennedy program.

The sheer magnitude of the programs has proved a handicap, especially in the House of Representatives, which has always been somewhat hostile to the idea of federal aid to education. Having three bills, each with a different sponsor, has created its own conflicts over priorities and strategy.

There are other problems. The fear of Southern congressmen that federal aid would hasten school integration has added the race issue to the controversy. Proposals to give poorer states a larger proportion of aid than wealthier ones have aroused antagonism.

But by far the biggest problem has been raised by the determination of the Roman Catholic Church to get some form of assistance for its 21,700 parochial schools with their 5 million students.

In the face of an open avowal by Catholic leaders to oppose public-school aid if parochial schools were not provided for, $325 million for long-term loans to private and church-related schools was added to the NDEA extension bill, with the restriction that no funds be used for religious purposes.

The focal point of all these currents is now the House Rules Committee, which clears legislation for the House floor. The Senate has already passed the public-school bill and all three have cleared the House Education Committee.

Seven members of the 15-member Rules Committee are opposed to all three bills. Among the remaining eight is a Catholic who has publicly stated he would not vote to let the public school bill out of the committee until the parochial school loans are cleared. His vote would be decisive.

Also among the eight are three Southern Protestants who are equally determined not to vote for the parochial school loans. The result is a stalemate.

The administration's ace-in-the-hole is a provision in the public school bill continuing for three years a vastly popular program of aid to school districts burdened with children of federal employes or defense workers. Every state and 70 per cent of the congressional districts share in the program.

This impacted-areas provision expired Friday. If it is not reinstated soon administrators in 3,821 school districts who stand to lose $200 million are expected to set up a howl that will be heard in the Rules Committee.

One possibility that grows increasingly likely as the deadlock continues is that the house will pass the impacted areas extension as a separate bill.

That's just one possibility, however. There are others, including President Kennedy's intervention to get a favorable vote in the rules committee.

8 Accidents Reported In Local Area

Local law enforcement agencies reported a total of eight accidents involving motor vehicles at midnight last night, with only two minor injuries.

Starting the long holiday weekend, Monroe reported five accidents, with one injury and state police had two with one injury. West Monroe police reported only one wreck which occurred at 10:25 a.m. on Trenton street with no injury.

In Monroe, 11-year-old Virginia Dollar was treated by the family doctor after the car in which she was a passenger was struck in the rear on Louisville Avenue.

Investigating officers said that the three-car collision which occurred at 7:55 p.m. in the 2200 block of Louisville involved three east bound cars. George Bibb Holt, 35 of 104 Tupelo Dr., West Monroe, and Joseph T. Dollar, 50 of 1413 Cole Ave., Monroe, were both stopped in the traffic lane when they were struck from behind by John Lowery Robinson, 37 of El Paso, Tex. Robinson's car hit Dollar's vehicle, knocking him into Holt.

Monroe reported four other wrecks, but none inolved injuries. State police said they had only two wrecks, one on Highway 80 west, that contained a very minor injury.

U.S. Given Laos Regime Assurances

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States has won new assurances from the pro-Western royal government of Laos that it will beware of Communist booby traps in its negotiations with neutralist and Red leaders for formation of a coalition regime.

American officials said Saturday the assurances were given by Gen. Phoumi Nosavan, deputy premier and defense minister in the royal government, during two days of talks here with President Kennedy and other high officials. Phoumi left early Saturday for home by way of Honolulu, where he hoped to confer briefly with Adm. Harry Felt, commander-in-chief of U. S. forces in the Pacific.

Research Grant Is Awarded To Northeast Prof

A Northeast Louisiana State College professor has been awarded a research grant by the American Philosophical Society of Philadelphia.

Under the terms of the grant, Dr. J. R. Brown, associate professor of history at Northeast, will spend a month in Washington D.C. later this summer collecting materials for a history of the nitrate industry of Chile, Dr. William R. Hammond, dean of Liberal Arts, has announced.

As a result of previous work about the nitrate industry, Dr. Brown has published in the Hispanic American Historical Review an article about the Nitrate Railways Company, an enterprise which helped make possible the growth of the nitrate industry.

One of the oldest foundations in the United States, the APS makes awards for research in all fields of scholarship.

Walker Takes Over As School Superintendent

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — O. Perry Walker was sworn in Saturday to replace Dr. James Redmond as superintendent of New Orleans schools.

Walker, a veteran of 39 years in the city school system, had taken over the post last month, but the oath of office was not administered until Saturday.

Walker had been first assistant superintendent of schools during Redmond's 8-year term. Prior to that, he was acting superintendent of schools for two years.

Walker said no decision has been made yet on the applications of 66 Negro first graders applying for transfer to white schools. Their applications are being screened under the pupil placement system.

Walker said this year the school board will have the final say in the placements, whereas the superintendent did last year.

Walker said he is hopeful the people of New Orleans will send their children to public schools, instead of boycotting them.

Tractors Group Needs Cash To Make Refunds

WASHINGTON (AP) — The disbanded Tractors for Freedom Committee now needs money to pay the cost of returning the money it collected in the prisoner deal with Cuba that failed.

A meeting Wednesday will determine how to go about getting it.

Victor G. Reuthre, brother and assistant to United Auto Workers President Walter P. Reuther, said Saturday the return mailing expense must be raised by voluntary contributions. None of the money given for tractors will be used, he said.

Reuther said thank you notes will be sent to contributors, returning their money and explaining why the deal fell through.

JFK Enjoys Hyannis Port Boating Trip

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (AP)—The blue waters of Nantucket Sound beckoned President Kennedy Saturday on his first day of rest and relaxation at his summer home.

As a boy he and his brothers won sailboat races on the sound. The Kennedy summer homes face it.

But while the President was boating with his wife, Jacqueline, and his father, Joseph P. Kennedy, the problems of presidential office hung in the background.

Even before getting out of bed this morning, the President was in telephone communication with Secretary of Labor Arthur J. Goldberg and with Gen. Chester B. Clifton.

The talk with Goldberg was on the progress of efforts to settle the maritime strike that has tied up some 200 ships in American ports.

Goldberg will fly to Cape Cod Sunday night to report on his efforts to end the strike. The President may invoke the Taft-Hartley Act, under which the courts can step in to end the work stoppage for an 80-day cooling-off period. The deadline is 9 a.m. Monday.

The talk with Gen. Clifton included a report on Kuwait, the Arabian peninsula state, rich with oil, which is facing a threat of a takeover by Iraq.

The President is vacationing with two dozen of the Kennedy clan, including in-laws and cousins —and more may show before the long holiday weekend is over.

While he is surrounded by members of his family, he still has considerable privacy from the general public. The streets close to the Kennedy home are closed to traffic.

The Kennedys have a new pier, built out from the shore in front of the senior Kennedy's property. They have several small sailboats tied up there.

Film Finance Aid Not Seen In Pay Video

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Producer Robert Lippert is one Hollywoodite who doesn't think that pay TV is the answer to the movies' financial problems.

Many in town predict grosses of 10 to 20 million once first-run movies go out on a nationwide pay-TV network.

"The inevitable disenchantment will come as soon as any set owner invests as much as 25 cents in a stinker," Lippert says. "In theaters only a tiny fraction of the people see a movie on opening day. Word of mouth, not stars, is the greatest factor in amassing huge grosses.

Public Offered Pictures Taken From Satellite

The weather bureau said many of the more than 20,000 pictures of the earth taken from Tiros I, the first experimental weather satellite, may be ordered from the National Weather Records Center, Asheville, N.C. The pictures are available in 100-foot reels at $4 a reel.

Seven reels containing pictures obtained on the first 120 orbit passes of the satellite are available. Photos from the remaining 48 reels will be offered as soon as they are processed.

Pictures may be ordered in the form of 35 millimeter positive transparencies for projection or 35 MM negatives from which black and white prints can be made.

Tiros I was launched April 1, 1960.

Tiny Kuwait Has Largest Oil Reserve

By MAX B. SKELTON

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Kuwait may be tiny but her proved oil reserves are the largest in the world.

Oil development since 1947 in the 1,900 square mile Middle East sheikdom has been fantastic.

Kuwait is about the size of the island of Trinidad. Texas has 12 counties larger in area than the little nation Premier Abdel Karim Kassem of Iraq hopes to annex.

Yet Kuwait has led all oil nations in proved crude reserves since 1956.

Her potential still is unknown. Numerous land areas still have not been explored. Kuwait's Persian Gulf offshore areas, practically untouched so far, are believed to hold billions of barrels of reserves.

Kuwait and other Middle East nations have led the post-war development program that has wiped out the United States' dominant position over world crude reserves.

In 1947 the United States held 34 per cent of world reserves with an estimated 21 billion barrels. Kuwait ranked sixth with 4½ billion or only 7 per cent.

Estimates of reserves at the end of 1960 had Kuwait in first place with an estimated 62 billion barrels or 20 per cent of the world total. The United States had 33 billion or 11 per cent, ranking fourth behind Kuwait, Saudi Arabia, and Iran.

When compared with United States standards, Kuwait has assumed her dominant position with only a handful of producing wells.

Kuwait currently is turning out about 1,800,000 barrels of oil a day with only 350 wells. Texas, by contrast, has 198,000 wells and currently is producing 2,500,000 barrels a day.

The spacing pattern in Kuwait as early as 1948 was one well to 600 acres. The normal Texas pattern is 40 acres but if the owner of a one-quarter acre tract wants to drill a well on his land he can do so.

The United States still leads the world in crude production but the Middle East boom has dropped her share from 61 per cent in 1947 to 34 per cent in 1960. Kuwait had only 0.54 per cent of world output in 1947 but had over 7 per cent last year.

Kuwait Oil Co. Ltm., a 50-50 partnership between two British and American firms, Anglo-Iranian Oil Co. and Gulf Exploration Co., obtained a 75-year Kuwait concession in 1934. In 1951 the concession, including a six-mile offshore strip, was validated to the year 2026.

The Bigham field was discovered in 1938 at a depth of only 3,700 feet. The wells were shut in and cemented in mid-1942 as a wartime security precaution. Operations were revived in 1946.

Bigham's reserves originally were estimated at nine billion barrels. Some recent estimtes indicate the vast reservoir may hold more oil than all United States reserves combined.

A major discovery was made in 1955 at Raudhatain in north Kuwait but most of the wells were shut in until last year when they were linked with a Persian Gulf tanker terminal by pipeline.

Comparatively small amounts of Kuwait crude reach the United States in that most of it is taken by the British Petroleum. Co. and Royal Dutch Shell.

Last year Royal Dutch Shell received rights to explore and develop Kuwait's offshore area beyond the six-mile limit included in the 1934 concession. A dozen or more companies had sought the new concession.

Freak Fishing Accident Breaks Woman's Finger

Mrs. Mabell Bartlett, 59-year-old Rayville woman, went fishing yesterday, but fish wasn't all she caught.

Mrs. Bartlett can really tell a tall fish story and prove it when she shows people her smashed left ring finger.

After catching her hand between the boat and a tree on Finch's Lake, Mrs. Bartlett had to be hospitalized. The accident which occurred sometime late yesterday afternoon, caused her finger to be smashed and she lost quite a bit of blood, her friends said.

After reaching the home of the friend in West Monroe on Halsell Street, Mrs. Bartlett fainted from loss of blood.

She was rushed to the St. Francis hospital by Hixson ambulance for treatment.

When asked if she caught any fish on her day-long excursion, Mrs. Bartlett exclaimed — "Oh, yes. Just lots," — but couldn't remember how many.

Aid Is Proposed By De Gaulle To New Algeria

NANCY, France (AP)—President Charles de Gaulle proposed Saturday "aid and assistance of France for the construction and development of a new Algeria" if the Moslem community would cooperate.

But the president took no direct note of the Moslem disorders in Algeria apparently aimed against his proposal of partition as a last-ditch solution to the Algerian war.

DEATHS

Mrs. Pearl Clifton

GONDONNA (Special) — Funeral services for Mrs. Pearl Clifton, 72, of Goldonna, who died Friday in a Jonesboro hospital following an illness of several weeks, were held Saturday at Antioch Methodist Church near Dodson with the Rev. Hazel Anderson, pastor, officiating.

Interment was in Antioch cemetery under direction of Southern Funeral Home of Jonesboro.

Surviving are a son, Lawson Grigg, Ft. Hood, Tex.; a step-son, Porter Clifton, Goldonna, two daughters, Mrs. Liduth Durbin, and Mrs. Laura Carmichael, both of Goldonna; a step-daughter, Mrs. Ezra Hattaway, Goldonna; nine grandchildren and 11 great grandchildren.

Kennedy's Hopes For School Aid Appear Slimmer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The bright hopes of the Kennedy administration for a broad federal aid-to-education program have faded to a glimmer as Congress heads for a holiday breather.

Caught in a political and emotional tangle from which it may be impossible to extricate them are three bills that would provide $6.1 billion for a variety of assistance to all levels from grammar to graduate school.

PUERTO RICO

Major Showcase 'For Democracy'

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP)—Puerto Rico, which has traveled the long road from despair to bright hope, would be happy to set out route markers others can follow.

In effect, that's the message this island commonwealth is offering these days to underdeveloped Latin-American nations.

It's a counterattraction to the Cuba of Fidel Castro, directed to those countries which want to build themselves up in democratic free enterprise.

Puerto Rico, once a horrible example of how bad things can get, has lifted itself up mainly by means of the aptly named Operation Bootstrap, an industrialization program based on tax exemptions and other government inducements to promote business and employment.

"We were pretty hopeless, and thought we couldn't do this back in 1932, '39 and '40," Gov. Luis Munoz Marin told a reporter.

"But once the people got convinced we were going to win, no matter how hard the fight, we gained a tremendous economic and spiritual force."

His implication was clear. The same victory can be won in other lands that are now as underdeveloped and impoverished as Puerto Rico used to be.

One of the major steps taken by President Kennedy in planning a new program if U.S. aid to Latin America was to talk things over with Munoz, a leader well respected throughout the hemisphere.

Kennedy reported later: "Gov. Munoz and I have agreed to take measures to explore the availability of Puerto Rico's facilities for a meeting place and workshop where we in the United States and our neighbors in Latin America may learn more about our mutual problems and possibilities for the great achievements that we can attain by working together."

Teodoro Moscoso, who directed Operation Bootstrap from 1942 until this year, cited Puerto Rico's experience in a speech to the United Nations. He declared three factors of most importance: a sound governmental structure, education with much attention to eliminating illiteracy and measures of social justice.

Much remains to be done in Puerto Rico. Severe unemployment and grim depressing slums still exist.

But there is no denying the islanders have come a long way. The rise of the average Puerto Rican in the last 20 years has been chronicled many times but perhaps no one has summed it up more compactly than Juanita Greene of the Miami Herald:

"He eats less dried codfish and lots more things like eggs, meat and other high protein foods. He drinks four times as much milk.

"He has a much better chance of leaving his unprofitable farm for a factory job, or of making a better living on the farm.

"His life expectancy has been broadened. He doesn't have to worry about malaria. He can get free hospital and medical care.

"He can send his children to a nearby school, go into the nearest town to see a traveling play or even hear with his own ears the great Pablo Casals and the new Puerto Rican Symphony Orchestra.

"He'll probably have fewer children than his father had. The birthrate in the overcrowded island of 2.3 million people is on the decline.

"He either lives in his own land, or can look forward to moving into one in the next 10 years.

"No matter where he lives on the island, he can get electricity for his home if he can afford the low rates, and probably fresh water, too.

"He knows a lot more about the outside world, probably knows how to read and write Spanish, and probably knows some English, too."

Since Operation Bootstrap began, more than 675 mainland companies have taken advantage of Puerto Rico's offer to put up a plant here and forget about taxes, federal and local, for 10 years.

"A taxpayer's paradise," the Wallstreet Journal called the island.

The range of industrial activity is amazing to anyone who reflects that not many years ago not much came out of Puerto Rico except sugar, rum and embroidery.

There are now such blue chip companies as American Can, Carborundum Co., Consolidated Cigar, General Electric, W.R. Grace, International Shoe, Nebraska Consolidated Mills, Parke-Davis, St. Regis Paper, Phelps Dodge, Sperry Rand and Union Carbide.

The islanders, while holding a joint citizenship in the United States, have no vote in the national government. And they do not have to pay federal taxes.

This favorable tax situation is sometimes cited to show that Puerto Rico is not typical and can not properly be a model for fully sovereign nations.

But Gov. Munoz questioned that view.

"Are they different, really?" he asked. "Tax exemption for 10 years is an important inducement, of course, and we pay no taxes to the federal government. But no Latin - American country pays taxes to the United States, either.

"Puerto Rico is within the tariff system of the United States. But many goods from Latin America on the U.S. free list, and others are being added. The general tendency is toward freer and freer trade."

Another articulate Puerto Rican official who has given much thought to the qualifications, and limitations, of Puerto Rico as a showcase is Jaime Benitez, chancellor of the busy and beautiful University of Puerto Rico.

A scholarly, intense man, Benitez conveyed a sense of concern over "easy" solutions that have been suggested for Latin America.

And of the abortive Cuban invasion in April, he said flatly it was a major disaster, a situation that "you can't look at with any great hope."

Of Puerto Rico's role in the future of Latin America, Benitez said, "A very important job has been done in Puerto Rico, but other jobs great in magnitude still have to be dealt with in Latin America.

IOWA HAS LONG been known as the corn state, but this picture is evidence that Colorado doesn't do too badly when it comes to growing corn, and pretty girls. In the good old days, farmers used to think of their corn as being knee high by the 4th of July. Judie Cadman, a Denver model, posed with this corn grown in Denver by A. K. Hepperly. Judie is 5 feet 7 inches tall, and for those who care, the corn measured 7 feet, which is pretty high for this time of year. (AP Wirephoto)

FOE OF COMMUNISM

Man Chains Self At Soviet Embassy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Josef Mlot-Mroz, who for seven years was exposed to the reign of communism in his native Poland, was exposed to the rain of communism Friday at the Soviet Embassy.

Mlot - Mroz, 40, came down from his home in Salem, Mass., Friday morning with a $45 sign condemning communism, 20 feet of chain costing $13 and two $2.50 padlocks.

He chained and padlocked himself to the railings of the Soviet Embassy, which is on busy 16th Street NW, in the heart of Washington.

A man came out of the embassy and told Mlot-Mroz to move on and shoved him, he said. The Pole pointed to the chain. The man asked for the key. Mlot-Mroz threw it in the bushes.

Three more men came out and shoved him, he said. One brought up a garden hose and squirted him and the $45 waterproof sign.

The wet but smiling anti-Communist was led to a patrol wagon. He told reporters as he got in it was the fifth anniversary of the Poznan riots in Poland.

Mlot-Mroz' sign read, "Demand freedom for Poland and captive nations and stop communism now."

Brought before Judge Randolph C. Richardson on a charge of picketing within 500 feet of an embassy, Mlot - Mroz pleaded innocent.

The judge asked him to promise never to do it again and when he did the judge suspended sentence.

"No, I'm not mad at them for squirting me," Mlot-Mroz said later. Next year I'll picket in New York at their headquarters. They won't arrest me there."

A year ago he was picked up in front of the Soviet Embassy where he got a dousing, and two months earlier he was arrested for hanging a 110-foot black banner from the Washington Monument to protest against a Paris conference.

Rental Agent Locks 'Sitters' In For Weekend

NEW YORK (AP)—Four persons, sitting-in at a Brooklyn apartment rental office in protest against what they called racial discrimination, were locked in for the weekend Saturday.

A spokesman for CORE told this story:

Clarence Funnye, a Negro civil engineer for the Port of New York Authority, applied for an apartment in the Clinton Hill apartments for himself, his wife and child.

He was told by a woman rental agent for the 1800-unit private development that no apartments were available.

Later while CORE checkers inquired about apartments and were told there were some available.

When an official CORE delegation visited the woman agent, she insisted there were no vacant apartments, and remarked, "This is one of those Freedom things."

Mrs. Gladys Harrington, Negro chairman of CORE's New York branch, and three white CORE members went to the rental office Saturday and refused to leave.

The rental agent finally left, locking the door with the four inside.

The CORE spokesman said the picket line of white and Negro CORE members would be maintained until 4:30 p.m. July 4.

Gibbs Asks Repeal Of Welfare Law

Rep. Lawrence Gibbs Saturday called for the repeal of one section of Act 90 of the recent legislature which would return funds paid at charity hospitals to the the state general fund.

He also urged Gov. Jimmie H. Davis to have Welfare Commissioner Mary Evelyn Parker restore cuts in old age assistance checks which have been made under the provisions of the act.

Gibbs has been the leader to stop the state from cutting welfare checks to implement medical assistance for the aged. He has contended that the aid can be added without cuts in old age assistance.

Gibbs statement yesterday said:

STATEMENT

"I would first like to thank the many citizens throughout Louisiana who have written me, called me by telephone, talked to me on the streets, in my home and their places of business, expressing their confidence in me and their continued support to have all of the benefits restored to our senior citizens and unfortunate people who are recipients of our welfare program.

"I appreciate Commissioner Parker writing me a letter recently expressing her desire to cooperate with me in the restoration of these benefits to our senior citizens.

"Also, I would like to thank Gov. Davis for his public expression in stating his desire to have all these benefits restored. As stated previously, I do not feel it proper or right for the state of Louisiana to make a revenue out of the misery of our old folks.

"With Welfare Commissioner Parker's willingness, along with Gov. Davis, to cooperate with me, I feel that all of this can be cleared up immediately and the plan which I offered in the recent session of the legislature will be adopted during this most unfortunate situation.

"Act 90, section 2113, of the 1961 legislature, setting up charges for services by state hospitals, should be repealed. This portion of the bill provides for the revenue measure at the expense of the sick and aged people of our state.

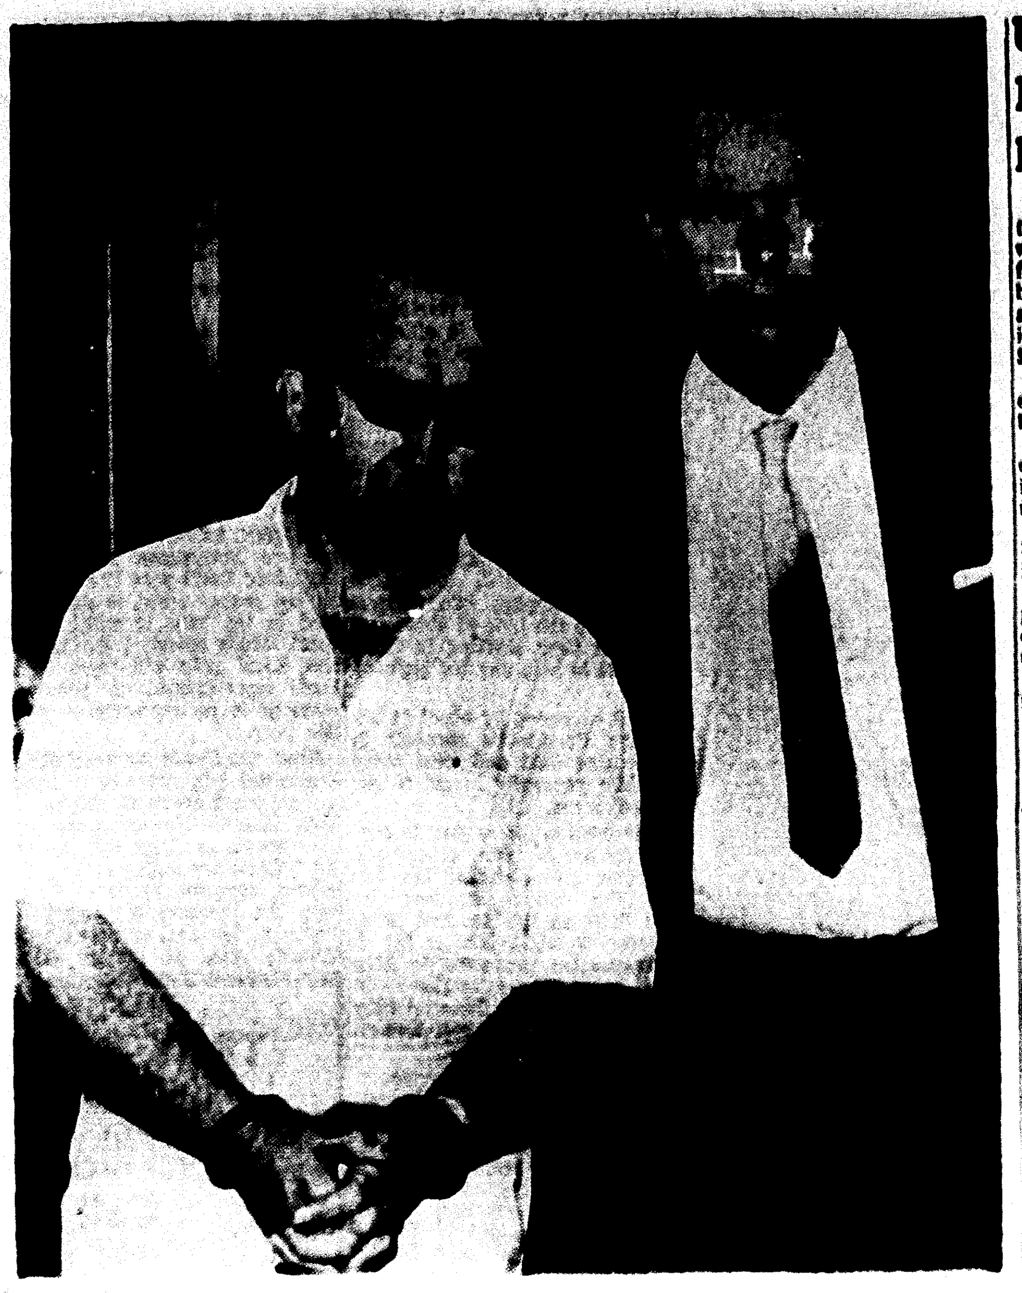
"To be specific this section states all funds received from fees paid under the provisions of this section on behalf of patients shall be paid into the general fund."

"It is also my wish that Gov. Davis advise Mrs. Parker to restore the funds from checks which may have already been cut prior to his announcement.

"Again I wish to thank the many people who have taken their time to advise and counsel with me."

VEHICLE DEATHS DROP

CHICAGO (UPI) — Motor vehicle deaths per miles traveled during the first five months of the year dropped to an all-time low, the National Safety Council has reported.



EX-GAMBLER Mickey Cohen, leaves federal court with Deputy U.S. Marshal Charles W. Ross, after he was sentenced to 15-years in prison and fined $30,000 on income tax evasion Sunday. Gospel Music School Set Here Monday

A three - week gospel music school will be held in the new air - conditioned United Pentecostal Church beginning Monday July 10 at 9 a.m.

Rev. J. W. Caughton is pastor of the church, located on Montgomery Street, West Monroe.

Both morning and night classes will be held each Monday through Friday. Morning classes will be from 9 a.m. to 11:45 a.m. Night classes will be held from 7:30 until 9 p.m.

Subjects taught in the school will be voice, piano, harmony, sight reading, song directing, teory, teachers and quartet training. There will be no tuition charge. Those desiring may attend both day and night classes free of charge.

An inter - denominational school, those wishing to attend from another church may do so.

The school is sponsored by gospel singers as well as business and professional men from Ouachita Parish.

Professor Otis Deaton, composer of many gospel songs and with 35 years of teaching experience, will do the general class teaching. Mrs. Robert Vaughan, who has studied with voice teaches in New York, Chicago and other cities, will teach voice.

Cecil Pollock, who has been an accompanist for quartets such as the Rangers and Stamps, will teach piano.

Children as well as adults are invited to attend the school.

Trial Postponed In Slaying Case

LONDON (UPI) — The trial of three men charged in the death of a Knoxville, Tenn., airman here has been postponed until July 28.

The trial for the June 6 knife-slaying of Stanley Thurman Roach, 22, a weapons mechanic at the U. S. Air Force Base at Wethersfield, began Friday. He was stabbed in a street brawl while on a pass with two other airmen.

Prosecutor Philip Radcliffe said Roach was stabbed in a brawl which "apparently started for no reason at all."

Accused in Roach's death were Daniel Allard, 22, a native of Malta, Andreas Xanthous, 20, and Xanthos Zacharia, both Greek Cypriots living here.

U.S. Will Test Equipment For Manned Orbit

WASHINGTON (AP) — The tracking and communications network that will link America's first man in orbit with earth will be tested late this summer wih a 100-pound satellite, the civilian space agency announced Saturday.

The satellite, to be called Mercury-Scout I, will be launched into an orbit approximately 300 miles high. It will travel in the same path the first manned orbit- be tested late this summer with ing Mercury will follow.

Into the test satellite will be placed transmitting and receiving equipment identical to that being used in the Mercury spacecraft.

The Scout is called "the poor man's rocket" because it is relatively inexpensive. It is the world's first known multiple-stage booster using only the easier-to-handle solid fuel.

Young Scout Tells Of Ordeal On Raft

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—Terry McClelland, the blond Boy Scout who survived three days aboard a flimsy raft in the Pacific after seeing his two companions die, was released from the naval hospital here Saturday in good condition.

Terry, 14, was met at the hospital by his mother, Verna, who said he would return to his home in Huntington Beach, Calif., for some rest.

Terry was rescued from the raft Friday by a fishing boat 90 miles southwest of San Diego. He boarded the raft Tuesday along with his step-grandfather, Russell Bradford, 48, of Huntington Beach, and Alvin Hartman, 57, of Santa Ana, Calif.

Terry was transferred from the fishing boat to a submarine and taken to San Diego where he was met by his mother and rushed to the hospital.

Terry told of his ordeal when the submarine reached San Diego.

"The sea anchor was pulling heavy on the boat and it ripped the bottom out," the muscular youth said. He and the two men jumped overboard and clung to the raft.

"We saw ships going by on the first day, and I put a life jacket on a pole and waved it," he said, "but none of them saw us." He recalled that more ships passed on the second day.

"On the third day, Al started going crazy. Then grandpa started going crazy, too," he recalled as he sat with his mother on a hospital stretcher on the pier.

"Don't leave me here alone, grandpa," he said. "Grandpa kept screaming and yelling."

Terry said he fell asleep and the men were dead when he awoke. He lashed their bodies to the raft, but that of Bradford slipped into the sea and was lost.

The men died on the second day.

Terry told reporters he took six slices of salami when he boarded the raft.

"We ate it the second day," he said. The youth lost nine pounds during the ordeal, doctors said.

The boy, whose mother said he was deeply religious, said he plans a religious life.

Gibbs Asks Repeal Of Welfare Law

Rep. Lawrence Gibbs Saturday called for the repeal of one section of Act 90 of the recent legislature which would return funds paid at charity hospitals to the the state general fund.

He also urged Gov. Jimmie H. Davis to have Welfare Commissioner Mary Evelyn Parker restore cuts in old age assistance checks which have been made under the provisions of the act.

Gibbs has been the leader to stop the state from cutting welfare checks to implement medical assistance for the aged. He has contended that the aid can be added without cuts in old age assistance.

Gibbs statement yesterday said:

STATEMENT

"I would first like to thank the many citizens throughout Louisiana who have written me, called me by telephone, talked to me on the streets, in my home and their places of business, expressing their confidence in me and their continued support to have all of the benefits restored to our senior citizens and unfortunate people who are recipients of our welfare program.

"I appreciate Commissioner Parker writing me a letter recently expressing her desire to cooperate with me in the restoration of these benefits to our senior citizens.

"Also, I would like to thank Gov. Davis for his public expression in stating his desire to have all these benefits restored. As stated previously, I do not feel it proper or right for the state of Louisiana to make a revenue out of the misery of our old folks.

"With Welfare Commissioner Parker's willingness, along with Gov. Davis, to cooperate with me, I feel that all of this can be cleared up immediately and the plan which I offered in the recent session of the legislature will be adopted during this most unfortunate situation.

"Act 90, section 2113, of the 1961 legislature, setting up charges for services by state hospitals, should be repealed. This portion of the bill provides for the revenue measure at the expense of the sick and aged people of our state.

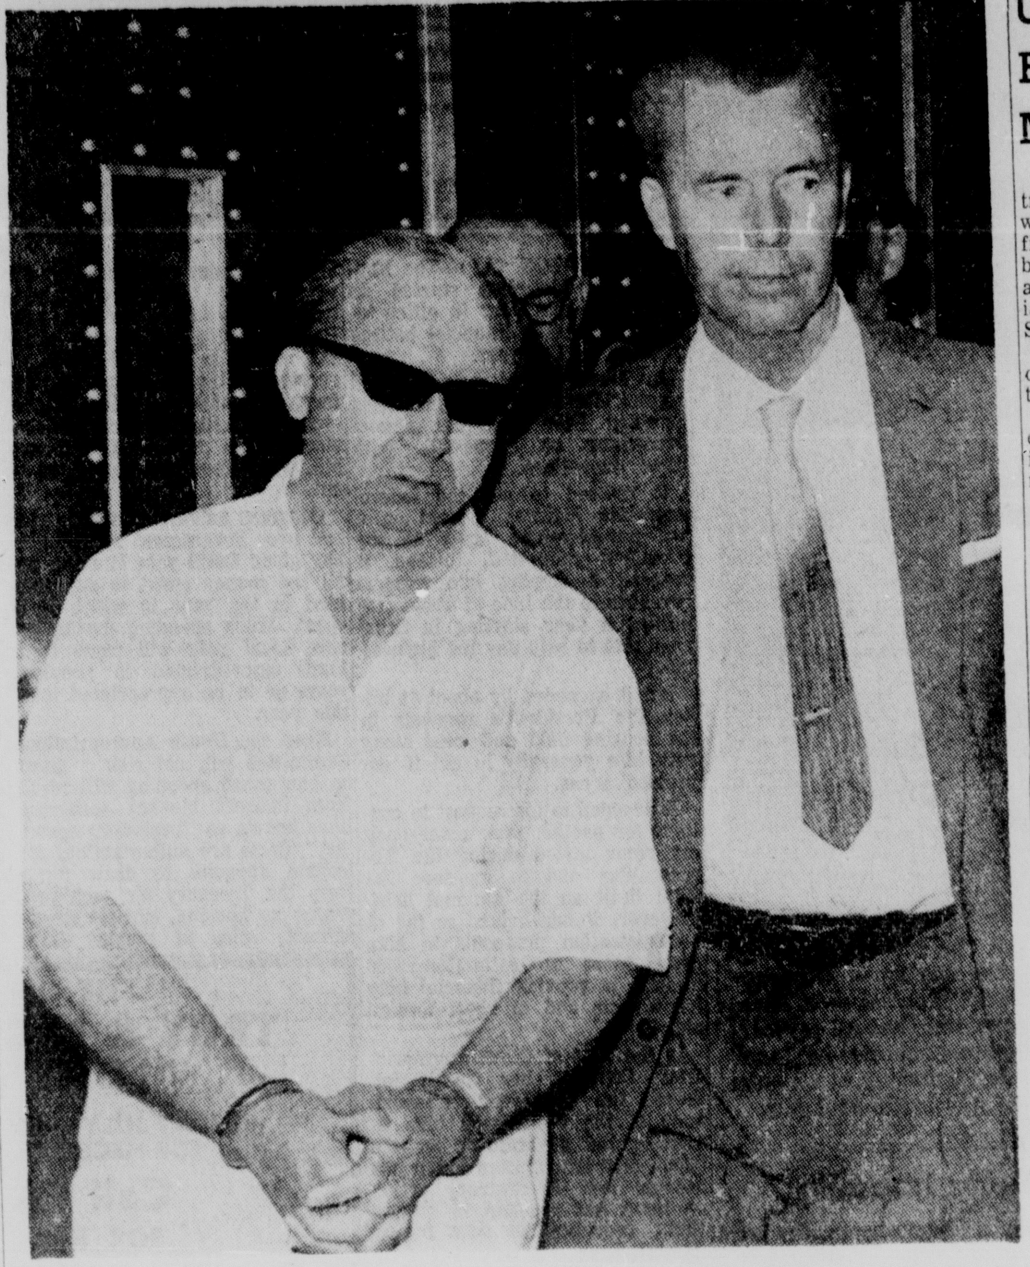
"To be specific this section states all funds received from fees paid under the provision of this section on behalf of patients shall be paid into the general fund."

"It is also my wish that Gov. Davis advise Mrs. Parker to restore the funds from checks which may have already been cut prior to his announcement.

"Again I wish to thank the many people who have taken their time to advise and counsel with me."

VEHICLE DEATHS DROP

CHICAGO (UPI)—Motor vehicle deaths per miles traveled during the first five months of the year dropped to an all-time low, the National Safety Council has reported.



EX-GAMBLER Mickey Cohen, leaves federal court with Deputy U.S. Marshal Charles W. Ross, after he was sentenced to 15-years in prison and fined $30,000 on income tax evasion Sunday. It was the same kind of charge which sent him to prison for 3½ years in the early 50's. Cohen, 47, could have gotten as much as 32-years in prison and a $65,000 fine. (AP Wirephoto)

Gospel Music School Set Here Monday

A three - week gospel music school will be held in the new air - conditioned United Penecostal Church beginning Monday July 10 at 9 a.m.

Rev. E. W. Caughron is pastor of the church, located on Montgomery Street, West Monroe.

Both morning and night classes will be held each Monday through Friday. Morning classes will be from 9 a.m. to 11:45 a.m. Night classes will be held from 7:30 until 9 p.m.

Subjects taught in the school will be voice, piano, harmony, sight reading, song directing, teory, teachers and quartet training. There will be no tuition charge. Those desiring may attend both day and night clsases free of charge.

An inter - demoninatoinal school, whose wishing to attend from another church may do so.

The school is sponsored by gospel singers as well as business and professional men from Ouachita Parish.

Professor Otis Deaton, composer of many gospel songs and with 35 years of teaching experience, will do the general class teaching. Mrs. Robert Vaughan, who has studied with voice teaches in New York, Chicago and other cities, will teach voice.

Cecil Pollock, who has been an accompanist for quartets such as the Rangers and Stamps, will teach piano.

Children as well as adults are invited to attend the school.

Trial Postponed In Slaying Case

LONDON (UPI)—The trial of three men charged in the death of a Knoxville, Tenn., airman here has been postponed until July 28.

The trial for the June 6 knife-slaying of Stanley Thurman Roach, 22, a weapons mechanic at the U. S. Air Force Base at Wethersfield, began Friday. He was stabbed in a street brawl while on a pass with two other airmen.

Prosecutor Philip Radcliffe said Roach was stabbed in a brawl which "apparently started for no reason at all."

Accused in Roach's death were Daniel Attard, 22, a native of Malta, Andreas Xanthous, 20, and Xanthos Zacharia, both Greek Cypriots living here.

U.S. Will Test Equipment For Manned Orbit

WASHINGTON (AP) — The tracking and communications network that will link America's first man in orbit with earth will be tested late this summer wih a 100-pound satellite, the civilian space agency announced Saturday.

It will provide a realistic test of the recently completed 16-station Mercury tracking network.

The satellite, to be called Mercury-Scout I, will be launched into an orbit approximately 300 miles high. It will travel in the same path the first manned orbitbe tested late this summer with ing Mercury will follow.

Into the test satellite will be placed transmitting and receiving equipment identical to that being used in the Mercury spacecraft.

BUSINESS IN SOUTH

Effects Of Race Incidents Slight

ATLANTA (AP) — Racial troubles have dulled the jingle of some cash registers in the South, but have brought little or no losses to many areas.

That is the consensus of an Associated Press survey of tourism, prospective industries, investments and other fields in nine states. Estimates of the impact conflict sharply from area to area, however, and even within a single state some reports very considerably.

The manager of a leading New Orleans hotel, Seymour Weiss, said racial incidents have adversely affected the tourist trade and convention business. Hotel occupancy is probably less than it's been in 20 years, Weiss added.

He noted that many "Freedom Riders" have named New Orleans as their ultimate destination (via Jackson, Miss.) and that rourists say they do not want to run into a mob situation similar to the recent one in Montgomery, Ala.

Glen Douthit, executive director of the Greater New Orleans Tourist and Convention Commission, said this, however:

"I don't believe the tourist business has suffered any substantial amount from racial troubles. Most of the motel people say they are doing well."

A spokesman for the mayor's office said:

"The recession clouds the issue. Tourism started falling off in New Orleans long before school trouble, sit-ins and freedom rides."

In Arkansas, where racial violence has been sporadic and generally isolated to a small area at a time, most sources report no ill effect remains. Little Rock, the scene of anti-integration riots in 1957 and closed schools for a year, is having no trouble with investments.

Six new shopping centers have been built since the crisis, and vast new subdivisions and office buildings have gone up. Tourism also is reported on a rising cycle. Some visitors now include a trip to Central High School on their Little Rock itinerary, to see the once-embattled scene.

Gov. Orval Faubus, who touched off Little Rock's integration troubles by blocking Central High with National Guardsmen, has always argued that the ensuing trouble did not hurt the state industrially. He noted that while Little Rock had an industrial drought, industries continued to locate in other Arkansas communities during the trouble period.

In Atlanta, executive vice president Walter Cates of the State Chamber of Commerce said he did not know how many, if any, firms decided not to come to Georgia because of racial tensions. But Cates said that although his guess is there have been few such decisions, there undoubtedly have been some.

Such decisions, he noted, usually are made in secrecy and the reasons never announced because of public relations and sales considerations.

"But if a company has economic justification for locating a plant in Georgia they will build it notwithstanding social unrest," Cates added.

"Within the past 12 months we have lost five national groups that had booked conventions in Atlanta. In each case they developed bi-racial memberships that didn't exist when they booked," he said.

Crawford estimated the conventions, although not large, would have brought $226,000 to the city. Atlanta cannot seek "at least 25 per cent of the national convention market because of segregation, primarily in housing and eating facilities," he said.

"This isn't a new situation, but in the past several years it has become intensified as more groups accept Negroes."

Optimism was voiced by Tom Blake, general manager of the Chamber of Commerce of Montgomery, where riots greeted Freedom Riders in May.

The trouble has had no effect on the economy so far, and none is expected, he said, but "this publicity certainly doesn't help us."

A different view was expressed by a spokesman for the Alabama Department of Revenue when asked about possible tax losses. He said there has been some impact—especially in the Montgomery area—but the extent is not known yet.

The Birmingham Committee of 100, a private group that works toward getting new businesses for the Alabama city, conceded the racial question was raised by one prospective industry recently.

But Chairman Charles Slant said that on a trip to New York he talked to about 40 industrial prospects and none mentioned the racial issue. Birmingham also had riots when Freedom Riders arrived.

In Mississippi, one of the focal points for the Freedom Rides, all reports indicate racial troubles have had little effect on business in general or the tourist field.

Set Construction Of Health Unit

COLUMBIA (Special) — Construction is expected to begin immediately on a new Caldwell Parish Health Unit to be located next door to City Hall here.

The work will be done by Harry Carpenter, Monroe contractor, who submitted a low bid of $31,500 which was accepted by the police jury subject to approval of the State Board of Hospitals.

CHAMPIONSHIP BOAT races featuring the world's fastest boats and driven by record breaking drivers will be held on the Ouachita River today in the area where the new bridge is being built. The event is under the sponsorship of the Ouachita Boat Club and is free to the public. It has been suggested that spectators can get the most advantageous view from atop the levee either on the Monroe or West Monroe side. Race officials have requested that all privately owned boat rigs be anchored by 11:30 a.m. Racers will begin testing at 12 noon and the first race will begin at 1 p.m.

Girl Scout News

Girl Scout day camp begins tomorrow, Monday, with campers slated to assemble on school spots shortly before 8 a.m. Each is to bring her own lunch and a drinking cup.

The bus trip to camp is part of the fun, with singing and chatter to while away the time. This will be a brand new experience for the forty third - graders who have just started in Brownie Scouting and are old enough for their first camp. Of course, there are new faces among older girls, but about three-fourths of the campers are veterans of one to six seasons.

Since Independence Day falls during camp, it will be the occasion for special events, a "Scout's Own" prepared by the program aides and an opening flag ceremony of more - than - usual significance.

First essential for a good camp is the volunteer staff, adults who believe in a creative, adventurous opportunity for girls. Too much credit cannot be given to those who make camp possible. We'll give their names later. Another group is the program aides, also volunteers, most of them Senior Scouts who have grown up enjoying Scout camping and are now ready to share their skills with younger girls.

The most fun at camp, girls say, is setting up a unit, their own home-in-the-woods, for ten days. Each unit is comprised of girls about the same age, with leaders and program aides. The group decides most of its own program and carries it out, joining with the entire camp for opening flag ceremonies and closing campfires. Progressive program begins with simple outdoor skills and continues through primitive camping experiences for girls 13-14.

Camp activities are as unlike in-town fun as possible. Lunches hang from a line between trees, cups are kept on a cup tree. Handwashing is in a basin on a lashed tripod. Soap is tied to a tree on a string to keep it from falling on the ground. An ice water cooler in each unit is a popular place in hot weather. Each girl brings a sit-upon, and boards make seats for campfire.

Campers will get to hear first-hand from the Mississippi Mermaid trippers. They returned Thursday and most of them will be in camp Monday.

Cotton Conditions In Delta Improve

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI)—Cotton conditions in the Mississippi delta have improved considerably the past few days, the State Employment Security Commission said Saturday.

A few grass problems remain, the commission said.

FIRST FULL FISCAL YEAR BEGINS

JFK Has High Congress Financial Batting Average

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Kennedy administration started its first full fiscal year in office today with a high financial batting average in Congress.

In the fields of spending and appropriations, the President has obtained from Congress almost everything he requested, with some exceptions.

It refused to put the federal interstate highway system on a full pay-as-you-go basis as the President requested. Instead, it ordered a dipping into general revenues to the tune of about $150 million a year starting in fiscal year 1963 to help pay the highway bill.

But it exceeded by about $1 billion the President's requests in the housing field and went along with him generally in aid to depressed areas.

It acceded to his request to continue for another year emergency tax rates levied during the Korean War and to increase the legal limit on the national debt. However, it has balked so far at administration proposals to hike postal rates an estimated $750 million, to provide financial help for schools and to boost foreign aid.

In the field of direct appropriations, Congress has closely followed the President, although none of the big money bills financing the government for the fiscal year that started today has become law. Preliminary action on them has resulted in only a slight reduction in new money requested.

Only the House has acted on the defense appropriation bill, biggest money measure of the year. After taking bookkeeping transactions into account, the House voted a cut of only about $6.5 million in the $42.9 billion requested by the President for military programs exclusive of foreign aid. Neither branch has considered the foreign aid money bill, which is almost certain to be cut.

Congress actually has little control over government spending in any given fiscal year because not all the money spent is appropriated in the year in which it is spent. Much spending during the new fiscal year will come from funds appropriated in previous years or to be appropriated later this year.

Even the House Appropriations Committee will not risk a guess on how much spending will result from indirect blanket authorizations known as "back-doro spending." These are authorizations for federal agencies to draw funds from the Treasury for such programs as housing, airport development, sales of surplus farm commodities, highway construction and housing loans to veterans. Many of them require no direct appropriations.

The current outlook is that President Kennedy's fiscal programs will be followed fairly closely by Congress during its present session.

These provide for spending $84.9 billion during the new fiscal year, receiving revenues of $81.4 billion and winding up on June 30, 1962, with a deficit of more than $3.5 billion. This comparies with an estimated deficit of close to $3 billion for the year just ended.

The figures could vary if Congress changes its present position and decides to boost postal rates. The breadth and depth of the business recovery also are imponderables in the 1962 deficit outlook.

BUSINESS IN SOUTH

Effects Of Race Incidents Slight

ATLANTA (AP) — Racial troubles have dulled the jingle of some cash registers in the South, but have brought little or no losses to many areas.

That is the consensus of an Associated Press survey of tourism, prospective industries, investments and other fields in nine states. Estimates of the impact conflict sharply from area to area, however, and even within a single state some reports very considerably.

The manager of a leading New Orleans hotel, Seymour Weiss, said racial incidents have adversely affected the tourist trade and convention business. Hotel occupancy is probably less than it's been in 20 years, Weiss added.

He noted that many "Freedom Riders" have named New Orleans as their ultimate destination (via Jackson, Miss.) and that rourists say they do not want to run into a mob situation similar to the recent one in Montgomery, Ala.

Glen Douthit, executive director of the Greater New Orleans Tourist and Convention Commission, said this, however:

"I don't believe the tourist business has suffered any substantial amount from racial troubles. Most of the motel people say they are doing well."

A spokesman for the mayor's office said:

"The recession clouds the issue. Tourism started falling off in New Orleans long before school trouble, sit-ins and freedom rides."

In Arkansas, where racial violence has been sporadic and generally isolated to a small area at a time, most sources report no ill effect remains. Little Rock, the scene of anti-integration riots in 1957 and closed schools for a year, is having no trouble with investments.

Six new shopping centers have been built since the crisis, and vast new subdivisions and office buildings have gone up. Tourism also is reported on a rising cycle. Some visitors now include a trip to Central High School on their Little Rock itinerary, to see the once-embattled scene.

Gov. Orval Faubus, who touched off Little Rock's integration troubles by blocking Central High with National Guardsmen, has always argued that the ensuing trouble did not hurt the state industrially. He noted that while Little Rock had an industrial drought, industries continued to locate in other Arkansas communities during the trouble period.

In Atlanta, executive vice president Walter Cates of the State Chamber of Commerce said he did not know how many, if any, firms decided not to come to Georgia because of racial tensions. But Cates said that although his guess is there have been few such decisions, there undoubtedly have been some.

Such decisions, he noted, usually are made in secrecy and the reasons never announced because of public relations and sales considerations.

"But if a company has economic justification for locating a plant in Georgia they will build it notwithstanding social unrest," Cates added.

"Within the past 12 months we have lost five national groups that had booked conventions in Atlanta. In each case they developed bi-racial memberships that didn't exist when they booked," he said.

Crawford estimated the conventions, although not large, would have brought $236,000 to the city. Atlanta cannot seek "at least 25 per cent of the national convention market because of segrgeation, primarily in housing and eating facilities," he said.

"This isn't a new situation, but in the past several years it has become intensified as more groups accept Negroes."

Optimism was voiced by Tom Blake, general manager of the Chamber of Commerce of Montgomery, where riots greeted Freedom Riders in May.

The trouble has had no effect on the economy so far, and none is expected, he said, but "this publicity certainly doesn't help us."

A different view was expressed by a spokesman for the Alabama Department of Revenue when asked about possible tax losses. He said there has been some impact—especially in the Montgomery area—but the extent is not known yet.

The Birmingham Committee of 100, a private group that works toward getting new businesses for the Alabama city, conceded the racial question was raised by one prospective industry recently.

But Chairman Charles Slant said that on a trip to New York he talked to about 40 industrial prospects and none mentioned the racial issue. Birmingham also had riots when Freedom Riders arrived.

In Mississippi, one of the focal points for the Freedom Rides, all reports indicate racial troubles have had little effect on business in general or the tourist field.

Set Construction Of Health Unit

COLUMBIA (Special) — Construction is expected to begin immediately on a new Caldwell Parish Health Unit to be located next door to City Hall here.

The work will be done by Harry Carpenter, Monroe contractor, who submitted a low bid of $31,560 which was accepted by the police jury subject to approval of the State Board of Hospitals.

CHAMPIONSHIP BOAT races featuring the world's fastest boats and driven by record breaking drivers will be held on the Ouachita River today in the area where the new bridge is being built. The event is under the sponsorship of the Ouachita Boat Club and is free to the public. It has been suggested that spectators can get the most advantageous view from atop the levee either on the Monroe or West Monroe side. Race officials have requested that all privately owned boat rigs be anchored by 11:30 a.m. Racers will begin testing at 12 noon and the first race will begin at 1 p.m.

Girl Scout News

Girl Scout day camp begins tomorrow, Monday, with campers slated to assemble on school spots shortly before 8 a.m. Each is to bring her own lunch and a drinking cup.

The bus trip to camp is part of the fun, with singing and chatter to while away the time. This will be a brand new experience for the forty third - graders who have just started in Brownie Scouting and are old enough for their first camp. Of course, there are new faces among older girls, but about three-fourths of the campers are veterans of one to six seasons.

Since Independence Day falls during camp, it will be the occasion for special events, a "Scout's Own" prepared by the program aides and an opening flag ceremony of more - than - usual significance.

First essential for a good camp is the volunteer staff, adults who believe in a creative, adventurous opportunity for girls. Too much credit cannot be given to those who make camp possible. We'll give their names later. Another group is the program aides, also volunteers, most of them Senior Scouts who have grown up enjoying Scout camping and are now ready to share their skills with younger girls.

The most fun at camp, girls say, is setting up a unit, their own home-in-the-woods, for ten days. Each unit is comprised of girls about the same age, with leaders and program aides. The group decides most of its own program and carries it out, joining with the entire camp for opening flag ceremonies and closing campfires. Progressive program begins with simple outdoor skills and continues through primitive camping experiences for girls 13-14.

Camp activities are as unlike in-town fun as possible. Lunches hang from a line between trees, cups are kept on a cup tree. Handwashing is in a basin on a lashed tripod. Soap is tied to a tree on a string to keep it from falling on the ground. An ice water cooler in each unit is a popular place in hot weather. Each girl brings a sit-upon, and boards make seats for campfire.

Campers will get to hear firsthand from the Mississippi Mermaid trippers. They returned Thursday and most of them will be in camp Monday.

Cotton Conditions In Delta Improve

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI)—Cotton conditions in the Mississippi delta have improved considerably the past few days, the State Employment Security Commission said Saturday.

A few grass problems remain, the commission said.

FIRST FULL FISCAL YEAR BEGINS

JFK Has High Congress Financial Batting Average

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Kennedy administration started its first full fiscal year in office today with a high financial batting average in Congress.

In the fields of spending and appropriations, the President has obtained from Congress almost everything he requested, with some exceptions.

It refused to put the federal interstate highway system on a full pay-as-you-go basis as the President requested. Instead, it ordered a dipping into general revenues to the tune of about $150 million a year starting in fiscal year 1963 to help pay the highway bill.

But it exceeded by about $1 billion the President's requests in the housing field and went along with him generally in aid to depressed areas.

It acceded to his request to continue for another year emergency tax rates levied during the Korean War and to increase the legal limit on the national debt. However, it has balked so far at administration proposals to hike postal rates an estimated $750 million, to provide financial help for schools and to boost foreign aid.

In the field of direct appropriations, Congress has closely followed the President, although none of the big money bills financing the government for the fiscal year that started today has become law. Preliminary action on them has resulted in only a slight reduction in new money requested.

Only the House has acted on the defense appropriation bill, biggest money measure of the year. After taking bookkeeping transactions into account, the House voted a cut of only about $6.5 million in the $42.9 billion requested by the President for military programs exclusive of foreign aid. Neither branch has considered the foreign aid money bill, which is almost certain to be cut.

Congress actually has little control over government spending in any given fiscal year because not all the money spent is appropriated in the year in which it is spent. Much spending during the new fiscal year will come from funds appropriated in previous years or to be appropriated later this year.

Even the House Appropriations Committee will not risk a guess on how much spending will result from indirect blanket authorizations known as "back-doro spending." These are authorizations for federal agencies to draw funds from the Treasury for such programs as housing, airport development, sales of surplus farm commodities, highway construction and housing loans to veterans. Many of them require no direct appropriations.

The current outlook is that President Kennedy's fiscal programs will be followed fairly closely by Congress during its present session.

These provide for spending $84.9 billion during the new fiscal year, receiving revenues of $81.4 billion and winding up on June 30, 1962, with a deficit of more than $3.5 billion. This comparies with an estimated deficit of close to $3 billion for the year just ended.

The figures could vary if Congress changes its present position and decides to boost postal rates. The breadth and depth of the business recovery also are imponderables in the 1962 deficit outlook.

Monroyan In Retirement

Productive Years

A. C. Martin With Beagle Hounds

Boredom has been a foe of many persons in their retirement years, but it is no problem for 78-year-old A. C. Martin of 601 Richardson Ave., Monroe.

He retired six years ago after 49 years in railroad work, but his days are filled with productive activity.

A trip to his home will make this fact evident. Over a space of about one and one-half lots, is a beautiful garden of tall corn, beans, prolific blackberry vines and many other things.

The rows between the vegetables are clean of grass or weeds, and plants are thriving. Martin does all of the garden work himself. Most years he has worked the earth with a "push plow," but this year he used a combination of mule-power plus some "push plowing," he said.

KEEPS BUSY

A garden project like this, with heavy demands for physical exertion would seem like a good excuse for spending some mornings or afternoons napping. But Martin doesn't spend his waking hours in idleness.

His days start early — at 4:30 a.m. But he doesn't actually get out to gardening until after 6 a.m., he said.

"I stay awake all day, no naps," he said. "I do all the exercise I can during the day. But I go to bed with the chickens."

He explained that he meant that he went to bed around sundown.

The productive fruits of his works are indicated by three blackberry vines which are trained on a fence about 30 feet long. The vines range from one end of the fence to a point about three or four feet behond the corner of the structure.

At last mid-week he said that he had harvested and sold 17 gallons of berries from the vines this season, in addition to what he had picked for home use. And the vines were still heavily laden wtih fruit.

He said that he set out the vines about 10 years ago. He described the variety as the "Wonder Berry."

Martin moved with his family to Monroe in 1923 from Decatur, Ala., where he had been a fireman on the L and N Railroad for nine years. From that time until retirement he worked in the Missouri - Pacific Railroad Shop in Monroe.

CHANGES

Speaking of the changes in the Monroe scene since that time, Martin said, "When we came here in 1923 we moved on Pine and North 5th. And the land from there toward the swimming pool (at Forsythe Park) was all in cotton. Now its built up solidly in houses."

He served as a fireman back in the days when steam engines were heavy users of coal. It was a strenuous job.

"You didn't see much of the countryside when you were firing with coal," he said. "It's not like now when you sit up and watch the train run."

He has lived at his present address for 19 years, and has been raising gardens for many years. His father was a farmer.

Martin was born in Dallas, Texas, and his family moved to Tennessee when he was seven weeks old. He lived there until he was about nine years old, when his family moved to Alabama.

Highways and modes of travel have changed greatly since Martin's early years. In his childhood horses and mules were the prime motivation powers in farming operations. And horse - drawn wagons and buggies were the vehicles of the road.

Roads, however, often were not so good.

BOGGY

"The roads were muddy and boggy and you could hardly get out and walk anywhere," he recalled.

He has a good variety of vegetables and fruits in his garden. Besides blackberries and corn, there are purple hull peas, pole beans, okra, tomatoes, squash, strawberries and grapes.

Two grape vines have about two bushels of green fruit on them. He applies 8-8-8 fertilizer on the garden and keeps grass and weeds chopped out.

In addition to gardening he used to raise chickens.

In winter time when there is less to do around the place, Martin sometimes goes rabbit hunting. He has three beagle hounds, one old one and two young ones which he keeps for hunting purposes.

He and his wife have two sons and daughters. The sons are Paul Martin, of West Monroe, executive sports editor of the News-Star—World, and Aldin "Butch" Martin, also of West Monroe.

The daughters who reside in Monroe are Mrs. Frances Chaney and Mrs. Eunita Walker.

Happy Partners

EDITOR'S NOTE—Happy partners in the monumental task of writing and winning approval for the Declaration of Independence, John Adams and Thomas Jefferson saw their friendship shattered on the rocks of politics. But in the twilight of their lives, mutual admiration restored the breach and provided history with a memorable series of letters.

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
Associated Press Staff Writer

History is full of coincidences but none more striking or quite so appropriate as that of July 4, 1826.

Circumstance was to enshrine it forever as our most memorable Independence Day celebration.

On that day, the American republic was half a century old.

And on that day, exactly 50 years to the day after they affixed their signatures to the Declaration of Independence, both John Adams and Thomas Jefferson died.

"Could they have chosen the day of their death," said Joseph Sprague in a memorial oration a few days later at Salem, Mass., "it would have been the one decreed by Providence."

As indeed it would, for both the day and the declaration it commemorated were largely their handiwork.

On Adams' insistence, Jefferson had been chosen to author the declaration. Although vastly different in temperament and background, the portly Yankee and the courtly Virginian had hit it off together right from the start of the second Continental Congress.

"He seemed so prompt, frank, explicit and decisive," said Adams of his younger colleague, "that he soon seized upon my heart."

Adams, for his part, not only handled the declaration masterfully on the floor of the Congress, pushing it through with impassioned oratory, but was the first to propose that the Fourth of July be celebrated ever after as the birthday of liberty.

Jefferson could say of him, "No man's confident and fervent addresses, more than Adams', encouraged and supported us through the difficulties surrounding us, which like the ceaseless action of gravity weighed on us by night and day."

So it came to pass through a marvelous quirk of coincidence that both the Sage of Monticello and the Colossus of Independence, as they playfully called each other, died within hours of each other in the midst of the young nation's exciting jubilee celebration.

Everywhere in the land, even in the two new states west of the Mississippi, bands played, militia companies marched and citizens gathered at the nearest picnic grove to enjoy the patriotic speeches, the cold beer and basket lunches, and the glorious firework displays that have since become a fixed part of our national birthday observance.

Confined to bed at Monticello, his mountain-top home in Albemarle County, Va., Jefferson feared his swiftly waning strength would not permit him to last until the great day. Shortly after midnight he awoke to ask, "Is it the fourth yet?" He died at one o'clock that afternoon at the age of 83.

Adams succumbed four hours later in his cluttered farmhouse at Quincy, Mass., at 90, his mind was agile as ever. Unaware of Jefferson's death, his last words were for his old friend and longtime political rival: "Thomas Jefferson still survives!"

Both Adams and Jefferson died secure in the knowledge that the nation they had helped to found now numbered 24 states, had more than tripled in population since those uncertain days in Philadelphia and, in effect, now stretched from sea to sea through agreement with England over joint occupation of the Oregon territory.

Both died with the consolation of knowing that their early friendship, formed in Philadelphia and strengthened in the diplomatic service of their country, but somehow lost in the bitterness of party politics and presidential rivalries, had at last been restored.

In the winter of their lives these two old protagonists, one from the North, the other from the South, had put aside their differences to engage in a long and affectionate correspondence on theories of government, progress of liberty throughout the world and, most dear to them of all, the state of the Union they had labored so long to establish.

The 109 letters that Adams wrote to Jefferson and the 49 letters that Jefferson wrote to Adams in the last 16 years of their eventful lives are more than just the idle musings of two elder statesmen, two ex-presidents and two last leaves on the revolutionary tree. They are the final testament of two highly educated men, philosophers and statesmen, who had witnessed the struggle for liberty, the birth of a new nation and the growth of factional party politics from highly individualized viewpoints.

"You and I ought not to die, before we have explained ourselves to each other," wrote the second president of the United States to the third president of the United States on July 15, 1913.

Jefferson was more than happy to accept the challenge. He was willing to forgive and forget Adams' refusal to attend his inauguration, his earlier failure to consult with him, as his vice president, on even the most routine matter of state, his "midnight appointments" from "among my most ardent political enemies."

And Adams, at long last, could overlook Jefferson's failure to congratulate him upon his election to the presidency, the slanders heaped on him by pamphleteers in the Democratic Republican party and Jefferson's refusal to reappoint his son, John Quincy Adams, as judge of a bankruptcy court.

So explain themselves to each other they finally did, on a variety of subjects—the French Revolution, relations with England, the slavery question, the nature of God, the nature of the aristocracy, theories of education, their mutual distrust of "priestcraft," their mutual scorn for Plato—without ever once aggravating the old wounds.

"It would be strange indeed," wrote Jefferson, "if at our years we were to go back an age to hunt up imaginary or forgotten facts, to disturb the repose of affections so sweetening to the evening of our lives."

Adams, who as president had sacrificed personal popularity for principle, had long ago resigned himself to being "abjured and abhorred by all parties." But from the depths of his disappointment over not winning a second term, he could still cry out, "How many martyrdoms must I suffer?" and thunder his resentment against Washington, Franklin, Hamilton and Thomas Paine.

Still, the old lion showed a kittenish side in retirement, playfully referring to his farm as "Montezillo" and signing off a letter, "in the 89 years of his age still too fat to last much longer, (signed) John Adams."

Glad to return to a life of science and scholarship, Jefferson tried to steer clear of politics in retirement. "I think little of them and say less. I have given up newspapers in exchange for Tacitus and Thucydides, for Newton and Euclid, and I find myself much happier."

But politics kept popping up. Early in their correspondence they engaged in their famous debate on the nature of the aristocracy, a main article of difference between them.

With no real hope of convincing his old foe—"We are both too old to change opinions which are the result of a long life of inquiry and reflection"—Jefferson, the idealist and humanist, propounded his cherished belief that the people, if left to themselves in free elections, would almost always "elect the real good and wise."

Adams, the puritan and political realist, was not so sure. The blood bath of the French Revolution had taught him to fear the people as much as any tyrant.

"The fundamental article of my political creed," he answered, "is that despotism or unlimited sovereignty or absolute power is the same in a majority of a popular assembly, an aristocratical council, an oligarchical junta and a single emperor. Equally arbitrary, cruel, bloody and in every respect diabolical."

The letters provide a revealing glimpse of two ex-presidents in retirement, constantly bothered by well wishers, favor seekers, interviewers, publishers, tourists and artists and sculptors anxious to capture them for posterity.

"From sunrise to one or two o'clock and often from dinner to dark, I am drudging at the writing table," complained Jefferson, who received more than 1,000 letters a year. In self defense, he invented the swivel chair, the polygraph—a copying machine—and the dumbwaiter, so he could work in the solitude of his study without intrusions by the household staff.

Adams, who wasn't an inventor, had a more direct solution. He either ignored his correspondence or discouraged any extension of it with "gruff, short, unintelligible, mysterious, enigmatical or pedantical answers."

Considering their ages, both continued to lead amazingly vigorous lives. Chronic palsy and failing eyesight made it necessary for Adams to dictate his letters and be read to by his family. But at 90, while no longer able to ride a horse, he could still "walk three miles over a rugged rocky mountain."

Jefferson suffered from rheumatism and increasing deafness, but all through his 70s he rode horseback every day and, by 80, still managed to mount "Eagle" for periodic trips to the University of Virginia, which he was in the process of founding and designing.

Modern Times Come To Ranch

TUSTIN, Calif. (AP)—A blonde with the vigor of the California 49ers and about as much gold is helping change an historic 93,000-acre ranch into sprawling suburbia a freeway hop from bustling Los Angeles.

She's Joan Irvine Burt, Junoesque 27-year-old with beauty, brains, millions of dollars and a fierce devotion to the picturesque Irvine Ranch her great-grandfather founded almost a century ago—possibly the largest undeveloped tract in an urban area in the nation.

A study in contrasts, the thrice-married heiress is a mother, corporation executive, big-game hunter, society belle, yachtswoman and in many ways a run-of-suburbia housewife.

She can talk Paris fashions at a Pasadena society ball as demurely as any sub-deb or give a crusty ranch wrangler lessons in cattle branding. She loves a good fight.

Last December she won a frequently bitter, three-year battle with fellow Irvine Company directors for a master development plan for the sleepy ranch that has remained virtually intact since the days of the Spanish dons.

"I want the ranch to keep pace with progress in California," said Mrs. Burt, whose 20 per cent of the company's stock is valued at more than $20 million, "the ranch must meet changing times."

The plan calls for a complete urban complex for the rolling ranchland that covers one-fifth of Orange County and runs from the mountains to the Pacific Ocean. This plan includes a golf course, recreationl beach facilities, hotels, homes, entire cities and 1,000 acres for a proposed campus of the University of California.

Droughts, depressions and California's World War II land boom have failed to change the ranch that great-grandfather James Irvine and three other San Francisco businessmen welded from three old Spanish land grants in the 1860s. In an era of burgeoning cities, freeways and tract homes, the ranch just 40 miles south of Los Angeles is a nostalgic reminder of the bygone days of rancheros and early settlers.

On quiet hillsides overlooking chaotic freeways bask rows of orange and lemon trees. Below the high-pitched whine of flying jets graze cattle and sheep as they did almost a century ago. Still untouched by picnic basket invaders is eight miles of cove-studded coastline between the resorts of Newport Beach and Laguna Beach.

Tanned, athletic Mrs. Burt looks like a field and stream version of Monaco's Grace Kelly. But her scrimmages with fellow Irvine Company directors have been anything but princess-like.

One of her first demands when she became one of the company's seven directors in 1957 was for a pay raise for ranch employes, especially low-income field workers.

The fledgling executive brought in her own attorneys and accountants for a check of the books. She told one official to resign, or else. He resigned.

Moving toward a showdown a year ago she sent a letter to then-company President A. J. McFadden and released it to the press.

It read in part:

"More than two years ago, I pleaded with the board to authorize a master plan for the urban development of our Orange County properties.

"My request was rejected.

"In the absence of a master plan, conversion of company's lands for urban development is presently being accomplished in helter-skelter manner, without rhyme or reason.

"And this is the time when the nation's leading businessmen and land planners keep stressing that the company's 93,000 acres in Orange County—the only such urban acreage under single ownership in the country today—offer an unparalleled and golden opportunity in the creation of new and lasting standards of community development.

"Either give the company the vigorous and alert leadership which is the obligation of the president or step aside."

McFadden, under fire, stepped aside. The board, at the young heiress' urging, approved the master plan and brought in former Secretary of the Navy Charles S. Thomas as company president to help execute it.

Oldtimers compare the tenacious Mrs. Burt to her grandfather, James Irvine, son of the founder who ran the ranch until his death in 1947.

"He always had a swarm of dogs around," she recalled. "When eating, he'd throw them bones from the table just to watch them skid and scramble across the bare floor. No one could tell him that the bones lacerated the poor animals' stomachs."

Like her grandfather, Mrs. Burt loves the land, loves to hunt and fish. When she married her second husband, they spent a honeymoon of several months flying and hunting in South America.

Her first husband, Charles Swinden, was a lifeguard in nearby Laguna Beach. Her second, Russ Penniman, was a lanky, dashing pilot just out of the Navy. Her present husband, contractor Richard Burt, is the son of a Laguna Beach dry cleaner.

She has two children, one by Swinden and the other by Penniman. She lives with Burt in Emerald Bay, a chic development just north of Laguna Beach.

What would her grandfather think of her plan to change the hills and dales of the celebrated ranch into homes and cities?

"I don't know," said Mrs. Burt, thoughtfully. "But he made it possible by keeping the land in our piece."

Man Of Many Successes

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A financier, an attorney, a movie and television producer, a piano player, a song writer, an orchestra leader, a music arranger, a music publisher, a personal manager for top entertainers. . .

That sounds like at least a half dozen people but it's the success story of one man — and a young man at that.

At the age of 40, Charles Z. Wick has tackled all these jobs and he's made good at them. And he says he's still learning. When he tackles a new job he reads whatever material is available on it and sometimes takes university courses.

"I've been a winner up to now," he says cautiously, "but I always say — up to now."

Wick is modest about his accomplishments but he's not modest in a sticky way. He's a down-to-earth guy, articulate and uninhibited.

His latest venture is movie production. He's vice president of Crawford Productions, Inc. — a company he formed with singer Frances Langford and her husband, Ralph Evinrude, the outboard motor magnate.

Wick's fist production was a $3.5 million job for 20th Century-Fox — "Show White and the Three Stoges." (He started at the top in this field.)

Born in Cleveland, Ohio, Wick was a kid who showed an early aptitude for music and for making money. A piano player, he formed his own orchestra while in high school and later played with adult professional orchestra. He made a little side money writing songs and special arrangements for Fred Waring.

He went on to the University of Michigan, keeping up with his his music work and doing arrangements for Tommy Dorsey as well as Waring.

He got his Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Music degrees at Michigan and then went to Western Reserve University law school in Cleveland and was admitted to the Ohio Bar in 1943.

In mid-1944, Wick accepted an offer to become manager of the West Coast band department of the William Morris Agency. After five years he decided to go back to full-time law practice and passed the California bar examination in 1949.

But his clients wouldn't let him devote himself strictly to law business and he became personal manager for Miss Langford, Jon Hall, Ken Murray, Horace Heidt, Andy Russell and Pinky Lee among other entertainers.

Wick migrated to New York in December, 1949, to plunge into television activity. He was executive producer of the James Melton program and the Arthur Murray show. Actress Sarah Churchill became a client and he met her father Sir Winston and handled negotiations for publication of "a history of the English speaking peoples."

A. C. Martin With Beagle Hounds

Productive Years

Boredom has been a foe of many persons in their retirement years, but it is no problem for 78-year-old A. C. Martin of 601 Richardson Ave., Monroe.

He retired six years ago after 49 years in railroad work, but his days are filled with productive activity.

A trip to his home will make this fact evident. Over a space of about one and one-half lots, is a beautiful garden of tall corn, beans, prolific blackberry vines and many other things.

The rows between the vegetables are clean of grass or weeds, and plants are thriving. Martin does all of the garden work himself. Most years he has worked the earth with a "push plow," but this year he used a combination of mule-power plus some "push plowing," he said.

KEEPS BUSY

A garden project like this, with heavy demands for physical exertion would seem like a good excuse for spending some mornings or afternoons napping. But Martin doesn't spend his waking hours in idleness.

His days start early — at 4:30 a.m. But he doesn't actually get out to gardening until after 6 a.m., he said.

"I stay awake all day, no naps," he said. "I do all the exercise I can during the day. But I go to bed with the chickens."

He explained that he meant that he went to bed around sundown.

The productive fruits of his works are indicated by three blackberry vines which are trained on a fence about 30 feet long. The vines range from one end of the fence to a point about three or four feet behond the corner of the structure.

At last mid-week he said that he had harvested and sold 17 gallons of berries from the vines this season, in addition to what he had picked for home use. And the vines were still heavily laden wtih fruit.

He said that he set out the vines about 10 years ago. He described the variety as the "Wonder Berry."

Martin moved with his family to Monroe in 1923 from Decatur, Ala., where he had been a fireman on the L and N Railroad for nine years. From that time until retirement he worked in the Missouri - Pacific Railroad Shop in Monroe.

CHANGES

Speaking of the changes in the Monroe scene since that time, Martin said, "When we came here in 1923 we moved on Pine and North 5th. And the land from there toward the swimming pool (at Forsythe Park) was all in cotton. Now its built up solidly in houses."

He served as a fireman back in the days when steam engines were heavy users of coal. It was a strenuous job.

"You didn't see much of the countryside when you were firing with coal," he said. "It's not like now when you sit up and watch the train run."

He has lived at his present address for 19 years, and has been raising gardens for many years. His father was a farmer.

Martin was born in Dallas, Texas, and his family moved to Tennessee when he was seven weeks old. He lived there until he was about nine years old, when his family moved to Alabama.

Highways and modes of travel have changed greatly since Martin's early years. In his childhood horses and mules were the prime motivation powers in farming operations. And horse - drawn wagons and buggies were the vehicles of the road.

Roads, however, often were not so good.

BOGGY

"The roads were muddy and boggy and you could hardly get out and walk anywhere," he recalled.

He has a good variety of vegetables and fruits in his garden. Besides blackberries and corn, there are purple hull peas, pole beans, okra, tomatoes, squash, strawberries and grapes.

Two grape vines have about two bushels of green fruit on them. He applies 8-8-8 fertilizer on the garden and keeps grass and weeds chopped out.

In addition to gardening he used to raise chickens.

In winter time when there is less to do around the place, Martin sometimes goes rabbit hunting. He has three beagle hounds, one old one and two young ones which he keeps for hunting purposes.

He and his wife have two sons and daughters. The sons are Paul Martin, of West Monroe, executive sports editor of the News-Star—World, and Aldin "Butch" Martin, also of West Monroe.

The daughters who reside in Monroe are Mrs. Frances Chaney and Mrs. Eunita Walker.

In Independence

Happy Partners

EDITOR'S NOTE—Happy partners in the monumental task of writing and winning approval for the Declaration of Independence, John Adams and Thomas Jefferson saw their friendship shattered on the rocks of politics. But in the twilight of their lives, mutual admiration restored the breach and provided history with a memorable series of letters.

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
Associated Press Staff Writer

History is full of coincidences but none more striking or quite so appropriate as that of July 4, 1826.

Circumstance was to enshrine it forever as our most memorable Independence Day celebration.

On that day, the American republic was half a century old.

And on that day,, exactly 50 years to the day after they affixed their signatures to the Declaration of Independence, both John Adams and Thomas Jefferson died.

"Could they have chosen the day of their death," said Joseph Sprague in a memorial oration a few days later at Salem, Mass., "it would have been the one decreed by Providence."

As indeed it would, for both the day and the declaration it commemorated were largely their handiwork.

On Adams' insistence, Jefferson had been chosen to author the declaration. Although vastly different in temperament and background, the portly Yankee and the courtly Virginian had hit it off together right from the start of the second Continental Congress.

"He seemed so prompt, frank, explicit and decisive," said Adams of his younger colleague, "that he soon seized upon my heart."

Adams, for his part, not only handled the declaration masterfully on the floor of the Congress, pushing it through with impassioned oratory, but was the first to propose that the Fourth of July be celebrated ever after as the birthday of liberty.

Jefferson could say of him, "No man's confident and fervent addresses, more than Adams', encouraged and supported us through the difficulties surrounding us, which like the ceaseless action of gravity weighed on us by night and day."

So it came to pass through a marvelous quirk of coincidence that both the Sage of Monticello and the Colossus of Independence, as they playfully called each other, died within hours of each other in the midst of the young nation's exciting jubilee celebration.

Everywhere in the land, even in the two new states west of the Mississippi, bands played, militia companies marched and citizens gathered at the nearest picnic grove to enjoy the patriotic speeches, the cold beer and basket lunches, and the glorious firework displays that have since become a fixed part of our national birthday observance.

Confined to bed at Monticello, his mountain-top home in Albemarle County, Va., Jefferson feared his swiftly waning strength would not permit him to last until the great day. Shortly after midnight he awoke to ask, "Is it the fourth yet?" He died at one o'clock that afternoon at the age of 83.

Adams succumbed four hours later in his cluttered farmhouse at Quincy, Mass., at 90, his mind was agile as ever. Unaware of Jefferson's death, his last words were for his old friend and long-time political rival: "Thomas Jefferson still survives!"

Both Adams and Jefferson died secure in the knowledge that the nation they had helped to found now numbered 24 states, had more than tripled in population since those uncertain days in Philadelphia and, in effect, now stretched from sea to sea through agreement with England over joint occupation of the Oregon territory.

Both died with the consolation of knowing that their early friendship, formed in Philadelphia and strengthened in the diplomatic service of their country, but somehow lost in the bitterness of party politics and presidential rivalries, had at last been restored.

In the winter of their lives these two old protagonists, one from the North, the other from the South, had put aside their differences to engage in a long and affectionate correspondence on theories of government, progress of liberty throughout the world and, most dear to them of all, the state of the Union they had labored so long to establish.

The 109 letters that Adams wrote to Jefferson and the 49 letters that Jefferson wrote to Adams in the last 16 years of their eventful lives are more than just the idle musings of two elder statesmen, two ex-presidents and two last leaves on the revolutionary tree. They are the final testament of two highly educated men, philosophers and statesmen, who had witnessed the struggle for liberty, the birth of a new nation and the growth of factional party politics from highly individualized viewpoints.

"You and I ought not to die, before we have explained ourselves to each other," wrote the second president of the United States to the third president of the United States on July 15, 1913.

Jefferson was more than happy to accept the challenge. He was willing to forgive and forget Adams' refusal to attend his inauguration, his earlier failure to consult with him, as his vice president, on even the most routine matter of state, his "midnight appointments" from "among my most ardent political enemies."

And Adams, at long last, could overlook Jefferson's failure to congratulate him upon his election to the presidency, the slanders heaped on him by pamphleteers in the Democratic Republican party and Jefferson's refusal to reappoint his son, John Quincy Adams, as judge of a bankruptcy court.

So explain themselves to each other they finally did, on a variety of subjects—the French Revolution, relations with England, the slavery question, the nature of God, the nature of the aristocracy,, theories of education, their mutual distrust of "priestcraft," their mutual scorn for Plato—without ever once aggravating the old wounds.

"It would be strange indeed," wrote Jefferson, "if at our years we were to go back an age to hunt up imaginary or forgotten facts, to disturb the repose of affections so sweetening to the evening of our lives."

Adams, who as president had sacrificed personal popularity for principle, had long ago resigned himself to being "abjured and abhorred by all parties." But from the depths of his disappointment over not winning a second term, he could still cry out, "How many martyrdoms must I suffer?" and thunder his resentment against Washington, Franklin, Hamilton and Thomas Paine.

Still, the old lion showed a kittenish side in retirement, playfully referring to his farm as "Montezello" and signing off a letter, "in the 89 years of his age still too fat to last much longer, (signed) John Adams."

Glad to return to a life of science and scholarship, Jefferson tried to steer clear of politics in retirement. "I think little of them and say less. I have given up newspapers in exchange for Tacitus and Thucydides, for Newton and Euclid, and I find myself much happier."

But politics kept popping up. Early in their correspondence they engaged in their famous debate on the nature of the aristocracy, a main article of difference between them.

With no real hope of convincing his old foe—"We are both too old to change opinions which are the result of a long life of inquiry and reflection" — Jefferson, the idealist and humanist, propounded his cherished belief that the people, if left to themselves in free elections, would almost always "elect the real good and wise."

Adams, the puritan and political realist, was not so sure. The blood bath of the French Revolution had taught him to fear the people as much as any tyrant.

"The fundamental article of my political creed," he answered, "is that despotism or unlimited sovereignty or absolute power is the same in a majority of a popular assembly, an aristocratical council, an oligarchical junta and a single emperor. Equally arbitrary, cruel, bloody and in every respect diabolical."

The letters provide a revealing glimpse of two ex-presidents in retirement, constantly bothered by well wishers, favor seekers, interviewers, publishers, tourists and artists and sculptors anxious to capture them for posterity.

"From sunrise to one or two o'clock and often from dinner to dark, I am drudging at the writing table," complained Jefferson, who received more than 1,000 letters a year. In self defense, he invented the swivel chair, the polygraph — a copying machine— and the dumbwaiter, so he could work in the solitude of his study without intrusions by the household staff.

Adams, who wasn't an inventor, had a more direct solution. He either ignored his correspondence or discouraged any extension of it with "gruff, short, unintelligible, mysterious, enigmatical or pedantical answers."

Considering their ages, both continued to lead amazingly vigorous lives. Chronic palsy and failing eyesight made it necessary for Adams to dictate his letters and be read to by his family. But at 90, while no longer able to ride a horse, he could still "walk three miles over a rugged rocky mountain."

Jefferson suffered from rheumatism and increasing deafness, but all through his 70s he rode horseback every day and, by 80, still managed to mount "Eagle" for periodic trips to the University of Virginia, which he was in the process of founding and designing.

Modern Times Come To Ranch

TUSTIN, Calif. (AP)—A blonde with the vigor of the California 49ers and about as much gold is helping change an historic 93,000-acre ranch into sprawling suburbia a freeway hop from bustling Los Angeles.

She's Joan Irvine Burt, Junoesque 27-year-old with beauty, brains, millions of dollars and a fierce devotion to the picturesque Irvine Ranch her great-grandfather founded almost a century ago—possibly the largest undeveloped tract in an urban area in the nation.

A study in contrasts, the thrice-married heiress is a mother, corporation executive, big-game hunter, society belle, yachtswoman and in many ways a run-of-suburbia housewife.

She can talk Paris fashions at a Pasadena society ball as demurely as any sub-deb or give a crusty ranch wrangler lessons in cattle branding. She loves a good fight.

Last December she won a frequently bitter, three-year battle with fellow Irvine Company directors for a master development plan for the sleepy ranch that has remained virtually intact since the days of the Spanish dons.

"I want the ranch to keep pace with progress in California," said Mrs. Burt, whose 20 per cent of the company's stock is valued at more than $20 million. "the ranch must meet changing times."

The plan calls for a complete urban complex for the rolling ranchland that covers one-fifth of Orange County and runs from the mountains to the Pacific Ocean. This plan includes a golf course, recreationl beach facilities, hotels, homes, entire cities and 1,000 acres for a proposed campus of the University of California.

Droughts, depressions and California's World War II land boom have failed to change the ranch that great-grandfather James Irvine and three other San Francisco businessmen welded from three old Spanish land grants in the 1860s. In an era of burgeoning cities, freeways and tract homes, the ranch just 40 miles south of Los Angeles is a mostalgic reminder of the bygone days of rancheros and early settlers.

On quiet hillsides overlooking chaotic freeways bask rows of orange and lemon trees. Below the high-pitched whine of flying jets graze cattle and sheep as they did almost a century ago. Still untouched by picnic basket invaders is eight miles of cove-studded coastline between the resorts of Newport Beach and Laguna Beach.

Tanned, athletic Mrs. Burt looks like a field and stream version of Monaco's Grace Kelly. But her scrimmages with fellow Irvine Company directors have been anything but princess-like.

One of her first demands when she became one of the company's seven directors in 1957 was for a pay raise for ranch employes, especially low-income field workers.

The fledgling executive brought in her own attorneys and accountants for a check of the books. She told one official to resign, or else. He resigned.

Moving toward a showdown a year ago she sent a letter to then-company President A. J. McFadden and released it to the press.

It read in part:

"More than two years ago, I pleaded with the board to authorize a master plan for the urban development of our Orange County properties.

"My request was rejected.

"In the absence of a master plan, conversion of company's lands for urban development is presently being accomplished in helter-skelter manner, without rhyme or reason.

"And this is the time when the nation's leading businessmen and land planners keep stressing that the company's 93,000 acres in Orange County—the only such urban acreage under single ownership in the country today—offer an unparalleled and golden opportunity in the creation of new and lasting standards of community development.

"Either give the company the vigorous and alert leadership which is the obligation of the president or step aside."

McFadden, under fire, stepped aside. The board, at the young heiress' urging, approved the master plan and brought in former Secretary of the Navy Charles S. Thomas as company president to help execute it.

Oldtimers compare the tenacious Mrs. Burt to her grandfather, James Irvine, son of the founder who ran the ranch until his death in 1947.

"He always had a swarm of dogs around," she recalled. "When eating, he'd throw them bones from the table just to watch them skid and scramble across the bare floor. No one could tell him that the bones lacerated the poor animals' stomachs."

Like her grandfather, Mrs. Burt loves the land, loves to hunt and fish. When she married her second husband, they spent a honeymoon of several months flying and hunting in South America.

Her first husband, Charles Swinden, was a lifeguard in nearby Laguna Beach. Her second, Russ Penniman, was a lanky, dashing pilot just out of the Navy. Her present husband, contractor Richard Burt, is the son of a Laguna Beach dry cleaner.

She has two children, one by Swinden and the other by Penniman. She lives with Burt in Emerald Bay, a chic development just north of Laguna Beach.

What would her grandfather think of her plan to change the hills and dales of the celebrated ranch into homes and cities?

"I don't know," said Mrs. Burt, thoughtfully. "But he made it possible by keeping the land in our piece."

Man Of Many Successes

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A financier, an attorney, a movie and television producer, a piano player, a song writer, an orchestra leader, a music arranger, a music publisher, a personal manager for top entertainers. . .

That sounds like at least a half dozen people but it's the success story of one man — and a young man at that.

At the age of 40, Charles Z. Wick has tackled all these jobs and he's made good at them. And he says he's still learning. When he tackles a new job he reads whatever material is available on it and sometimes takes university courses.

"I've been a winner up to now," he says cautiously, "but I always say — up to now."

Wick is modest about his accomplishments but he's not modest in a sticky way. He's a down-to-earth guy, articulate and uninhibited.

Drivers Too Sleepy

Recently released figures on the causes of fatal accidents on super-highways show an astonishing situation. Facts thus disclosed may contain information which will prove more than an ounce of prevention for those planning Fourth of July trips, if they will heed them. Thirty per cent of the fatal accidents occuring on the Pennsylvania turnpike during the last 10 years were directly caused by drivers who apparently fell asleep!

Thus, we find nearly one-third of all traffic deaths on that highway caused by operators who were too sleepy to drive safely. This should be overwhelming proof to motorists that they should not drive for such long periods, that they are badly in need of sleep and that they should not drive when they are sleepy from other causes.

Undoubtedly, the percentage of persons killed when drivers go to sleep is far greater on super-highways than on ordinary highways. The facts that there is so little traffic interference, that there is no need to stop for lights and that the smooth ribbon of road seems so completely safe tend to lull the driver into a state of complacency which encourages sleep. Even so, the fact that almost one-third of these deaths are caused by sleeping drivers suggests that the drivers themselves should do something about it.

An analysis of the accidents by the Pennsylvania Medical Society's commission on public health found the following to be the principal contributing causes:

Forty per cent were caused by excessive speeding beyond the driver's ability to control his car. Seventy per cent of the accidents in this group occurred in daylight when the weather was fair and the road dry, indicating irresponsibility and indifference to safety on the part of the drivers.

Another factor was the intoxication of drivers or drivers who apparently were under the influence of tranquilizers, benzedrine, anti-histamines or other drugs which may have hampered alertness and ability to operate and control a car.

Inattentiveness while driving also appeared to be a big factor. This included reaching toward the back seat for a package of cigarettes or some other object, hitting at a wasp in the car, lighting a cigarette or cigar in the car, changing the dial on the radio, thereby taking his eyes off the road and traffic for too long a period, and driving with only one hand on the steering wheel.

One thing about driving on super-highways that may comfort those who are always afraid of the "other driver" is that most of the accidents on these highways involve only one vehicle and the driver who loses control has only himself to blame. As an example, anyone driving on the new interstate highway 20, on the sections completed between Monroe and Shreveport, is practically undisturbed by other drivers. The highway is divided into two strips, traffic on one traveling in one direction and on the other in the other direction. Thus, there is virtually no possibility for a headon collision and there is no reason not to pass a car from behind for fear of meeting another vehicle. Furthermore, the highway is generally straight and there are no steep hills so that the view far ahead is good all the time.

It is on highways such as these that people are more inclined to go to sleep or to become careless.

Remember, when you start out on your Fourth of July trip and are traveling on a super-highway, not to drive while you are sleepy, or the fine highway probably will lull you into slumber, and not to battle any wasps inside the car or to reach over into the back seat. If you want to fight the wasp or get something out of the back seat, drive over to the space at the side that is provided and stop.

If you have an accident on a super-highway, the chances are you can't blame "those other crazy drivers."

Some One's Boasting

An optimistic note was sounded by President Kennedy when he commented on the claim of Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev that Russia will catch up with United States production by 1970. Our president asserted that what Khrushchev said amounted to plain boasting. Kennedy expressed the belief that Russia could not equal the United States in production during the 20th century.

President Kennedy replied with some sarcasm, at his news conference, to Khrushchev's assertion that America is a tired runner in the race for progress and that the Soviet Union will soon be No. 1.

Khrushchev, the president stated, is a tiger hunter who has picked the place on the wall for a tiger skin long before he has shot the tiger.

President Kennedy's optimism is commendable and we hope it is true. That, of course, remains to be seen and proved.

We do know that if a fellow picks a place on the wall for the skin of the tiger he plans to kill he is a lot more likely to kill the tiger than if he merely dreamed of going hunting.

This is the thing we have to fear from Russia—its constant determination to beat us not only in production but in everything else, including "burying" us.

Figures submitted by Kennedy, however, tend to show that Khrushchev is doing a lot of wishful thinking.

Kennedy said Russia's total production, in terms of money value of all goods and services produced, was only 29 per cent of the U.S. output of 1959.

U.S. growth, he continued, will be "far easier to sustain" than Russian growth, which starts on a lower base.

A growth of 4½ per cent a year is "well within our capability," Kennedy said, and added that if it can be maintained the Soviet stands small chance of becoming No. 1.

"It is my judgment that the Soviet Union will not out-produce the United States any time in the 20th century. This country not only can maintain its productive development, but its freedom," the president continued.

It is to be hoped that the president meant not only freedom from Russian dominance over this country but freedom within its borders as well. Our internal freedom is as important as our freedom from other nations.

President Kennedy and members of the congress should remember that the superiority of the United States in production capacity was built up during a time of little government interference, with free enterprise at its height.

Only by that same business and industrial independence can we maintain our superiority over Russia in the matter of production. That same independence can thwart Russia's hope of conquering us.

Allied Corridors To West Berlin Ringed With Warheads Capable Of Knocking Down Fastest Bombers

They have ringed the German metropolis with numerous ground-to-air missiles — comparable to the U.S. Army's Nike-Ajax, that carries a nuclear warhead and can knock the biggest and fastest bomber out of the air at upwards of 70,000 feet.

(1) The Reds' ring of ground-to-air missiles strikes directly at Allied plans to supply West Berlin by airlift in the event ground routes are barricaded. Virtually all contingency plans for the defense of the city contemplate an airlift. But with the Communists' newly-installed ground-to-air missiles they are now in a position to also blockade the Allies' three air corridors to West Berlin.

(2) Largely offsets an outstanding Air Force achievement in perfecting equipment that would prevent the Reds from making these air corridors unusable by radar jamming. The Communists had planned to do that by installing extensive jamming devices. That is now ineffectual as a result of the Air Force's remarkable new equipment.

But the ring of ground-to-air missiles is a grimly different story.

That was ominously demonstrated by East German anti-aircraft units several weeks ago. They staged a series of target firings near the Allied air corridor that links West Berlin with Hamburg.

These announced practice firings were no hazard to that corridor. But they could readily be made so by slight shifts in range.

And the same applies to the other two Allied air corridors. All three can be speedily zeroed in by the Reds' deadly ring of ground-to-air missiles that are manned around the clock.

The Joint Chiefs of Staff have submitted certain proposals for dealing with this new menace to General Maxwell Taylor, the President's new military assistant who is coordinating preparations for coping with a Berlin showdown. Taylor will probably go there shortly for an on-the-spot survey.

WHAT MAKES DICTATORS? — Senator J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., chairman of the influential Foreign Relations Committee, raised a startling question about military aid during a closed-door hearing on the President's $4.8 billion foreign aid bill.

Defense Secretary McNamara and General Lyman Lemnitzer, head of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, were testifying in favor of the huge measure and Fulbright asked them:

"It is true that three of the countries which have received the largest amount of military aid outside of Europe, have had military coups which have supplanted civilian governments and are now under what might be called 'military dictatorships.' These three countries are Turkey, Pakistan and South Korea."

"Yes, that is correct," said General Lemnitzer.

"Then is there any relation," continued Fulbright, "between the volume of our military assistance and what happened in these countries? In other words, did our military aid induce or help these military take-overs?"

For a long moment, there was a deep silence in the committee room. Then Lemnitzer spoke up.

"I definitely do not think there is any relationship. I believe there were conditions in these countries which made the individuals involved feel they were doing the right thing. For example, in Pakistan, I think every authority will agree that under the leadership of President Ayub Khan, tremendous advances have been made since he took over. There were very pronounced political and economic reasons for his doing that."

Secretary McNamara heartily seconded this contention.

"I would like to note several other points," he declared. "First, the military forces in these countries would have been powerful without our military aid. That is, powerful in relation to the other sources of power in those countries. Second, in Pakistan, the present regime is more democratically oriented than the previous political regime. Finally, if we had not provided military assistance to these three countries, there would have been economic and political chaos in which the only alternative would have been dictatorships of other types, including Communist."

Noting that the two Pentagon leaders had not mentioned Korea, Senator Fulbright stated his committee was disturbed by recent dictatorship developments there.

"We have a report which states that American military aid corrupted Korea almost as much as it helped that country," said Fulbright. "What about that?"

"I cannot conceive of that," asserted McNamara. "I do not believe that our military aid corrupted Korea in any sense of the word. By that I do not mean there has not been mismanagement. That is now being corrected. However, I feel this report overemphasizes the corruption aspect."

"I would be the last to say there isn't some corruption in Korea," added General Lemnitzer. "But I agree wholly with Secretary McNamara that it is greatly exaggerated in the report before you. I think we can be proud of the results achieved in Korea. We kept that country from going behind the Iron Curtain."

"Would you comment on this statement in the report," asked Fulbright, reading as follows: "'The revolt was in a sense a revolt against Korean girls standing outside Army billets to sell their bodies to servicemen, hence the junta's drive against prostitution and dance halls, and the ban on the sale of foreign cigarettes and whisky.' Would you say that was an accurate statement of conditions?"

"There may be a certain amount of validity to that statement," admitted Lemnitzer. "But it is miniscule compared to the main objectives of the revolution as I understand them. The Korean army wanted to tighten up the security of the country, and to strengthen its overall defenses and stability."

Red China Seat

Some Planners In State Department Come Up With Scheme

It is being planned by some very astute planners in the State Department to get Red China into the General Assembly of the United Nations. Actually, there have been discussions with some other countries about the prospect of working out a Two Chinas scheme at the next session of the United Nations.

The astute planners do not expect Red China to accept what to Mao Tse-tung would be an ignominious position. Red China wants China's permanent seat on the Security Council which would give to Red China the power of the veto. It is very doubtful if Red China will settle for less. Certainly Mao Tse-tung would not agree to be limited to the General Assembly while Chiang Kai-shek's representative sits on the Security Council.

The scheme then is for the western powers to make this proposition to Red China; that Red China will inevitably reject the offer; that it will please India and the neutrals that the offer was made to Red China; it will leave Soviet Russia without an excuse for quarrelling over this issue; it would give Red China a bad reputation because Red China rejected the offer.

Of course, the Nationalist Chinese government on Formosa would lose face and its position throughout Asia would be reduced to a nullity. This does not bother the schemers who feel that they are important planners of mankind's future. They feel that Formosa ought to be happy that Red China is caught in a trap.

There is a tale of a great rabbi who travelled about delivering sermons on what is right and what is wrong. Men came from far and near to listen to the rabbi. One day, in a very small synagogue in a very small town, the rabbi was telling the towns-people what they should do and how they should live and everybody wondered at the enormous scholarship and the noble character of the rabbi. However, there was a shoemaker in the very back seat, the shoemaker being regarded as an ignorant man who did not know this or that. Nevertheless, the shoemaker rose and said that he wanted to ask a question. The congregation was in consternation. How dared a lowly shoemaker deign to ask the great rabbi a question? It was demanded that he sit down. The rabbi insisted that the shoemaker ask his question.

The shoemaker said:

"I am an ignorant man who cannot read and cannot write and has never been to a school. Nevertheless, I have lived long and seen much. Therefore, I want to ask, 'Suppose it is just the opposite?'"

"My son, suppose what is just the opposite?"

"How should I know?" answered the shoemaker. "I am ignorant. Nevertheless I ask, suppose everything is just the opposite?"

I could not help thinking of this story as the work of the State Department geniuses unfolded itself. What would happen to all this scheming and plotting and planning if Red China did accept a seat in the General Assembly, ignoring the loss of face of not having the permanent seat on the Security Council? What would happen if Marshal Chen Yi or Premier Chou En-lai came to the United Nations to turn the General Assembly into a brawl?

To the Editor:

Well, Eleanor and Walter and Milton, are you satisfied? Your stupid attempt to supply our enemies with tractors has apparently fallen through. Could the reason for the delay be that Castro is mulling over the idea of asking that you ship 50 per cent of the machines direct to Peking?

Would you, President John Kennedy, answer one question for us? U. A. Johnson, representing the United States, Wang Ping-Nan, a Chinese Communist, have met nearly one hundred times to discuss the release of AMERICAN soldiers still held prisoner since the Korean war. If you had to condone this unbelievably silly plan concocted by a "private" committee, why in the name of Pete didn't you suggest that we offer tractors for the release of our own men.

Why don't we just send a couple of thousand tractors to Moscow each month, so that every time the Communist decide to "snatch" a few more lovers of freedom, a few more people that believe in Almighty God, we could have them set free immediately.

We must demand now, by letter and by wire, by phone AND BY VOTE, that our elected officials in Washington stand up and be counted. We just cannot afford to be natives any longer. We must be citizens.

Judges Do It All

Winnsboro, La.

To the Editor:

According to the newspapers, there have been quite a few federal judges appointed by the President during the past few months.

It looks like the way things are going now that we are going to need them. We, the people of the southern states, do not need a governor any more; we have federal judges. We do not need attorney generals any more, we have federal judges. We do not need a school board any more; we have federal judges. We do not need our senators and representatives to send to our capitol cities to make laws for us any more, we have federal judges. We do not have states' rights any more, we have federal judges. We do not have majority rule any more, we have minority rule. We do not have a Constitution any more, we have Communists.

If a farmer of the southern states wants to change labor on his farm, he needs a federal judge handy so he can stick his head under his arm and ask if he can make the change. We have dictators and agitators. In fact, we have the whole "[illegible]" family at work in Washington.

Fear not the Communists that are without, but rather fear them that are within.

Congress Our Hope

Senator Russell Long,
Washington, D. C.

Dear Senator:

The minimum wage bill, the aged medical care bill, the Cuban fiasco, the Laos fiasco, the give-away housing bill, the give-away foreign aid bill, the federal aid school bill, the communistic farm bill, the pampering of the communistic freedom riders, the acceptance of an Earl Warren, Hugo Black and others on our Supreme branch, the following of left wing labor leaders as advisers to our president and, in fact, the Kennedys in general, are being viewed very closely by all intelligent people, both old and young, because they see their very freedom and livelihood being bought from them with their own money.

Our last and only hope is for our Congress to come to life and stop this ambitious wasteful government, to take a stand to save America, to invade Cuba and destroy Castro's communism, to meet communism head-on any place in the world, to stop our government from taking the role of the coward, because the American people are not cowards. The American people are thinking and their thoughts are bringing them to a realization of the grave danger that we are in. They know that the road that we are traveling is the road to almost slavery under the guise of some ism, and all isms lead to one end, which is slavery.

If what the people I talk to in the states that I travel, which are Texas, Arkansas, Tennessee, Alabama, Mississippi, Florida and Louisiana, have to say is true, I believe we are going to see lots of new faces in the halls of Congress and in the Senate. I believe that the Democratic Party is going down to infamous defeat from the presidency on down.

The glamour of the "New Deal," the "Fair Deal" is gone. What we need is an American deal. We as a party have catered to the left wingers, the minority groups, the left wing labor group, the dole receivers and, in general, the groups that do not truly represent the patriotic Americans and, truly, we have them all. But you know, I firmly believe if the south Texas vote and the Cook County, Illinois vote had been counted honestly we would not have had enough of our groups to elect a Kennedy, and God knows I would not have been proud of a Nixon.

Why don't we look for a real American to represent us as president next time, and I hope there is a next time. When a young man has to look for security instead of adventure in creating his own security, then I say we of our generation have failed. When the economy is so screwed up by our government that the small farmer has had to leave the farm; when the young, ambitious farmer cannot farm because he cannot plant cotton, tobacco, rice, wheat, etc., don't you agree that it is time for a change?

When you have a government that is anti-everything that the individual has always done for himself, when a government embarks on a program of taking the people's wealth away from them and redistributing half of what they take from them to the dole receivers, then I say if we do not take an about-face and run from the abject slavery that we are drifting into, then I will have to agree with Khrushchev that our grandchildren will be living under an ism.

No red-blooded American wants his grandchildren to be slaves to any government. What this country is crying for is real leadership, and make no mistake they are going to have that leadership, so why don't we wake up while we have time and give the people this leadership. The American people are not cowards. They are crying to have the opportunity of crushing Castro's communism. They are crying to meet communism head-on any place in the world. Give the American people brave leadership and you will have brave followers. We have always been willing to sacrifice everything for our freedom, and we still are. Every time our freedom has been threatened before it was from without our country; today it is within our own government.

When you have a bunch of pinks and punks running our State Department, when you have an Adlai Stevenson running the United Nations, when you have an Earl Warren running our Supreme Court, when you have a Freeman running our Department of Agriculture, when you have a Kefauver conducting Senate hearings to destroy our system of American capitalism, then I say to you gentlemen that it is time we look our hand over carefully and act accordingly, because I can assure you that this hand we are playing is being looked over seriously by the freedom-loving American people that realize what is happening to them, and I believe that in 1962 and I know in 1964 that what I am writing you now will be by far truer in the changeover from new deal-ism to candidates that are for America, candidates that can stand on their own two feet and tell the people this is where we are, so, let's reverse ourselves and save America from our own selves—that your government cannot work out the people's salvation, but the people must work out their own salvation without government interference.

When Americans like Paul Harvey can make an appeal to real Americans, and when the response is so great for copies of that appeal to each station that broadcast his appeal, and when real Americans buy time for such an appeal to be rebroadcast several times, I ask you as our leaders in Congress what more do you need to show you that the program we are pursuing has lost its appeal. Lincoln gave us the true philosophy to be guided by about fooling the people. Why don't we trust the American people again and let them run their own lives and their own government?

I am just one little American without political influence, with a limited amount of knowledge, but I do know people and I can sense their fears of where we are and where we are going. They know this government of ours is sick. They know we are lacking in leadership. They know we are taking a weak-kneed stand against the evil forces all over the world. They know they do not like what they see and hear, and make no mistake they are going to change this situation back to Americanism, the freedom of opportunity without government interference and government subsidy.

This I believe with my whole being, because I do believe my fellow man to be politically honest, give a chance to be, and I know he will fight for his freedom because he always has and always will.

If you have read this, I thank you. If you have not, then I say you are the losers, because I believe this invitation represents the thinking of millions of Americans.

Drivers Too Sleepy

Recently released figures on the causes of fatal accidents on super-highways show an astonishing situation. Facts thus disclosed may contain information which will prove more than an ounce of prevention for those planning Fourth of July trips, if they will heed them. Thirty per cent of the fatal accidents occuring on the Pennsylvania turnpike during the last 10 years were directly caused by drivers who apparently fell asleep!

Thus, we find nearly one-third of all traffic deaths on that highway caused by operators who were too sleepy to drive safely. This should be overwhelming proof to motorists that they should not drive for such long periods, that they are badly in need of sleep and that they should not drive when they are sleepy from other causes.

Undoubtedly, the percentage of persons killed when drivers go to sleep is far greater on super-highways than on ordinary highways. The facts that there is so little traffic interference, that there is no need to stop for lights and that the smooth ribbon of road seems so completely safe tend to lull the driver into a state of complacency which encourages sleep. Even so, the fact that almost one-third of these deaths are caused by sleeping drivers suggests that the drivers themselves should do something about it.

An analysis of the accidents by the Pennsylvania Medical Society's commission on public health found the following to be the principal contributing causes:

Forty per cent were caused by excessive speeding beyond the driver's ability to control his car. Seventy per cent of the accidents in this group occurred in daylight when the weather was fair and the road dry, indicating irresponsibility and indifference to safety on the part of the drivers.

Another factor was the intoxication of drivers or drivers who apparently were under the influence of tranquilizers, benzedrine, anti-histamines or other drugs which may have hampered alertness and ability to operate and control a car.

Inattentiveness while driving also appeared to be a big factor. This included reaching toward the back seat for a package of cigarettes or some other object, hitting at a wasp in the car, lighting a cigarette or cigar in the car, changing the dial on the radio, thereby taking his eyes off the road and traffic for too long a period, and driving with only one hand on the steering wheel.

One thing about driving on super-highways that may comfort those who are always afraid of the "other driver" is that most of the accidents on these highways involve only one vehicle and the driver who loses control has only himself to blame. As an example, anyone driving on the new interstate highway 20, on the sections completed between Monroe and Shreveport, is practically undisturbed by other drivers. The highway is divided into two strips, traffic on one traveling in one direction and on the other in the other direction. Thus, there is virtually no possibility for a headon collision and there is no reason not to pass a car from behind for fear of meeting another vehicle. Furthermore, the highway is generally straight and there are no steep hills so that the view far ahead is good all the time.

It is on highways such as these that people are more inclined to go to sleep or to become careless.

Remember, when you start out on your Fourth of July trip and are traveling on a super-highway, not to drive while you are sleepy, or the fine highway probably will lull you into slumber, and not to battle any wasps inside the car or to reach over into the back seat. If you want to fight the wasp or get something out of the back seat, drive over to the space at the side that is provided and stop.

If you have an accident on a super-highway, the chances are you can't blame "those other crazy drivers."

Some One's Boasting

An optimistic note was sounded by President Kennedy when he commented on the claim of Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev that Russia will catch up with United States production by 1970. Our president asserted that what Khrushchev said amounted to plain boasting. Kennedy expressed the belief that Russia could not equal the United States in production during the 20th century.

President Kennedy replied with some sarcasm, at his news conference, to Khrushchev's assertion that America is a tired runner in the race for progress and that the Soviet Union will soon be No. 1.

Khrushchev, the president stated, is a tiger hunter who has picked the place on the wall for a tiger skin long before he has shot the tiger.

President Kennedy's optimism is commendable and we hope it is true. That, of course, remains to be seen and proved.

We do know that if a fellow picks a place on the wall for the skin of the tiger he plans to kill he is a lot more likely to kill the tiger than if he merely dreamed of going hunting.

This is the thing we have to fear from Russia—its constant determination to beat us not only in production but in everything else, including "buying" us.

Figures submitted by Kennedy, however, tend to show that Khrushchev is doing a lot of wishful thinking.

Kennedy said Russia's total production, in terms of money value of all goods and services produced, was only 39 per cent of the U.S. output of 1959.

U.S. growth, he continued, will be "far easier to sustain" than Russian growth, which starts on a lower base.

A growth of 4½ per cent a year is "well within our capability," Kennedy said, and added that if it can be maintained the Soviet stands small chance of becoming No. 1.

"It is my judgment that the Soviet Union will not out-produce the United States any time in the 20th century. This country not only can maintain its productive development, but its freedom," the president continued.

It is to be hoped that the president meant not only freedom from Russian dominance over this country but freedom within its borders as well. Our internal freedom is as important as our freedom from other nations.

President Kennedy and members of the congress should remember that the superiority of the United States in production capacity was built up during a time of little government interference, with free enterprise at its height.

Only by that same business and industrial independence can we maintain our superiority over Russia in the matter of production. That same independence can thwart Russia's hope of conquering us.

Red Missile Installations

They have ringed the German metropolis with numerous ground-to-air missiles — comparable to the U.S. Army's Nike-Ajax, that carries a nuclear warhead and can knock the biggest and fastest bomber out of the air at upwards of 70,000 feet.

(1) The Reds' ring of ground-to-air missiles strikes directly at Allied plans to supply West Berlin by airlift in the event ground routes are barricaded. Virtually all contingency plans for the defense of the city contemplate an airlift. But with the Communists' newly-installed ground-to-air missiles they are now in a position to also blockade the Allies' three air corridors to West Berlin.

(2) Largely offsets an outstanding Air Force achievement in perfecting equipment that would prevent the Reds from making these air corridors unusable by radar jamming. The Communists had planned to do that by installing extensive jamming devices. That is now ineffectual as a result of the Air Force's remarkable new equipment.

But the ring of ground-to-air missiles is a grimly different story.

That was ominously demonstrated by East German anti-aircraft units several weeks ago. They staged a series of target firings near the Allied air corridor that links West Berlin with Hamburg.

These announced practice firings were no hazard to that corridor. But they could readily be made so by slight shifts in range.

And the same applies to the other two Allied air corridors. All three can be speedily zeroed in by the Reds' deadly ring of ground-to-air missiles that are manned around the clock.

The Joint Chiefs of Staff have submitted certain proposals for dealing with this new menace to General Maxwell Taylor, the President's new military assistant who is coordinating preparations for coping with a Berlin showdown. Taylor will probably go there shortly for an on-the-spot survey.

WHAT MAKES DICTATORS?—Senator J. William Fulbright, D. Ark., chairman of the influential Foreign Relations Committee, raised a startling question about military aid during a closed-door hearing on the President's $4.8 billion foreign aid bill.

Defense Secretary McNamara and General Lyman Lemnitzer, head of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, were testifying in favor of the huge measure and Fulbright asked them:

"It is true that three of the countries which have received the largest amount of military aid, outside of Europe, have had military coups which have supplanted civilian governments and are now under what might be called military dictatorships? These three countries are Turkey, Pakistan and South Korea."

"Yes, that is correct," said General Lemnitzer.

"Then is there any relation," continued Fulbright, "between the volume of our military assistance and what happened in these countries? In other words, did our military aid induce or help these military take-overs?"

For a long moment, there was a deep silence in the committee room. Then Lemnitzer spoke up:

"I definitely do not think there is any relationship. I believe there were conditions in these countries which made the individuals involved feel they were doing the right thing. For example: In Pakistan, I think every authority will agree that under the leadership of President Agub Khan, tremendous advances have been made since he took over. There were very pronounced political and economic reasons for his doing that.

Secretary McNamara heartily seconded this contention.

"I would like to note several other points," he declared. "First the military forces in these countries would have been powerful without our military aid; that is, powerful in relation to the other sources of power in those countries. Second, in Pakistan, the present regime is more democratically oriented than the previous political regime. Finally, if we had not provided military assistance to these three countries, there would have been economic and political chaos in which the only alternative would have been dictatorships of other types, including Communist."

Noting that the two Pentagon leaders had not mentioned Korea, Senator Fulbright stated his committee was disturbed by recent dictatorship developments there.

"We have a report which states that American military aid corrupted Korea almost as much as it helped that country," said Fulbright. "What about that?"

"I cannot conceive of that," asserted McNamara. "I do not believe that our military aid corrupted Korea in any sense of the word. By that I do not mean there has not been mismanagement. That is now being corrected. However, I feel this report overemphasizes the corruption aspect."

"I would be the last to say there isn't some corruption in Korea," added General Lemnitzer. "But I agree wholly with Secretary McNamara that it is greatly exaggerated in the report before you. I think we can be proud of the results achieved in Korea. We kept that country from going behind the Iron Curtain."

"Would you comment on this statement in the report," asked Fulbright, reading as follows: "'The revolt was in a sense a revolt against Korean girls' standing outside Army billets to sell their bodies to servicemen, hence the junta's drive against prostitution and dance halls, and the ban on the sale of foreign cigarettes and whisky.' Would you say that was an accurate statement of conditions?"

"There may be a certain amount of validity to that statement," admitted Lemnitzer. "But it is miniscule compared to the main objectives of the revolution as I understand them. The Korean army wanted to tighten up the security of the country, and to strengthen its overall defenses and stability."

Red China Seat

Some Planners In State Department Come Up With Scheme

It is being planned by some very astute planners in the State Department to get Red China into the General Assembly of the United Nations. Actually, there have been discussions with some other countries about the prospect of working out a Two Chinas scheme at the next session of the United Nations.

The astute planners do not expect Red China to accept what to Mao Tze-tung would be an ignominious position. Red China wants China's permanent seat on the Security Council which would give to Red China the power of the veto. It is very doubtful if Red China will settle for less. Certainly Mao Tze-tung would not agree to be limited to the General Assembly while Chiang Kai-shek's representative sits on the Security Council.

I am just one little American without political influence, with a limited amount of knowledge, but I do know people and I can sense their fears of where we are and where we are going. They know this government of ours is sick; they know we are lacking in leadership; they know we are taking a weak-kneed stand against the evil forces all over the world; they know they do not like what they see and feel, and make no mistake they are going to change this situation back to Americanism, the freedom of opportunity without government interference and government subsidy.

This I believe with my whole being, because I do believe my fellow man to be politically honest, give a chance to be, and I know he will fight for his freedom because he always has and always will.

If you have read this, I thank you. If you have not, then I say you are the losers, because I believe this narration represents the thinking of millions of Americans.

DeWitt Smith.

Union, Missile Program

The following dispatch, written by labor expert Victor Riesel shows one of the big reasons why this country has been lagging in some phases of the missile race. It is time the American people did something about the way unions are strangling this nation.

Here is the dispatch:

It may be later than you think. But what matters what you think compared with what a band of Cape Canaveral labor officials think—the same defiant ones who got in the way of Commander Shepard's space ship. These fellows with a baronial taste for telling off the Pentagon, also, it now develops, got in the way of the vital Pershing Missile. Apparently the Cape Canaveral electrical workers were not in as much of a hurry over Pershing (Series 200), Complex Thirty, as were the Joint Chiefs of Staff a few months back.

The Pershing is an Army ground support missile which can be moved easily by cargo plane or helicopter. The Pentagon wanted Pershing testing "accelerated" late last summer. But the leaders of Local 756, International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, refused to handle special cable which arrived at the base already cut for size and installation.

This cable, it must be noted immediately, was "prefabricated" — cut — by members of another union over in an Orlando, Florida plant where the Martin Co. produces the Pershing. When the electrical workers, members of the local which delayed the work on the US man-in-space shot, refused to install prefabricated Pershing Missile wiring, they were asked why.

Stout fellows, these. They had a ready answer. They had to go "cleaning their yards . . . cleaning their swimming pool . . . and go fishing." They were fired. When the Pentagon contractors tried to get new help from the Local, its leader, Robert Palmer, went into the hiring hall and personally pulled unemployed workers there. Though jobless, the men did not go out on the Orlando assignment. Why?

Government officials later looked into the stalled work. Documents from the National Labor Relations Board examiners and reviewers said that Palmer had "clearly indicated to those in the hiring hall that they should not accept" these jobs.

Palmer's "conduct" was described as "unlawful inducement . . . (and) discouragement of those in the hiring hall from accepting employment . . . (and was) tantamount to a categorical refusal to make a referral" of workers to replace those who were "going fishing" or "cleaning their swimming pool."

A Federal District court finally ordered Palmer and the local to start supplying men. They did—but the government people now tell us that "similar" disputes are "likely to arise in the future." The government states officially that this is an "unresolved conflict" and that the "conduct of the union . . . will be repeated."

This is no penny ante argument. The Martin Co. has contracts worth over $100 million annually for the manufacture of missiles and other materials and the testing and firing of missiles at Cape Canaveral. Any dispute there over who cuts a piece of wire could have impact on how Moscow cuts up the peace.

So here's the background of this war of cables. The Martin Co. produces the Pershing at its Orlando plant. It trucks the missile over to the Cape along with the cables. These cables are part of the electronic control system inside the blockhouse. The wiring also runs to the launching pad and is, in addition, connected to the missile itself. At the Orlando plant this cable is scientifically cut.

Each must be sliced to fit into the "extremely complicated" electrical systems. These cables contain many strands of wire—each of which must be joined to the appropriate pin in a "terminal connector" to set up each circuit for the firing. Each series of tests requires changing in the wiring systems — and new sets of cable. And there's the rub. These cables are prepared in advance at the Orlando plant by members of the United Auto Workers.

Pavement Plato

In case you are in doubt whether or not the girl you are going with is in love with you, read the following. It might give you the answer to the problem.

"Dear Pavement Plato:

"I have been going steady with a girl for three months, and now I am afraid she is losing interest in me. On the other hand, she may just be playing coy.

"How can I tell for sure?"

Worried

Well, my boy, there are many ways. But she probably has no serious interest in you if—

She talks constantly about what she has been doing lately, but never bothers to ask what's new with you.

She remembers the date of the [illegible]

[illegible]

She [illegible] and doesn't bother to pick it up.

She keeps your picture on her dresser, but has the face turned to the wall.

She doesn't get around to giving you your Christmas present until eight weeks after Easter.

She complains about the way you dress.

She doesn't care how many drinks you have at a party.

She'd rather ride in a rumble seat with someone else than take her [illegible] them at the start in a [illegible] with you.

She thinks how [illegible] on other men, but doesn't like them on you.

When you call her on the phone after a mere hour and a half she says, "I'll have to hang up now. I think I smell something burning on the stove."

She pulls her hand out of yours in a movie on the grounds it is getting numb.

When you ask her to lunch, she says, "I can't. I promised I'd eat with my girl friend" and [illegible]

She is always "threatening" to have you over to her place for a [illegible]

[illegible] walk with you in the rain.

She has no desire to meet your mother . . . or your sister . . . or your brother.

She doesn't care particularly whether you like or don't like her new dress.

She is never the first to make up after a quarrel.

If most of these things are true, you'd better shake her off your list before the gate — before she can hand it to you.

Here And There

California GOP Congressman James B. Utt in regard to the [illegible] "In [illegible] President Buchanan [illegible] of war [illegible] in the harbor of New York and [illegible] to Uruguay to extract an apology from that country for killing an American citizen in a [illegible] on the La Plata River. The [illegible] grown stronger or weaker morally and militarily in the last 100 years." We'll let you answer that question.

Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas spoke recently in Washington before the "Seminar on the American Character," sponsored by the "Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions," an offshoot of the notorious Fund for the Republic. Douglas attacked as "offensive" individual [illegible] and private enterprise. Is there anyone surprised?

Democratic Congressman Wayne L. Hays of Ohio walked out of a recent House Foreign Affairs Committee meeting while Undersecretary of State Chester Bowles was testifying, because "He doesn't know anything and I wouldn't believe what he said anyway. And you can quote me on that." We got one small Congressman up there anyway.

Democratic Congressman John A. Blatnik of Minnesota, Chairman of the House Committee to Investigate the Interstate Highway Program, has singlehandedly [illegible] an investigation into Massachusetts road scandals in order to save President Kennedy from embarrassment, according to GOP members of that committee. Florida's William C. Cramer, ranking GOP member of the committee, says "for purely political reasons Blatnik has refused to hold hearings on the Bay State situation, easily the most scandalous of any in the nation." Evidence so far has resulted in the Bureau of Public Roads cutting off all reimbursements to the Massachusetts government. The action was taken a year ago. The evidence was [illegible] by Democrats in the state.

Some Brights —

He who laughs last did not get the joke.

Absently [illegible] [illegible] it.

Living the single life isn't so hard—if you can afford it.

One advantage Adam had—[illegible] could not go home to her mother.

The Insider's Newsletter came up with this: "Drinking may or may not put hair on the chest but heavy-chested men who are inclined to alcohol are apt to wind up with a mess of liver trouble. According to Dr. Mitchell Spellberg of the University of Illinois, the hairless male has a genetic defect which makes him much more susceptible to cirrhosis of the liver than the man with lots of hair on his chest. Most prone to cirrhosis are males with little body hair, tender skin and fingers which taper like a woman's. The hairy man on the other hand is endowed with a biological mechanism which lets him burn up more alcohol with less harm to his body than the hairless tippler."

Federal Big Brother

"If the Department of Justice is right in its contention that the Constitution requires the States to provide public education, George Orwell's "Big Brother" may be coming to live with us after all.

"Although this contention was put forward in response to a court inquiry, it is unlikely, we suppose, that there will be a final Supreme Court ruling embracing the department's view in this instance. For the court, generally speaking, will not break new constitutional ground if the case before it can be decided on some other basis. And this particular case—involving a strictly local decision to close public schools in Louisiana's St. Helena Parish—lends itself to adjudication on other grounds. The mere fact that this novel constitutional claim has been put forward, however, may serve as a portent of things to come.

"The gist of the department's position, as explained by Attorney General Kennedy, is that education for all is an "absolute necessity," and that to deny this to a child is to deprive him of liberty and property under the due process clause of the Fourteenth Amendment. When this amendment was ratified, a number of States did not maintain any kind of public school system.

"If this is a constitutionally sound position, what limit is there to the reach of the Federal authority? If the Federal Government is authorized by the Constitution to decree that education is a necessity, and that the States must provide it, it is a very short step indeed to assumption by the Federal Government of responsibility also to decree what must be taught, by whom it must be taught and how it must be taught. What about such other things as medical care, recreation, decent housing, etc.? To a degree, at least, all of these are necessary, in the Attorney General's words, to equip individuals "to compete with citizens of other States in the struggle for professional and economic achievement." Does the Constitution require the States to provide all of these and other things, as well as education? Does the ultimate power to decide what is and what is not a necessity for the residents of the States reside in the Federal courts? If so, "Big Brother" has taken over in Washington — and much sooner than we anticipated."

10 Commandments For

(1) Read your newspaper every day. Make it a habit.

(2) Don't be headline happy. Heads are just the menu, you have to eat the food to get a complete meal.

(3) Don't be page-one happy, your news may be inside.

(4) Don't be one-subject happy. Sticking only to sports, comics, or crime news is picking up pennies and leaving dollars.

(5) Be a fact-seeker. Get the facts from news columns. Then read the comment of columnists and editorial writers. You may find you're the better thinker.

(6) Read with both eyes. Note qualifying words and also "who says so." Don't take a charge for a conviction, rumor for fact, or plans for accomplishments.

(7) Don't be a reading coward. Don't be afraid to read opinion at complete variance from your own.

(8) Get out of your reading rut. Read at least one thing a day completely apart from your normal interest. It'll give you a mental jog.

(9) Do your shopping at home. You'll find the best buys in the advertising columns of your own newspaper.

(10) Relax and enjoy the fun. There's a lighter side of life and your newspaper covers it. Join in.

JFK Spoils System

From all accounts, the New Frontier has apparently found a way to bypass the Civil Service system and oust Federal career employees in favor of "deserving" Democrats. The Civil Service Commission is supposed to have a Republican as one of its three members, but the GOP seat hasn't been filled by the administration; hence there is no one in authority to protest against inequities concerning Eisenhower era appointees.

One of the many examples of how the New Frontier pursues this spoils system came with the firing of Ralph T. Wills, an executive officer in the Post Office Department since 1953 and a career Federal employee with full Civil Service status. Last year Wills received the Department's meritorious service award. On February 21, Wills received notice that his job was being abolished and that he would be separated from Civil Service March 21 because of a "reduction in force." After leaving, Wills found out that his old job had been continued — and was being filled by a political appointee who worked with "Ted" Kennedy (JFK's brother) during the 1960 campaign.

Bridger: The King Or The 'Follower?'

KING OF THE MOUNTAIN MEN. By Gene Caesar. Dutton. $4.95.

Jim Bridger, beaver trapper, frontier fort proprietor, army guide and hero of this biography, was one of the bigger men in early western history. But author Gene Caesar fails to prove him the king.

When the beaver trade was at its peak between 1822 and 1832, other men outshone Bridger—men such as Jedediah Strong Smith, who made the effective discovery of the South Pass wagon route west, who was the first to reach California overland, and the first to cross the Sierras.

Caesar is hunting over a field that has been largely neglected by glorifiers of the West and such efforts certainly are needed.

Cutting themselves off from the frontier, Bridger and other trappers went among hostile Indians, seeking beaver furs for men's hats. In the few years before they stripped the Rocky Mountains of beaver, and fashion turned to silk hats, they had explored the entire region.

Other men, such as John Charles Fremont, gained the credit years later, but it was the mountain men who led the "Pathfinder."

With the collapse of the beaver trade, Bridger founded his fort, catering to Mormons bound of Salt Lake and covered wagon trains headed for Oregon and California.

When the Mormons turned against him and sacked his fort, Bridger went to work for the Army. Caesar's account of the period demonstrates again that Custer was not the first officer to throw away cavalrymen's lives through stupid underestimation of the Indians' warlike capacities and by neglecting the advice of skilled guides.

Master Of Light And The Shadows

REMBRANDT. By Gladys Schmitt. Random House. $5.95.

This is the author's seventh novel, and it comes 15 years after her "David the King," a biographical novel about another gigantic figure, which was widely praised.

In the fictional form of the novel it is possible to breathe life into figures and incidents that are only dark shadows among the scanty known facts of history.

For example, you know from any standard biography that Rembrandt's life was marked by two major events in 1642 — his wife Saskia died and his great masterpiece "The Sortie of the Banning Cocq Company" (formerly called "The Night Watch") was hung.

It is left for Miss Schmitt to show, with [illegible] pathos, how the [illegible] disapproval which met the painting [illegible] him as a painter, just as Saskia's death had broken him as a man.

And then a distressing incident over the maid servant Geertje to upset him further. There is a slim documentary basis for this [illegible] but as fiction it heightens the impact of the story. And it makes more plausible the painter's growing relationship with Hendrickje, who was to become his mistress.

The author gives us many word portraits in this book, in which that of Dr. Tulp is the most memorable. She also presents some fascinating Dutch interiors, rich in the costumes, foods and social customs of the age. She ranges through the plain days of Rembrandt's life as the miller's son in Leyden, through the social life in Amsterdam, to the squalid final years in an obscure section of the city.

Readers are bound to make some comparisons with Irving Stone's biographical novel about Michelangelo, "The Agony and the Ecstasy," which recently vaulted to the top of the best seller list. Stone's work deserves the attention it is getting. But Miss Schmitt, in this reader's opinion, has written a more imaginative novel and has scored a greater literary [illegible].

MY 30 YEARS BACK STAIRS AT THE WHITE HOUSE, Parks

Guide To Good Reading

By FRANCIS FLANDERS
Ouachita Parish Librarian

With the summer reading season at its height every branch of the Ouachita Parish public library is operating at full capacity. It is gratifying to see how the people of the parish take advantage of the library's resources. We know that we do not have everything that we would like to have, but we are working constantly to build up our collection and we do have three times as many books as we had 12 years ago.

During the past week a variety of new books were added to the library collection. Let's first take a look at the new books of fiction. "Rembrandt" is the title of a biographical novel, written by Gladys Schmitt. This is the story of Rembrandt the painter and the man. It is a story of struggle, of conflict and of final success. Miss Schmitt is an author of rare insight and in this work she has given us a truly great novel. "Jimmy Riddle" is the title of a novel by Ian Brook, with an African setting. It deals with the experiences of an English Civil Servant and should be enjoyed by those who liked Nicholas Monserrat's "The Tribe That Lost Its Head." John Knowles is the author of "A Separate Peace" which was selected as one of the outstanding books of 1960. It is an account of the relationship between a group of adolescents. There is not a great deal of action in this book, but it will be enjoyed by readers who like a quiet perceptive story. For the mystery fans there is a new title "Murder, Clear the Track Fast," by Judson Phillips and for younger adults there is a good story of mystery and action "Catrin in Wales" by Mabel Allan.

An interesting book of Christian sociology is "The Religious Factor" by Gerhard Lenski. It is well written and will apppeal to the discriminating reader.

Many groups are beginning to take an active part in the battle against communism. In order to effectively fight it, one must understand it. The Public Library is attempting to provide the material which will give the reader an understanding and at the same time an abhorrence of this movement. New books purchased for this purpose are "Russia's Soviet Economy" by Harry Schwartz; "An Introduction to Marxist Theory" by Henry B. Mayo, "Communism" by Alfred G. Meyer and others. People who are interested in the theory of economics should read "Stages of Economic Growth" by Walt W. Rostow.

A very fine discussion of the Eastern Colleges is "The Ivy League Today" written by Frederic A. Birmingham. This discusses each of these universities and is a very splendid presentation. A new book in the field of mathematics is "Basic Concepts of Elementary Mathematics" written by William L. Schaaf. Much has been written about diet and the necessity of weight control. A new book on this subject is "Live Longer and Better" by Robert C. Peale.

Two books which should be of great interest to the people in this area deal with the lumber and forest industries. One is called "Dynamics of Even Aged Forest Stands" and the author is M. S. Czarnowski. The other is "The Use of Chemicals in Southern Forests," published by L.S.U. press and written by Robert M. McDermaid. Gardening books are always popular and a new title is eagerly received. "Gardens in Winter" is the title of the new book by Elizabeth L. Lawrence. Books in the field of management are always eagerly read by the executives of the community. A new one is "Accounting for Management Control" by William H. Childs. A very useful book was written by Charles Sava called "How to Teach Yourself and Your Family to Swim Well." It is timely at this season of the year.

Travel books are extremely popular with the people of Ouachita Parish, probably because so many of them travel each year. A new title, written by the English novelist, Elizabeth Bowen is called "A Time in Rome" and will interest all who have ever visited this city. "Africa A to Z" was written by Robert S. Kane and is an interesting guide to this country. An interesting addition to our Louisiana collection is "The Other Half of Old New Orleans" written by an anonymous author and edited by Dr. Ellis Coulter of L.S.U.

Many people in this area are interested in searching for their ancestors but do not know how to go about it. The library has recently purchased a book which should help some of them. It is called "Know Your Ancestors" and was written by Ethel W. Williams. An interesting addition to the field of history is "The Egyptians" by Cyril Aldred. It is a well-written and informative book. The great sea tragedy of World War II was the loss of the two great ships of the British fleet, The Repulse and The Prince of Wales. Bernard Ash has written an account of this event which he calls "Someone Had Blundered." An interesting new biography is "Turmoil and Tradition" a study of the life and times of Henry L. Stimson written by E. E. Morison.

Reference books are the backbone of a library and although the Ouachita Parish Public Library has an outstanding reference collection, we are always adding to it. If you are interested in purchasing a sort of reference book, we advise you to read "Subscription Books Bulletin Reviews, 1956-60" published by the American Library Association. Are you interested in science books for children? The American Association for the advancement of science has just compiled a very fine list called "Science Book List for Children."

MARCH OF SCIENCE

U.S. May Lose Another Race

By RALPH DIGHTON
Associated Press Staff Writer

You may wake up some day to find the United States has lost another race in space—the race to be first in stringing "talking" satellites across the sky.

Fears that this may happen are being expressed privately by sources in the various industries now besieging government agencies for authority to build and launch communications satellites.

"Only a few frequencies are technically suitable for international communications via satellites," says one source. "If the Russians get their satellite system up first and hog these frequencies, we could find ourselves in a position of having to lease sorely needed channels from them.

"The fees probably would be excessive, and almost certainly we could expect the Russians to monitor—eavesdrop—on all calls placed through their own equipment."

The United States would still have its underwater cables but these are already becoming choked with telegraph and voice traffic. Some experts predict that within a few years cables will be able to handle only telegraph communications. Voice traffic, which requires 20 times as much cable space as an equivalent telegraph message, would have to find some other medium.

With their vast extra capacity to relay radioed voice messages from point to point around the globe, satellites would seem to be the answer.

But not, American industry sources say, if the satellites are Soviet-owned.

The pressing need for an American communications satellite has been recognized. Officials of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration and the Federal Communications Commission last February signed a memorandum stating that the "earliest practicable realization of a commercially operable communications satellite is an urgent national objective."

The various electronics and missile companies involved say not only one but a network of such satellites could be built and placed in orbit within a short time.

So why all the delay?

At least five government agencies must act before the launching of a communications satellite system can be authorized.

By law, the FCC is charged with regulating all communications companies and allocating radio frequencies to all civilian users. FCC would have to license any company or team of companies which put a communications satellite in orbit.

NASA is responsible for fostering peaceful—that is, non-military—uses of space. It would have to supervise or conduct the launchings of the satellites.

The State Department would have to negotiate treaties with other nations desiring to use the satellite system.

The Department of Defense is interested because military agencies frequently lease commercial communications for their own needs.

The Justice Department will have to review any arrangements made to be sure that they do not violate antitrust laws.

In addition to these agencies, there is Congress itself, which is currently investigating the agencies' response to the problem.

More than a dozen electronics, communications and missile-making firms are clamoring for a share in making and operating these satellites—a rich plum estimated to be worth $200 million a year in revenue by 1970.

There are two principal contenders for licenses from the FCC:

1. The American Telephone and Telegraph Co., now the sole U.S. carrier of intercontinental telephone traffic.

2. A team composed of Radio Corp. of America, General Telephone and Electronics Corp. and Lockheed Aircraft Corp., one of the country's major makers of missiles and satellites.

AT & T proposes a network of 40 to 50 satellites in random orbits at a comparatively low altitude of a few thousand miles. AT&T says its system can be in operation by 1965 at a cost of $170 million.

The Lockheed team proposes three big satellites in fixed positions 22,000 miles above the earth. This system would cost $260 million and be in operation by 1970. Despite the higher initial cost, says Lockheed, its system would be less expensive in the long run because it would require fewer satellites and fewer ground stations.

Both these competitors say they are anxious to get started—so anxious they will finance the projects themselves without government financial aid.

NASA, however, contends the cost and risk may be too great to be borne by industry alone. It is planning to build its own Project Relay satellite, scheduled for launching next year. Information learned from this test would be made available to industry.

A tough policy question must be answered before any government agency can give a go-ahead to any faction of industry. The question has three parts:

1. Should the communications satellites be owned by the government, like the postal system?

2. If not, should one firm, or team of firms, be given a monopoly?

3. Or should the field be thrown open to all comers, in the traditional American manner of free competition?

The Kennedy Circle Group Reanalyzed

THE KENNEDY CIRCLE. Edited by Lester Tanzer. Robert B. Luce, Inc. $4.95.

Nineteen personalities in the White House and the Kennedy cabinet are presented in this collection of journalists' reports on the men around the President.

The more important members of the cabinet are allotted a chapter each, and the others are grouped in two's and three's. Dean Rusk, Secretary of State; Abraham Ribicoff, Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, and Attorney General Robert Kennedy get the lion's share of attention.

These essays go deeper than straight biographical sketches. They discuss each man's relationship with Kennedy, probe into the man's personality and attempt to show how he fits into his assignment.

There are 11 contributors, each a front rank reporter for newspapers, magazines or networks.

David Brinkley's introduction serves to sum up the Kennedy men's characteristics, and he finds they are not New Dealers and not reformers, but pragmatists — men who believe "the best idea is the one that works fastest with the least fuss, while irritating the fewest people."

Most of them are comparatively young, highly intelligent, and endowed with a drive for accomplishment. Through these chapters shines a reflected light on the personality of Kennedy himself.

An avid reader of the newspapers would have encountered most of the material in this book; there are no bombshells. But it is thorough, and of the several new books on this theme, this one makes deeper appraisals than the others.

An Intimate Study Of A Bloody Battle

It may be that the most significant contribution of the centennial years to Civil War literature will be the growing series of intimate studies of the great battles and campaigns. Certainly, Glenn Tucker's "Chickamauga" detracts nothing from that strengthening belief.

Here was a battle which has been called the Gettysburg of the west. It was bitterly and furiously fought, by Union forces under William Starke Rosecrans and by Confederates under Braxton Bragg. Tucker thinks it was "perhaps the most stubbornly contested battle of American history." Casualties were appalling: approximately one - third of the contending armies. For a startling statistic: the state of Indiana alone lost more men than did the entire Army and Navy in the whole of the Spanish - American War.

Tucker embraces the whole campaign, from Rosecrans' reckless scattering of his army to his final humiliation, besieged in Chattanooga. He tells the story with many an illuminating anecdote and personality vignete of characters "fresh, vivid . . . and often peculiar." Some of it is heavy going, in the maze of regimental and company movements (and the maps aren't very helpful) but on the whole it is a gripping drama of unexcelled heroism in the mass.

One of the most interesting aspects of these studies is the judgments offered of the generals. Tucker thinks highly of Rosecrans but doesn't gloss the temperamental faults which caused him to flee the field when his right wing collapsed. He is more lenient with Bragg than most historians, ascribing much of his trouble to quarrelsome, dilatory subordinates, but again does not hesitate to hold him responsible for frittering away the fruits of victory.

Tucker has praise, too, for "Old Pete "LngstoreednBths-ua rod Johnson, for Nathan Bedford Forest and for "Old Steady" Steedman and a host of regimental and brigade commanders. But the dominating figure, as it must be in all tales of Chickamauga, was George H. Thomas, who stood firm on Snodgrass Hill when all about him was rout.

Union, Missile Program

The following dispatch, written by labor expert Victor Riesel shows one of the big reasons why this country has been lagging in some phases of the missile race. It is time the American people did something about the way unions are strangling this nation.

Here is the dispatch:

It may be later than you think. But what matters what you think compared with what a band of Cape Canaveral labor officials think—the same defiant ones who got in the way of Commander Shepard's space ship. These fellows with a baronial taste for telling off the Pentagon, also, it now develops, got in the way of the vital Pershing Missile. Apparently the Cape Canaveral electrical workers were not in as much of a hurry over Pershing (Series 200), Complex Thirty, as were the Joint Chiefs of Staff a few months back.

The Pershing is an Army ground support missile which can be moved easily by cargo plane or helicopter. The Pentagon wanted Pershing testing "accelerated" late last summer. But the leaders of Local 756, International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, refused to handle special cable which arrived at the base already cut for size and installation.

This cable, it must be noted immediately, was "prefabricated" — cut — by members of another union over in an Orlando, Florida plant where the Martin Co. produces the Pershing. When the electrical workers, members of the local which delayed the work on the US man-in-space shot, refused to install prefabricated Pershing Missile wiring, they were asked why.

Stout fellows, these. They had a ready answer. They had to go "cleaning their yards . . . cleaning their swimming pool . . . and go fishing." They were fired. When the Pentagon contractors tried to get new help from the Local, its leader, Robert Palmer, went into the hiring hall and personally polled unemployed workers there. Though jobless, the men did not go out on the lucrative assignment. Why?

Government officials later looked into the stalled work. Documents from these National Labor Relations Board examiners and reviewers said that Palmer had "clearly indicated to those in the hiring hall that they should not accept" these jobs.

Palmer's "conduct" was described as "unlawful inducement . . . (and) discouragement of those in the hiring hall from accepting employment . . . (and was) tantamount to a categorical refusal to make a referral" of workers to replace those who were "going fishing" or "cleaning their swimming pool."

A Federal District court finally ordered Palmer and the local to start supplying men. They did—but the government people now tell us that "similar" disputes are "likely to arise in the future." The government states officially that this is an "unresolved conflict" and that the "conduct of the union . . . will be repeated."

This is no penny ante argument. The Martin Co. has contracts worth over $100 million annually for the manufacture of missiles and other materials and the testing and firing of missiles at Cape Canaveral. Any dispute there over who cuts a piece of wire could have impact on how Moscow cuts up the peace.

So here's the background of this war of cables. The Martin Co. produces the Pershing at its Orlando plant. It trucks the missile over to the Cape along with the cables. These cables are part of the electronic control system inside the blockhouse. The wiring also runs to the launching pad and is, in addition, connected to the missile itself. At the Orlando plant this cable is scientifically cut.

Each must be sliced to fit into the "extremely complicated" electrical systems. These cables contain many strands of wire—each of which must be joined to the appropriate pin in a "terminal connector" to set up each circuit for the firing. Each series of tests requires changing in the wiring systems — and new sets of cable. And there's the rub. These cables are prepared in advance at the Orlando plant by members of the United Auto Workers.

Pavement Plato

In case you are in doubt whether the girl you are going with is in love with you, read the following; it might give you the answer to the problem:

"Dear pavement Plato:

"I have been going steady with a girl for three months, and now I am afraid she is losing interest in me. On the other hand, she may just be playing coy.

"How can I tell for sure?

Worried"

Well, my boy, there are many ways. But she probably has no serious interest in you if—

She talks constantly about what she has been doing lately but never bothers to ask what's new with you.

She remembers the date of the sinking of the Spanish armada, but can't for the life of her recall your birthday.

When you take her to a restaurant, she never orders the $2.50 tabled'hote dinner — but always selects the highest-priced item on the a la carte menu.

She sees a loose thread on your sleeve, and doesn't bother to pick it off.

She keeps your picture on her dresser, but has the face turned to the wall.

She doesn't get around to giving you your Christmas present until eight weeks after Easter.

She complains about the way you dance.

She doesn't care how many drinks you have at a party.

She'd rather ride on a yacht with someone else than take her turn at the oars in a rowboat with you.

She thinks bow ties look cute on other men, but doesn't like them on you.

When you call her on the phone, after a mere hour and a half she says, "I'll have to hang up now. I think I smell something burning on the stove."

She pulls her hand out of yours in a movie on the grounds it is getting numb.

When you ask her to lunch, she says, "I can't. I promised I'd eat with my girl friend, and it wouldn't be fair to her not to."

She is always threatening to have you over to her place for a nice home-cooked meal, but somehow she never quite gets around to it.

During a taxi ride home, instead of pitching woo with you, she launches into a long political discussion with the driver.

You are of draft age, but she never broods about when Uncle Sam will claim you.

She never notices when you gain or lose weight.

She has no desire to meet your mother . . . or your sister . . . or your brother.

She doesn't care particularly whether you like or don't like her new dress.

She is never the first to make up after a quarrel.

If most of these things are true, you'd better strike her off your list. Give her the gate — before she can hand it to you.

California GOP Congressman James B. Utt in regard to the tractors - for - prisoner deal: "In 1858 President Buchanan assembled seventeen men - of - war and 1900 men in the harbor of New York and dispatched them to Uruguay to extract an apology from that country for killing an American citizen in a surveying crew on the La Plata River. The apology was forthcoming. Have we grown stronger or weaker, morally and militarily in the last 100 years." We'll let you answer that question . . . .

Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas spoke recently in Washington before the "Seminar on the American Character," sponsored by the "Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions," an offshoot of the notorious Fund for the Republic. Diuglas ridiculed as "clinches" individual initiative and private enterprise. Is there anyone surprised?. . . .

Democratic Congressman Wayne L. Hayes of Ohio walked out of a recent House Foreign Affairs Committee meeting while Undersecretary of State Chester Bowles was testifying, because: "He doesn't know anything and I wouldn't believe what he said anyway. And you can quote me on that." We got one smart Congressman up there anyway . . .

Democratic Congressman John A. Blatnik of Minnesota, chairman of the House Committee to Investigate the Interstate Highway Program, has singlehandedly prevented an investigation into Massachusetts road scandals in order to save President Kennedy from embarrassment, according to GOP members of that committee. Florida's William C. Cramer, ranking GOP member of the committee, says "for purely partisan reasons, Blatnik has refused to hold hearings on the Bay State situation, easily the most scandalous of any in the nation." Evidence so far has resulted in the Bureau of Public Roads cutting off all reimbursements to the Massachusetts government. This action was taken a year ago. The evidence has implicate top Democrats in the state . . . .

The Insider's Newsletter came up with this: "Drinking may or may not put hair on the chest but bear-chested men who are inclined to alcohol are apt to wind up with a mess of liver trouble. According to Dr. Mitchell Spellberg of the University of Illinois, the hairless male has a genetic defect which makes him much more susceptible to cirrhosis of the liver than the man with lots of hair on his chest. Most prone to cirrhosis are males with little body hair, tender skin and fingers which taper like a woman's. The hairy man on the otherhand is endowed with a biological mechanism which lets him burn up more alcohol with less harm to his body than the hairless tippler."

Federal Big Brother

"If the Department of Justice is right in its contention that the Constitution requires the States to provide public education, George Orwell's "Big Brother" may be coming to live with us after all.

"Although this contention was put forward in response to a court inquiry, it is unlikely, we suppose, that there will be a final Supreme Court ruling sustaining the department's view in this instance. For the court, generally speaking, will not break new constitional ground if the case before it can be decided on some other basis. And this particular case—involving a strictly local decision to close public schools in Louisiana's St. Helena Parish — lends itself to adjudication on other grounds. The mere fact that this novel constitutional claim has been put forward, however, may serve as a portent of things to come.

"The gist of the department's position, as explained by Attorney General Kennedy, is that education for all is an "absolute necessity," and that to deny this to a child is to deprive him of liberty and property under the due process clause of the Fourteenth Amendment. (When this amendment was ratified, a number of States did not maintain any kind of public school system.)

"If this is a constitutionally sound position, what limit is there to the reach of the Federal authority? IF the Federal Government is authorized by the Constitution do decree that education is a necessity, and that the States must provide it, it is a very short step indeed to assumption by the Federal Government of responsibility also to decree what must be taught, by whom it must be taught and how it must be taught. What about such other things as medical care, recreation, decent housing, etc? To a degree, at least, all of these are necessary, in the Attorney General's words, 'to equip individuals "to compete with citizens of other States in the struggle for professional and economic achievement." Does the Constitution require the States to provide all of these and other things, as well as education? Does the ultimate power to decide what is and what is not a necessity for the residents of the States reside in the Federal courts? If so, "Big Brother" has taken over in Washington — and much sooner than we anticipated."

10 Commandments For

(1) Read your newspaper every day. Make it a habit,

(2) Don't be headline happy. Heads are just the menu; you have to eat the food to get a complete meal.

(3) Don't be page-one happy; your news may be inside.

(4) Don't be one-subject happy. Sticking only to sports, comics, or crime news is picking up pennies and leaving dollars.

(5) Be a fact-seeker. Get the facts from news columns. Then read the comment of columnists and editorial writers. You may find you're the better thinker.

(6) Read with both eyes. Note qualifying words and also "who says so." Don't take a charge for a conviction, rumor for fact, or plans for accomplishments.

(7) Don't be a reading coward. Don't be afraid to read opinion at complete variance from your own.

(8) Get out of your reading rut. Read at least one thing a day completely apart from your normal interest. It'll give you a mental jog.

(9) Do your shopping at home. You'll find the best buys in the advertising columns of your own newspaper.

(10) Relax and enjoy the fun. There's a lighter side of life and your newspaper covers it. Join in.

JFK Spoils System

From all accounts, the New Frontier has apparently found a way to bypass the Civil Service system and oust Federal career employes in favor of "deserving" Democrats. The Civil Service Commission is supposed to have a Republican as one of its three members, but the GOP seat hasn't been filled by the administration; hence there is no one in authority to protest against inequities concerning Eisenhower era appointees.

One of the many examples of how the New Frontier pursues this spoils system came wtih the firing of Ralph T. Wills, an executive officer in the Post Office Department since 1955 and a career Federal employee with full Civil Service status. Last year Wills received the Department's meritorious service award. On February 21, Wills received notice that his job was being abolished and that he would be separated from Civil Service March 24 because of a "reduction in force." After leaving, Wills found out that his old job had been continued — and was being filled by a political appointee who worked with "Ted" Kennedy (JFK's brother) during the 1960 campaign!

Bridger; The King Or The 'Follower?'

KING OF THE MOUNTAIN MEN. By Gene Caesar. Dutton. $4.95.

Jim Bridger, beaver trapper, frontier fort proprietor, army guide and hero of this biography, was one of the bigger men in early western history. But author Gene Caesar fails to prove him the king.

When the beaver trade was at its peak between 1822 and 1832, other men outshone Bridger—men such as Jedediah Strong Smith, who made the effective discovery of the South Pass wagon route west, who was the first to reach California overland, and the first to cross the Sierras.

Caesar is hunting over a field that has been largely neglected by glorifiers of the West and such efforts certainly are needed.

Cutting themselves off from the frontier, Bridger and other trappers went among hostile Indians, seeking beaver furs for men's hats. In the few years before they stripped the Rocky Mountains of beaver, and fashion turned to silk hats, they had explored the entire region.

Other men, such as John Charles Fremont, gained the credit years later, but it was the mountain men who led the "Pathfinder."

With the collapse of the beaver trade, Bridger founded his fort, catering to Mormons bound of Salt Lake. and covered wagon trains headed for Oregon and California.

When the Mormons turned against him and sacked his fort, Bridger went to work for the Army. Caesar's account of the period demonstrates again that Custer was not the first officer to throw away cavalrymen's lives through stupid underestimation of the Indians' warlike capacities and by neglecting the advice of skilled guides.

Master Of Light And The Shadows

REMBRANDT. By Gladys Schmitt. Random House. $5.95.

Rembrandt's mastery of light and shadow, as everyone knows, was one of the keys to his genius as a painter.

This is the author's seventh novel, and it comes 15 years after her "David the King," a biographical novel about another gigantic figure, which was widely praised.

In the fictional form of the novel it is possible to breathe life into figures and incidents that are only dark shadows among the scanty known facts of history.

For example, you know from any standard biography that Rembrandt's life was marked by two major events in 1642 — his wife Saskia died and his great masterpiece "The Sortie of the Banning Coq Company" (formerly called 'The Night Watch'') was hung.

It is left to Miss Schmitt to show with vivid pathos how the sputtering disapproval which met the painting unnerved him as a painter, just as Saskia's death had broken him up as a mna.

And then, a distressing incident over the mad servant Geertje to upset him further. There is a slim documentary basis for this occurrence, but as fiction it heightens the impact of the story. And it makes more plausible the painter's growing relationship with Hendrickje, who was to become his mistress.

The author gives us many word portraits in this book, in which that of Dr. Tulp is the most memorable. She also presents some fascinating Dutch interiors, rich in the costumes, foods and social customs of the age. She ranges through the plain days of Rembrandt's life as the miller's son in Leyden, through the social life in Amsterdam, to the quiet final years in an obscure section of the city.

Readers are bound to make some comparisons with Irving Stone's biographical novel about Michelangelo, "The Agony and the Ecstasy," which recently vaulted to the top of the best seller list. Stone's work deserves the attention it is getting. But Miss Schmitt in this reader's opinion, has written a more imaginative novel and has scored a greater literary mark.

Guide To Good Reading

By FRANCIS FLANDERS
Ouachita Parish Librarian

With the summer reading season at its height every branch of the Ouachita Parish public library is operating at full capacity. It is gratifying to see how the people of the parish take advantage of the library's resources. We know that we do not have everything that we would like to have, but we are working constantly to build up our collection and we do have three times as many books as we had 12 years ago.

During the past week a variety of new books were added to the library collection. Let's first take a look at the new books of fiction. "Rembrandt" is the title of a biographical novel, written by Gladys Schmitt. This is the story of Rembrandt the painter and the man. It is a story of struggle, of conflict and of final success. Miss Schmitt is an author of rare insight and in this work she has given us a truly great novel. "Jimmy Riddle" is the title of a novel by Ian Brook, with an African setting. It deals with the experiences of an English Civil Servant and should be enjoyed by those who liked Nicholas Monserrat's "The Tribe That Lost Its Head." John Knowles is the author of "A Separate Peace" which was selected as one of the outstanding books of 1960. It is an account of the relationship between a group of adolescents. There is not a great deal of action in this book, but it will be enjoyed by readers who like a quiet perceptive story. For the mystery fans there is a new title "Murder, Clear the Track Fast," by Judson Phillips and for younger adults there is a good story of mystery and action "Catrin in Wales" by Mabel Allan.

An interesting book of Christian sociology is "The Religious Factor" by Gerhard Lenski. It is well written and will apppeal to the discriminating reader.

Many groups are beginning to take an active part in the battle against communism. In order to effectively fight it, one must understand it. The Public Library is attempting to provide the material which will give the reader an understanding and at the same time an abhorrence of this movement. New books purchased for this purpose are "Russia's Soviet Economy" by Harry Schwartz; "An Introduction to Marxist Theory" by Henry B. Mayo, "Communism" by Alfred G. Meyer and others. People who are interested in the theory of economics should read "Stages of Economic Growth" by Walt W. Rostow.

A very fine discussion of the Eastern Colleges is "The Ivy League Today" written by Frederic A. Birmingham. This discusses each of these universities and is a very splendid presentation. A new book in the field of mathematics is "Basic Concepts of Elementary Mathematics" written by William L. Schaaf. Much has been written about diet and the necessity of weight control. A new book on this subject is "Live Longer and Better" by Robert C. Peale.

Two books which should be of great interest to the people in this area deal with the lumber and forest industries. One is called "Dynamics of Even Aged Forest Stands" and the author is M. S. Czarnowski. The other is "The Use of Chemicals in Southern Forests," published by L.S.U. press and written by Robert M. McDermaid. Gardening books are always popular and a new title is eagerly received. "Gardens in Winter" is the title of the new book by Elizabeth L. Lawrence. Books in the field of management are always eagerly read by the executives of the community. A new one is "Accounting for Management Control" by William H. Childs. A very useful book was written by Charles Sava called "How to Teach Yourself and Your Family to Swim Well." It is timely at this season of the year.

Travel books are extremely popular with the people of Ouachita Parish, probably because so many of them travel each year. A new title, written by the English novelist, Elizabeth Bowen is called "A Time in Rome" and will interest all who have ever visited this city. "Africa A to Z" was written by Robert S. Kane and is an interesting guide to this country. An interesting addition to our Louisiana collection is "The Other Half of Old New Orleans" written by an anonymous author and edited by Dr. Ellis Coulter of L.S.U.

Many people in this area are interested in searching for their ancestors but do not know how to go about it. The library has recently purchased a book which should help some of them. It is called "Know Your Ancestors" and was written by Ethel W. Williams. An interesting addition to the field of history is "The Egyptians" by Cyril Aldred. It is a well-written and informative book. The great sea tragedy of World War II was the loss of the two great ships of the British fleet. The Repulse and The Prince of Wales. Bernard Ash has written an account of this event which he calls "Someone Had Blundered." An interesting new biography is "Turmoil and Tradition" a study of the life and times of Henry L. Stimson written by E. E. Morison.

Reference books are the backbone of a library and although the Ouachita Parish Public Library has an outstanding reference collection, we are always adding to it. If you are interested in purchasing a sort of reference book, we advise you to read "Subscription Books Bulletin Reviews, 1956-60" published by the American Library Association. Are you interested in science books for children? The American Association for the advancement of science has just compiled a very fine list called "Science Book List for Children."

MARCH OF SCIENCE

By RALPH DIGHTON
Associated Press Staff Writer

You may wake up some day to find the United States has lost another race in space—the race to be first in stringing "talking" satellites across the sky.

Fears that this may happen are being expressed privately by sources in the various industries now besieging government agencies for authority to build and launch communications satellites.

"Only a few frequencies are technically suitable for international communications via satellites," says one source. "If the Russians get their satellite system up first and hog these frequencies, we could find ourselves in a position of having to lease sorely needed channels from them.

"The fees probably would be excessive, and almost certainly we could expect the Russians to monitor—eavesdrop—on all calls placed through their own equipment."

The United States would still have its underwater cables but these are already becoming choked with telegraph and voice traffic. Some experts predict that within a few years cables will be able to handle only telegraph communications. Voice traffic, which requires 20 times as much cable space as an equivalent telegraph message, would have to find some other medium.

With their vast extra capacity to relay radioed voice messages from point to point around the globe, satellites would seem to be the answer.

But not, American industry sources say, if the satellites are Soviet-owned.

The pressing need for an American communications satellite has been recognized. Officials of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration and the Federal Communications Commission last February signed a memorandum stating that the "earliest practicable realization of a commercially operable communications satellite is an urgent national objective."

The various electronics and missile companies involved say not only one but a network of such satellites could be built and placed in orbit within a short time.

So why all the delay?

At least five government agencies must act before the launching of a communications satellite system can be authorized.

By law, the FCC is charged with regulating all communications companies and allocating radio frequencies to all civilian users. FCC would have to license any company or team of companies which put a communications satellite in orbit.

NASA is responsible for fostering peaceful—that is, non-military—uses of space. It would have to supervise or conduct the launchings of the satellites.

The State Department would have to negotiate treaties with other nations desiring to use the satellite system.

The Department of Defense is interested because military agencies frequently lease commercial communications for their own needs.

The Justice Department will have to review any arrangements made to be sure that they do not violate antitrust laws.

In addition to these agencies, there is Congress itself, which is currently investigating the agencies' response to the problem.

More than a dozen electronics, communications and missile-making firms are clamoring for a share in making and operating these satellites—a rich plum estimated to be worth $200 million a year in revenue by 1970.

There are two principal contenders for licenses from the FCC:

1. The American Telephone and Telegraph Co., now the sole U.S. carrier of intercontinental telephone traffic.

2. A team composed of Radio Corp. of America, General Telephone and Electronics Corp. and Lockheed Aircraft Corp., one of the country's major makers of missiles and satellites.

AT & T proposes a network of 40 to 50 satellites in random orbits at a comparatively low altitude of a few thousand miles. AT&T says its system can be in operation by 1965 at a cost of $170 million.

The Lockheed team proposes three big satellites in fixed positions 23,000 miles above the earth. This system would cost $260 million and be in operation by 1970. Despite the higher initial cost, says Lockheed, its system would be less expensive in the long run because it would require fewer satellites and fewer ground stations.

Both these competitors say they are anxious to get started—so anxious they will finance the projects themselves without government financial aid.

NASA, however, contends the cost and risk may be too great to be borne by industry alone. It is planning to build its own Project Relay satellite, scheduled for launching next year. Information learned from this test would be made available to industry.

A tough policy question must be answered before any government agency can give a go-ahead to any faction of industry. The question has three parts:

1. Should the communications satellites be owned by the government, like the postal system?

2. If not, should one firm, or team of firms, be given a monopoly?

3. Or should the field be thrown open to all comers, in the traditional American manner of free competition?

The Kennedy Circle Group Reanalyzed

Nineteen personalities in the White House and the Kennedy cabinet are presented in this collection of journalists' reports on the men around the President.

The more important members of the cabinet are allotted a chapter each, and the others are grouped in two's and three's. Dean Rusk, Secretary of State; Abraham Ribicoff, Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, and Attorney General Robert Kennedy get the lion's share of attention.

These essays go deeper than straight biographical sketches. They discuss each man's relationship with Kennedy, probe into the man's personality and attempt to show how he fits into his assignment.

There are 14 contributors, each a front rank reporter for newspapers, magazines or networks.

David Brinkley's introduction serves to sum up the Kennedy men's characteristics, and he finds they are not New Dealers and not reformers, but pragmatists — men who believe "the best idea is the one that works fastest with the least fuss, while irritating the fewest people."

Most of them are comparatively young, highly intelligent, and endowed with a drive for accomplishment. Through these chapters shines a reflected light on the personality of Kennedy himself.

An avid reader of the newspapers would have encountered most of the material in this book; there are no bombshells. But it is thorough, and of the several new books on this theme, this one makes deeper appraisals than the others.

An Intimate Study Of A Bloody Battle

It may be that the most significant contribution of the centennial years to Civil War literature will be the growing series of intimate studies of the great battles and campaigns. Certainly, Glenn Tucker's "Chickamauga" detracts nothing from that strengthening belief.

Here was a battle which has been called the Gettysburg of the west. It was bitterly and furiously fought, by Union forces under William Starke Rosecrans and by Confederates under Braxton Bragg. Tucker thinks it was "perhaps the most stubbornly contested battle of American history." Casualties were appalling: approximately one - third of the contending armies. For a startling statistic: the state of Indiana alone lost more men than did the entire Army and Navy in the whole of the Spanish - American War.

Tucker embraces the whole campaign, from Rosecrans' reckless scattering of his army to his final humiliation, besieged in Chattanooga. He tells the story with many an illuminating anecdote and personality vignette of characters "fresh, vivid . . . and often peculiar." Some of it is heavy going, in the maze of regimental and company movements (and the maps aren't very helpful) but on the whole it is a gripping drama of unexcelled heroism in the mass.

One of the most interesting aspects of these studies is the judgments offered of the generals. Tucker thinks highly of Rosecrans but doesn't gloss the temperamental faults which caused him to flee the field when his right wing collapsed. He is more lenient with Bragg than most historians, ascribing much of his trouble to quarrelsome, dilatory subordinates, but again does not hesitate to hold him responsible for frittering away the fruits of victory.

Tucker has praise, too, for "Old Pete" LngstoreednBths-ua rod Johnson, for Nathan Bedford Forest and for "Old Steady" Steedman and a host of regimental and brigade commanders. But the dominating figure, as it must be in all tales of Chickamauga, was George H. Thomas, who stood off from on Snodgrass Hill when all about him was rout.

OIL-GAS ACTIVITY

4 Completions Reported In Area

Four completions and 30 wells being drilled were reported in Monroe area oil-gas activity for the week ending June 29, according to Duncan S. Cook, manager of the 14-parish district.

A total of 38 locations were staked, two re-completions were listed, 57 inactive rigs were reported, five wells were abandoned and permits expired on five wells, the report showed.

EASIER TO READ

Sensitive Meter Is Sought

By IRVING DESFOR
AP NEWSFEATURES

From a reader, J. M. in Loveland, Ohio, comes a query: "Isn't there an easier - to - read, more sensitie exposure meter, especially at low light levels? I shoot a lot of color and find present meters hard to handle, hard to read and not exact enough."

A good many camera fans are in the same boat. A light meter is not an automation; it's a gadget that requires human direction and judgement in handling. It must be set properly, pointed properly, evaluated and transferred properly to the camera's controls to fulfill its function. Most meters do not make the task easier because they look complicated, their numbers are too small to read easily, and the needle which indicates the light level often is confusingly hard to follow in their zig-zag paths.

However, there is a new type of battery-powered meter which seems to meet J.M's specifications. It's designed entirely differently from present meters and looks more like an optical instrument — which it is. It's called the "Heiland Pentax 3-21" exposure meter because it calculates the light from an area of only 3 degrees while its whole field of view is only 21 degrees.

The "3-21" is L-shaped. Its base is half box and half a lens barrel. Extending up from the box is an eye-piece. Looking into it is like looking through a telescope with a small target circle in the center. That target is the 3-degree spot being measured. The light-measuring scale is visible immediately below the circle with a "high" set of numbers above the line and a "low" set below the line.

Finger pressure on a button on the box sets a needle into action along the measuring scale in EVS (exposure value) numbers, from 0 to 17, are read. In low light levels, the button is pressed all the way down and the bottom numbers, from 0 to 11, are read.

Around the lens barrel are two sets of calibrated rings with easy-to-read numbers. On one, the ASA film speed is set for whatever type of film is in the camera. The other ring is rotated to bring the EVS number indicated by the needle against a red dot. This brings into alignment the correct exposure combinations for the photographer to study and choose. The meter's sensitive range offers a choice from a speed of 1-4000 to 4 seconds at lens openings of from f-1 to f-45.

What makes the "3-21" so sensitive? Besides the optical reflex viewing system, it has a cadmium sulfide light measuring cell which is battery operated. This combination is far more powerful than the selenium cell, the light-measuring standard for present meters. It was made feasible by recent developments in wafer-thin, long-life mercury batteries. The new meter uses two 1.3 volt mercury batteries and one 22.5 volt dry cell.

The practical advantage of this type meter is that you can take an exposure reading from camera position of a specific tiny target like a face, if people are the prime subjects, or a costume or an animal or whatever is important in the composition, no matter how far it is. You can compare the brightness of a scene's light portions with its shadow areas and make a high-key exposure or decide to penetrate the shadows. Here again, correct exposure is a matter of judgement but you can visually pick out what you want.

Needless to say, all these advantages have a price. The "3-21" is more expensive than present meters.

Management, Unions Get Talks Going

NEW YORK (AP) — Union and management squared off across the negotiating tables in three big industries during the week.

Last-ditch efforts were being made to settle the two-week-old maritime strike before President Kennedy seeks Taft-Hartley law injunction for an 80-day cooling-off period.

Government officials got the rival factions back into the conference rooms for more talks. Main issue is the unions' desire to organize crews on American-owned ships operating under flags of other countries.

The strike has made a sizable dent in deliveries of oil and other supplies and in passenger service. Hawaii and Puerto Rico were particularly hard hit.

Contract negotiations got under way between the United Auto Workers and General Motors, Chrysler and Ford. Contracts expire Aug 31.

Louis G. Seaton, GM vice president and chief negotiator, warning against inflation, said: "An excessive increase in labor costs, whether in the form of wages or in fringe benefits, can only contribute to unsound wage and price movements."

UAW President Walter P. Reuther countered that an expansion of purchasing power is needed and that the union "wants its share of the fruits of technology."

Negotiations were in progress between the Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers and Kennecott Copper Corp. The company offered a wage increase of 7½ cents an hour in a package it said was worth 10 cents an hour. The union demanded an 8½-cent wage boost.

President Kennedy told top labor leaders that the recession was over but acknowledged that "many economic problems will continue to confront us and demand our best efforts."

His statement was directed to the executive council of the American Federation of Labor and Congress of Industrial Organizations. The council replied that "real recovery is nowhere in sight" and that unemployment was "a basic and continuing affliction."

A congressional hearing on legislation to provide $750,000 to finance an investigation of stock markets and mutual funds brought a statement from Chairman William Cary of the Securities and Exchange Commission that there was "evidence of a substantial amount of manipulation."

The proposed inquiry was endorsed by William H. Claflin III, chairman of the National Association of Securities Dealers. Keith Funston, president of the New York Stock Exchange, said he felt the SEC should go ahead with investigations already under way but opposed broadening the inquiry to include the NYSE. He said he considered the NYSE's rules and enforcement adequate.

The consumers have gotten a break although they may not have realized it. The cost of living inched down one-tenth of one per cent in May. This was due mainly to a decline in meat and grocery costs.

However, the outlook for buyers is spotty. International Shoe Co. and Genesco, Inc., said they would raise shoe prices. Furniture manufacturers were reported considering increasing prices. The big Chicago mail order firm, Spiegel, Inc., issued a fall catalogue with prices averaging 1.5 per cent under a year ago.

Automobile dealers sold 156,438 new passenger cars in the middle 10 days of June at a daily rate 16.9 per cent above the first one-third of the month.

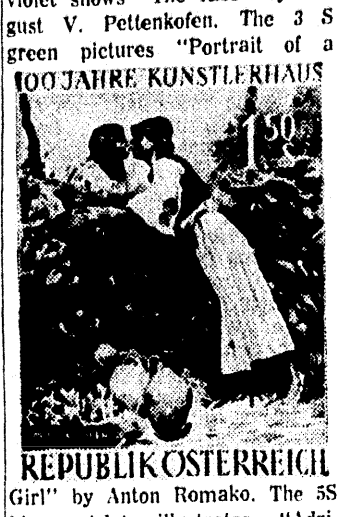
Production during the week slipped to an estimated 122,000 cars from 129,294 last week. The industry completed the first half of the year about 1.1 million cars behind the production rate of a year ago. The output was 2.7 million cars.

HONORS ARTISTS

Series Of Four Stamps Issued

A series of four special stamps showing pictures by famous local artists has been issued by Austria. The set commemorates the 100th anniversary of the Society of Viennese artists.

The 1 Schilling red violet depicts "The Mountain Mower" by Albin Egger - Lenz. The 1.50 S violet shows "The Kiss" by August V. Pettenkofen. The 3 S green pictures "Portrait of a Girl" by Anton Romako. The 5S blue violet illustrates "Adriadne's Triumph" by Hans Markart.



The 1961 stamp program for Austrian will include: one stamp for Sonnblick Observatory, five for nationalized factories, one for the World's Bankers Congress, a commemorative for composer Franz Liszt and one for the 200th anniversary of the Court of Auditors.

Greece will issue a Crete liberation set consisting of eight stamps. The 20 L will show a Cretan vase with lily motif, 50 L birds, 1 Dr fruits, 1.50 Dr young man holding a cornucopia, 2.50 Dr Assembly of Women, 4.50 Dr Lily fresco from the Palace of Aminissos, 6 Dr Dancer, 10 Dr two Cretan vases.

West Germany has issued two new stamps honoring Gottlieb Daimler and Carl Benz to mark the 75th anniversary of a patent they received for a power-driven auto, reports the World Wide Philatelic Agency. Each of the stamps contains a drawing of an early Daimler-Benz car. The 10 pfennig is in green with Daimler's autograph in black. The 20 pfennig shows a white auto and a red background with Benz's signature in black.

Also from the same source is the news that the city of West Berlin will honor the 10th anniversary of German Evangelic Day on July 19 with the issuance of two new stamps. The 1 pf green and violet will show the emblem of St. Mary's Church. The 20 pf red and violet will depict the ruins of Kaiser Wilhelm Memorial Church.

Paraguay has issued a set of eight stamps commemorating Chaco Peace. The five lowest values are regular mail and the three highest are airmail.

Holiday Inn Motel Slated For Ruston

RUSTON (Special) — A group of Ruston businessmen signed a contract with Rannie Terrill Construction Company of Farmerville Monday afternoon for construction of a 65-unit Holdiday Inn motor hotel here.

Acutal construction of the half-million dollar project was begun Saturday, even before the contract for $448,539 was signed.

H. B. Maxwell, owner of Lincoln Hotel Courts at Ruston is president of the new corporation. Other members of the corporation include T. C. Beasley, John Ed Barnes, E. W. Hodge, Buddy Glasgow, Floyd James and Bill James.

Beasley said yesterday that the $448,539 contract did not include brick work and the swimming pool, which will bring the total cost for the Inn to about $480,000.

The Inn is being constructed on land near the intersection of Interstate 20 and U.S. 167 on the north side of the right - of - way.

An additional 40 units are planned for the Holiday Inn as soon as the four - lane Interstate highway is completed from Shreveport to Monroe, Beasley said.

The main dining room will seat 100 guests with annexes for banquets, conventions and parties to serve another 200.

The building will be triple A fire proof and sound proof. The walls will be double construction to avoid noise and interiors will follow Holiday Inn design used throughout the nation.

Cox Is Named Vice President Of Gas Firm

The board of directors of Southwest Gas Producing Co., Inc., today elected R. F. Cox, vice president in charge of production, and Al E. Beasley, vice president in charge of exploration.

Cox joined the company in 1948 as district engineer for the Dubach, La. district and in 1954 was appointed chief engineer and transferred to the Monroe office. Since 1955, he has been general production superintendent.

Beasley was employed as a landman in 1947, became head of the land department in 1952, transferred ot the Lafayette office in 1954 as district exploration manager, and returned to the Monroe office as general exploration manager in 1960.

Business Briefs

DIVIDEND

Acme Brick Company, pioneer clay products firm with Monroe plant and sales office on Route 3, has declared a quarterly dividend of 30 cents per share.

The dividend is payable July 7, to shareholders of record June 30. President Neill Boldrick made the announcement.

Acme is one of the nation's leading producers of brick and tile.

SALES UP

Lee Edwards, local Volkswagen dealer, said this week that new Volkswagen passenger car registrations in the United States during the month of April totaled 14,446, a gain of 5.3 per cent over the 13,715 sold during the same month last year.

SLEEPING CHILD, bundled in daddy's coat, was blissfully unaware that he posed a tough exposure problem. It was solved by the Pentax 3/21 meter by reading face and detail in light coat at 1/50th at f/6.3 with Tri-X.

Pipeline Firm Reassigns 61 Area Employees

FERRIDAY (Special) — The Interstate Oil Pipe Line Company of Shreveport, has announced the reassignment of sixty one employees including a group from the Ferriday office and from this area.

These employees will be assigned temporarily to supervise construction of the West Shore Pipe Company system in Illinois and Wisconsin. A number of employees have been at the West Shore headquarters in Des Plaines, Illinois for several months.

Assigned from the Ferriday area are: (Louisiana District): T. B. Bell, Jr., welding inspector; R. C. Clanton, welding inspector; R. E. Melancon, inspector; L. M. Nowlin, Jr., inspector; W. E. Payne, inspector; C. C. Templeton, inspector, all of Ferriday; N. J. Cole, inspector, of Vidalia; W. L. Crawford, material - clerical of Natchez, Miss; C. H. Eads, inspector of Rayville; and J. R. Reeves, inspector of Clayton.

West Shore is a new common carrier pipe line company, owned by Interstate and nine other oil firms. Interstate was selected to superise the design, route selection, right - of - way acquisition and construction for West Shore.

Contracts have been awarded for laying the lines, and it is anticipated that construction will be in full swing shortly. The West Shore project involves construction of 285 miles of line 16 inches and 10 inches in diameter with modern pumping stations and metering facilities.

The system will deliver refined petroleum products from the Chicago area refineries to terminal points at Des Plaines and at Milwaukee and Green Bay, Wisconsin.

Initially, the new pipe line system will have a capacity of 85,000 BPD with provisions for future expansions and growth.

SERVICE PIN

Jordan holds a bachelor of science degree from Louisiana Tech in electrical engineering. He also is a member of the Sterlington Lions Club. He joined LP&L June 13, 1936, as a mechanic in the mechanical maintenance department. Later, he was promoted to engineer in maintenance department, and later headed that department, before being named assistant station superintendent, and finally superintendent of the station last year.

Crossett Co. Reports Earnings Up

3-Month Period Sales Increase Noted By Business

CROSSETT, Ark. (Special) — An improvement in overall sales and earnings was noted by The Crossett Company during the last three months — particularly May — enabling something of a comeback from the poor showing of the first quarter of 1961.

The Company's financial report for the six months period from December 1, 1960 through May revealed that sales were off 3 per cent and earnings were off 14 per cent from the same period of last year. However, these figures reflected a marked recovery from the first quarter of 1961 in which sales were off 8 per cent and net earnings were down 32 per cent from last year.

LUMBER SALES

Most of the recovery could be traced to improvements in lumber sales and continued good sales of sawlogs and poles from the company's forest.

Net sales totalled $23,100,000 for the first half of the fiscal year as compared with $23,780,000 during the same six months of 1960. Net earnings were $1,770,000 as compared with $2,070,000 for 1960.

At its April meeting, the Board of Direc'ors voted the regular third quarter dividend of 15 cents on Class A and Class B shares of stock payable August 1 to stockholders of record July 15.

In his report to stockholders, P. F. Watzek said:

Earnings from paper products continued to give us the most concern. Volume showed little of the customary second quarter pickup and prices dropped even further from previous low levels. The kraft paper market is still in a very poor state and the kraft mill is continuing to operate with practically no advance order file. A few days of production have been lost for lack of orders and while we may experience more downtime, no prolonged shutdown is expected. Our Triangle Bag operations also suffered from depressed prices although volume held up very well.

"The bleached foodboard mill is continuing to make progress coating a portion of its production. This has been a very tedious learning process but fortunately we have had orders to enable this operation to keep running full."

Charcoal and briquet sales have been "disappointing" so far this year due to prolonged cool weather. It was noted that Crossett Chemical Company now has an adequate working inventory of charcoal products for the summer rush and earnings should improve with the coming warmer weather.

Lumber sales improved during the last three months. Pine production was increased. An optimistic note was struck in the report regarding the Lumber Division when it was pointed out that earnings should be better now that hardwood units, which have been operating at a loss for several months, have been closed and pine production increased.

"The only bright spot in this year's earnings picture is a substantial earnings benefit from forest products sales. Sawlogs and poles sales have exceeded all past records and have made a valuable contribution toward holding up the corporate earnings," Watzek reported.

15-Year Loans Reported For Washington Bank

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Eugene Robert Black has a bank running not far from the White House here. It has loaned out more than $5.6 billion in the past 15 years or so, and expects to keep active for years to come.

The Atlanta-born Black, 63, is president of the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development, often known as the World Bank. Established in 1946-47, in the period immediately after World War II, it has 68 nations represented as subscribers to its stock, and holding voting rights.

A sister organization, the International Development Association, came into being last November, to augment the work of the bank, whose aim is to do all it can to make investment capital available for worthwhile programs to improve the economy of lesser developed countries of the world.

The bank's own breakdown of its loans to date show where it has been the most active up to now.

It has made a total of 285 loans, for such purposes as reconstruction; creation or expansion of electric power facilities; development of transportation, communications, agriculture and forestry, industry and general economic expansion.

It has made 34 loans to the emerging areas of Africa, in 14 countries or territories; 83 in Asia and the Middle East, involving 13 countries; 6 in Australia; 60 in 12 countries of Europe, and 102 among 15 countries of the Western Hemisphere, the Latin-American nations.

Management, Unions Get Talks Going

NEW YORK (AP) — Union and management squared off across the negotiating tables in three big industries during the week.

Last-ditch efforts were being made to settle the two-week-old maritime strike before President Kennedy seeks Taft-Hartley law injunction for an 80-day cooling-off period.

Government officials got the rival factions back into the conference rooms for more talks. Main issue is the unions' desire to organize crews on American-owned ships operating under flags of other countries.

The strike has made a sizable dent in deliveries of oil and other supplies and in passenger service. Hawaii and Puerto Rico were particularly hard hit.

Contract negotiations got under way between the United Auto Workers and General Motors, Chrysler and Ford. Contracts expire Aug 31.

Louis G. Seaton, GM vice president and chief negotiator, warning against inflation, said: "An excessive increase in labor costs, whether in the form of wages or in fringe benefits, can only contribute to unsound wage and price movements."

UAW President Walter P. Reuther countered that an expansion of purchasing power is needed and that the union "wants its share of the fruits of technology."

Negotiations were in progress between the Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers and Kennecott Copper Corp. The company offered a wage increase of 7½ cents an hour in a package it said was worth 10 cents an hour. The union demanded an 8½-cent wage boost.

President Kennedy told top labor leaders that the recession was over but acknowledged that "many economic problems will continue to confront us and demand our best efforts."

His statement was directed to the executive council of the American Federation of Labor and Congress of Industrial Organizations. The council replied that "real recovery is nowhere in sight" and that unemployment was "a basic and continuing affliction."

A congressional hearing on legislation to provide $750,000 to finance an investigation of stock markets and mutual funds brought a statement from Chairman William Cary of the Securities and Exchange Commission that there was "evidence of a substantial amount of manipulation."

The proposed inquiry was endorsed by William H. Claflin III, chairman of the National Association of Securities Dealers. Keith Funston, president of the New York Stock Exchange, said he felt the SEC should go ahead with investigations already under way but opposed broadening the inquiry to include the NYSE. He said he considered the NYSE's rules and enforcement adequate.

The consumers have gotten a break although they may not have realized it. The cost of living inched down one-tenth of one per cent in May. This was due mainly to a decline in meat and grocery costs.

However, the outlook for buyers is spotty. International Shoe Co. and Genesco, Inc., said they would raise shoe prices. Furniture manufacturers were reported considering increasing prices. The big Chicago mail order firm, Spiegel, Inc., issued a fall catalogue with prices averaging 1.5 per cent under a year ago.

Automobile dealers sold 156,438 new passenger cars in the middle 10 days of June at a daily rate 16.9 per cent above the first one-third of the month.

Production during the week slipped to an estimated 122,000 cars from 129,294 last week. The industry completed the first half of the year about 1.1 million cars behind the production rate of a year ago. The output was 2.7 million cars.

EASIER TO READ

By IRVING DESFOR
AP NEWSFEATURES

From a reader, J. M. in Loveland, Ohio, comes a query: "Isn't there an easier - to - read, more sensitie exposure meter, especially at low light levels? I shoot a lot of color and find present meters hard to handle, hard to read and not exact enough."

A good many camera fans are in the same boat. A light meter is not an automation; it's a gadget that requires human direction and judgement in handling. It must be set properly, pointed properly, evaluated and transferred properly to the camera's controls to fulfill its function. Most meters do not make the task easier because they look complicated, their numbers are too small to read easily, and the needle which indicates the light level often is confusingly hard to follow in their zig-zag paths.

However, there is a new type of battery-powered meter which seems to meet J.M's specifications. It's designed entirely differently from present meters and looks more like an optical instrument — which it is. It's called the "Heiland Pentax 3-21" exposure meter because it calculates the light from an area of only 3 degrees while its whole field of view is only 21 degrees.

The "3-21" is L-shaped. Its base is half box and half a lens barrel. Extending up from the box is an eye-piece. Looking into it is like looking through a telescope with a small target circle in the center. That target is the 3-degree spot being measured. The light-measuring scale is visible immediately below the circle with a "high" set of numbers above the line and a "low" set below the line.

Finger pressure on a button on the box sets a needle into action along the measuring scale in EVS (exposure value) numbers, from 0 to 17, are read. In low light levels, the button is pressed all the way down and the bottom numbers, from 0 to 11, are read.

Around the lens barrel are two sets of calibrated rings with easy-to-read numbers. On one, the ASA film speed is set for whatever type of film is in the camera. The other ring is rotated to bring the EVS number indicated by the needle against a red dot. This brings into alignment the correct exposure combinations for the photographer to study and choose. The meter's sensitive range offers a choice from a speed of 1-4000 to 4 seconds at lens openings of from f-1 to f-45.

What makes the "3-21" so sensitive? Besides the optical reflex viewing system, it has a cadmium sulfide light measuring cell which is battery operated. This combination is far more powerful than the selenium cell, the light-measuring standard for present meters. It was made feasible by recent developments in wafer-thin, long-life mercury batteries. The new meter uses two 1.3 volt mercury batteries and one 22.5 volt dry cell.

The practical advantage of this type meter is that you can take an exposure reading from camera position of a specific tiny target like a face, if people are the prime subjects, or a costume or an animal or whatever is important in the composition, no matter how far it is. You can compare the brightness of a scene's light portions with its shadow areas and make a high-key exposure or decide to penetrate the shadows. Here again, correct exposure is a matter of judgement but you can visually pick out what you want.

Needless to say, all these advantages have a price. The "3-21" is more expensive than present meters.

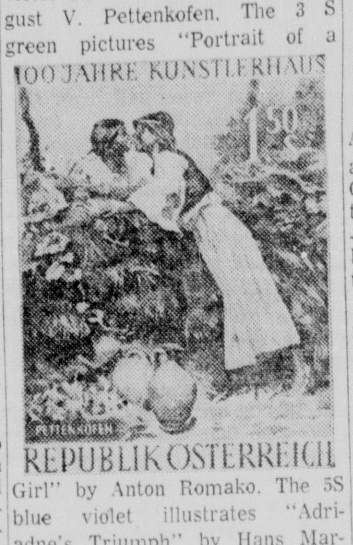
SLEEPING CHILD, bundled in daddy's coat, was blissfully unaware that he posed a tough exposure problem. It was solved by the Pentax 3/21 meter by reading face and detail in light coat at 1/50th at f/6.3 with Tri-X.

HONORS ARTISTS

Series Of Four Stamps Issued

A series of four special stamps showing pictures by famous local artists has been issued by Austria. The set commemorates the 100th anniversary of the Society of Viennese artists.

The 1 Schilling red violet depicts "The Mountain Mower" by Albin Egger - Lenz. The 1.50 S violet shows "The Kiss" by August V. Pettenkofen. The 3 S green pictures "Portrait of a Girl" by Anton Romako. The 5S blue violet illustrates "Adriadne's Triumph" by Hans Markart.



The 1961 stamp program for Austrian will include: one stamp for Somblick Observatory, five for nationalized factories, one for the World's Bankers Congress, a commemorative for composer Franz Liszt and one for the 200th anniversary of the Court of Auditors.

Greece will issue a Crete liberation set consisting of eight stamps. The 20 L will show a Cretan vase with lily motif, 50 L birds, 1 Dr fruits, 1.50 Dr young man holding a cornucopia, 2.50 Dr Assembly of Women, 4.50 Dr Lily fresco from the Palace of Aminissos, 6 Dr Dancer, 10 Dr two Cretan vases.

West Germany has issued two new stamps honoring Gottlieb Daimler and Carl Benz to mark the 75th anniversary of a patent they received for a power-driven auto, reports the World Wide Philatelic Agency. Each of the stamps contains a drawing of an early Daimler-Benz car. The 10 pfennig is in green with Daimler's autograph in black. The 20 pfennig shows a white auto and a red background with Benz's signature in black.

Also from the same source is the news that the city of West Berlin will honor the 10th anniversary of German Evangelic Day on July 19 with the issuance of two new stamps. The 1 pf green and violet will show the emblem of St. Mary's Church. The 20 pf red and violet will depict the ruins of Kaiser Wilhelm Memorial Church.

Paraguay has issued a set of eight stamps commemorating Chaco Peace. The five lowest values are regular mail and the three highest are airmail.

Holiday Inn Motel Slated For Ruston

Acutal construction of the half-million dollar project was begun Saturday, even before the contract for $448,539 was signed.

H. B. Maxwell, owner of Lincoln Hotel Courts at Ruston is president of the new corporation. Other members of the corporation include T. C. Beasley, John Ed Barnes, E. W. Hodge, Buddy Glasgow, Floyd James and Bill James.

Beasley said yesterday that the $448,539 contract did not include brick work and the swimming pool, which will bring the total cost for the Inn to about $480,000.

The Inn is being constructed on land near the intersection of Interstate 20 and U.S. 167 on the north side of the right - of - way.

An additional 40 units are planned for the Holiday Inn as soon as the four - lane Interstate highway is completed from Shreveport to Monroe, Beasley said.

The main dining room will seat 100 guests with annexes for banquets, conventions and parties to serve another 200.

The building will be triple A fire proof and sound proof. The walls will be double construction to avoid noise and interiors will follow Holiday Inn design used throughout the nation.

Cox Is Named Vice President Of Gas Firm

The board of directors of Southwest Gas Producing Co., Inc., today elected R. F. Cox, vice president in charge of production, and Al E. Beasley, vice president in charge of exploration.

Cox joined the company in 1948 as district engineer for the Dubach, La. district and in 1954 was appointed chief engineer and transferred to the Monroe office. Since 1955, he has been general production superintendent.

Beasley was employed as a landman in 1947, became head of the land department in 1952, transferred ot the Lafayette office in 1954 as district exploration manager, and returned to the Monroe office as general exploration manager in 1960.

DIVIDEND

Acme Brick Company, pioneer clay products firm with Monroe plant and sales office on Route 3, has declared a quarterly dividend of 30 cents per share.

The dividend is payable July 7, to shareholders of record June 30. President Neill Boldrick made the announcement.

Acme is one of the nation's leading producers of brick and tile.

SALES UP

Lee Edwards, local Volkswagen dealer, said this week that new Volkswagen passenger car registrations in the United States during the month of April totaled 14,446, a gain of 5.3 per cent over the 13,715 sold during the same month last year.

Pipeline Firm Reassigns 61 Area Employees

FERRIDAY (Special) — The Interstate Oil Pipe Line Company of Shreveport, has announced the reassignment of sixty one employees including a group from the Ferriday office and from this area.

These employees will be assigned temporarily to supervise construction of the West Shore Pipe Company system in Illinois and Wisconsin. A number of employees have been at the West Shore headquarters in Des Plaines, Illinois for several months.

Assigned from the Ferriday area are: (Louisiana District): T. B. Bell, Jr., welding inspector; R. C. Clanton, welding inspector; R. E. Melancon, inspector; L. M. Nowlin, Jr., inspector; W. E. Payne, inspector; C. C. Templeton, inspector, all of Ferriday; N. J. Cole, inspector, of Vidalia; W. L. Crawford, material - clerical of Natchez, Miss; C. H. Eads, inspector of Rayville; and J. R. Reeves, inspector of Clayton.

West Shore is a new common carrier pipe line company, owned by Interstate and nine other oil firms. Interstate was selected to superise the design, route selection, right - of - way acquisition and construction for West Shore.

Contracts have been awarded for laying the lines, and it is anticipated that construction will be in full swing shortly. The West Shore project involves construction of 285 miles of line 16 inches and 10 inches in diameter with modern pumping stations and metering facilities.

The system will deliver refined petroleum products from the Chicago area refineries to terminal points at Des Plaines and at Milwaukee and Green Bay, Wisconsin.

Initially, the new pipe line system will have a capacity of 85,000 BPD with provisions for future expansions and growth.

SERVICE PIN

Jordan holds a bachelor of science degree from Louisiana Tech in electrical engineering. He also is a member of the Sterlington Lions Club. He joined LP&L June 13, 1936, as a mechanic in the mechanical maintenance department. Later, he was promoted to engineer in maintenance department, and later headed that department, before being named assistant station superintendent, and finally superintendent of the station last year.

Crossett Co. Reports Earnings Up

3-Month Period Sales Increase Noted By Business

CROSSETT, Ark. (Special) — An improvement in overall sales and earnings was noted by The Crossett Company during the last three months — particularly May — enabling something of a comeback from the poor showing of the first quarter of 1961.

The Company's financial report for the six months period from December 1, 1960 through May revealed that sales were off 3 per cent and earnings were off 14 per cent from the same period of last year. However, these figures reflected a marked recovery from the first quarter of 1961 in which sales were off 8 per cent and net earnings were down 32 per cent from last year.

LUMBER SALES

Most of the recovery could be traced to improvements in lumber sales and continued good sales of sawlogs and poles from the company's forest.

Net sales totalled $23,100,000 for the first half of the fiscal year as compared with $23,780,000 during the same six months of 1960. Net earnings were $1,770,000 as compared with $2,070,000 for 1960.

At its April meeting, the Board of Directors voted the regular third quarter dividend of 15 cents on Class A and Class B shares of stock payable August 1 to stockholders of record July 15.

In his report to stockholders, P. F. Watzek said:

Earnings from paper products continued to give us the most concern. Volume showed little of the customary second quarter pickup and prices dropped even further from previous low levels. The kraft paper market is still in a very poor state and the kraft mill is continuing to operate with practically no advance order file. A few days of production have been lost for lack of orders and while we may experience more downtime, no prolonged shutdown is expected. Our Triangle Bag operations also suffeed from depressed prices although volume held up very well.

"The bleached foodboard mill is continuing to make progress coating a portion of its production. This has been a very tedious learning process but fortunately we have had orders to enable this operation to keep running full."

Charcoal and briquet sales have been "disappointing" so far this year due to prolonged cool weather. It was noted that Crossett Chemical Company now has an adequate working inventory of charcoal products for the summer rush and earnings should improve with the coming warmer weather.

Lumber sales improved during the last three months. Pine production was increased. An optimistic note was struck in the report regarding the Lumber Division when it was pointed out that earnings should be better now that hardwood units, which have been operating at a loss for several months, have been closed and pine production increased.

"The only bright spot in this year's earnings picture is a substantial earnings benefit from forest products sales. Sawlogs and poles sales have exceeded all past records and have made a valuable contribution toward holding up the corporate earnings," Watzek reported.

15-Year Loans Reported For Washington Bank

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Eugene Robert Black has a bank running not far from the White House here. It has loaned out more than $5.6 billion in the past 15 years or so, and expects to keep active for years to come.

The Atlanta-born Black, 63, is president of the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development, often known as the World Bank. Established in 1946-47, in the period immediately after World War II, it has 68 nations represented as subscribers to its stock, and holding voting rights.

A sister organization, the International Development Association, came into being last November, to augment the work of the bank, whose aim is to do all it can to make investment capital available for worthwhile programs to improve the economy of lesser developed countries of the world.

The bank's own breakdown of its loans to date show where it has been the most active up to now.

It has made a total of 285 loans, for such purposes as reconstruction; creation or expansion of electric power facilities; development of transportation, communications, agriculture and forestry, industry and general economic expansion.

It has made 34 loans to the emerging areas of Africa, in 14 countries or territories; 83 in Asia and the Middle East, involving 13 countries; 6 in Australia; 60 in 12 countries of Europe, and 102 among 15 countries of the Western Hemisphere, the Latin-American nations.

CONTINUE DOMINATION

Tigers Outslug Baltimore, 11-8

BALTIMORE (AP)—The league leading Detroit Tigers continued their domination of the Baltimore Orioles Saturday, scoring four runs in the 11th inning for an 11-8 victory.

It was the second successive extra-inning triumph here for the Tigers, who have won five straight games in Baltimore and have a 6-1 edge over the Orioles this season.

Billy Bruton and Rocky Colavito, whose outfield collision in the ninth enabled Baltimore to tie the score, sparked the winning rally.

Bruton, who had struck out three times and hit into two double plays in five previous trips, walked to lead off the inning. Bruton moved to second on a sacrifice and scored on Colavito's double, his third hit of the game and seventh in two games.

An intentional walk to Norm Cash, who upped his league-leading batting average to .373 with three hits, and an error by pitcher Dick Hyde scored Colavito. Then Jake Wood knocked in two more with a triple.

Gus Triandos hit a homer off Bill Fischer, the fourth Tiger pitcher, to complete the scoring in the bottom of the 11th.

Jim Gentile hit two homers and drove in four Baltimore runs to increase his rbi total to 72, best in the league.

Baltimore tied the score 7-7 in the ninth when pinchhitter Jim Busby's leadoff drive fell for a triple as Colavito and Bruton collided. After Hank Aguirre walked two batters, Dave Philley blooped a pinch single into short center for two runs.

BRAVES DUMP

Burdette In First Win Over Cincy

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Lew Burdette scored his first victory of the season over Cincinnati Saturday 5-1 but needed help from reliever Don McMahon in the ninth.

The fidgety right-hander, now 8-5, had a shutout going until the ninth. He held the Redlegs to eight hits to get the decision over right-hander Ken Hunt, now 8-4. It was Burdette's fourth victory in a row.

Burdette gave up a run to the Reds in the ninth when Vada Pinson singled, took second on an attempt to pick him off as he swung wide around first, and scored on a single by Gus Bell. With two out and a runner on second, McMahon forced Gene Freese to pop up for the final out of the game.

Successive home run blasts by Henry Aaron and Joe Adcock—their 15th and 13th respectively—off Jay Hook in the sixth helped Burdette, and Lew aided his own cause with a third inning leadoff double. He moved to third on a sacrifice and scored on Frank Bolling's double.

Chicago Cub Hitters Bomb St. Louis, 13-1

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago Cubs uncorked a 16-hit attack, a seven-run fifth inning and three home runs to jolt the St. Louis Cardinals 13-1 Saturday. It was only Chicago's third victory in 11 starts against the Cards.

Chicago's Ed Bouchee hit a solo homer in the second and league-leading batter George Altman and Bill Williams slammed back-to-back homers in a three-run Cub sixth. The Cubs now have smashed 20 homers in their last seven games.

Dick Ellsworth notched his third victory of the season—and second over the Cardinals—against five defeats as he scattered nine hits.

The Cubs' big fifth inning included three triples—by Altman, Williams and Jerry Kindall, whose two-run blast wound up the rampage.

The loser was Bob Miller, first of four Cardinal pitchers, although Larry Jackson and Maury McDermott were victims of Chicago's seven-run fifth.

The first Cub run came as Ernie Banks, ailing slugger, singled across a first inning run. Banks returned to the lineup at shortstop, a position he vacated because of a bad knee on May 23. He had benched himself as a first baseman recently to rest his bad knee.

Twins Doom Kansas City On Homers

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Minnesota Twins humbled Kansas City 9-3 Saturday as Harmon Killebrew hit a grand slam homer in the final inning.

Lefty Jim Kaat limited the Athletics to six singles.

It was the sixth straight loss for the sagging Athletics who have dropped 13 of their last 17 games.

Two errors in the first inning following Lou Klimchock's single gave the A's a brief 2-0 lead.

The Twins tied the score in the third on hits by Bill Tuttle, Billy Martin and Killebrew and went ahead 3-2 on Earl Beatty's home run in the next frame. Then they knocked out starter Bob Shaw with a four-hit attack in the sixth inning. Battey, who had hit a double in addition to his homer, started the rally with a single. Three more hits by Tuttle, Kaat and Gene Green, plus an error by Reno Bertoia brought in two runs.

Shaw, who gave up all the Minnesota runs, lost his seventh game in 11 decisions. Jerry Staley Ed Rakow and Bill Kunkel followed Shaw on the mound.

Kaat's double off Kunkel and a pair of errors by Dick Howser at shortstop filled the bases and set the stage for Killebrew's big hit. It was his 23rd home run of the season.

DISTANCE JUST RIGHT

Globemaster Win At Handicap Easy

NEW YORK (AP) — Globemaster, who found the rich early spring stakes a little too long, used his vaunted speed to an advantage Saturday and easily won the mile of the $28,750 Saranac Handicap for 3-year-old horses at Aqueduct.

With Johnny Rotz in the saddle, the son of Heliopolis from Leonard P. Sasso's stable took command early in the race, opening up a three-length margin in the home stretch and hit the finish line 2½ lengths in front of Mrs. Ethel D. Jacobs' late-running Dr. Miller.

Mrs. A. Garland's lightly regarded Hi Greco was beaten a nose for runnerup honors.

Globemaster, who cost $80,000 as a yearling and then gave promise of being a distance runner by beating Carry Back in the 1⅛ miles of the Wood Memorial, set burning paces in the longer Preakness and Belmont stakes only to wind up second. And he was sixth in the Kentucky Derby after battling for the early lead.

But here the distance and opposition was right down his alley. He bounded past Ogden Phipps' Hitting Away after one-quarter mile and never seriously was threatened as he reeled off the mile in 1:36 3-5 under top weight of 125 pounds. Hitting Away faded to seventh in the eight-horse field.

Globemaster paid $3.20, $2.40 and $2.20 in picking up $18,687.50 and running his 1961 bankroll to $158,559.50. Dr. Miller returned $3.80 and $3.10 and Hi Greci, outsider in the field, $5.60 to show.

Kirkland Hot In Indians 7-3 Victory

BOSTON (AP)—Unbeaten Barry Latman of Cleveland got his bullpen reprieve Saturday and defeated Boston 7-3 while Willie Kirkland led his support.

Latman, the big right-hander making his first pitching start of the season, posted his seventh straight triumph as he scattered 11 hits.

Kirkland, the dangerous .237 hitter of the third place Indians, spearheaded the offense by driving in three runs with a bases loaded single and a double.

Woodie Held, Tito Francona, Bubba Phillips and Vic Power also added two safeties apiece to the 14 hit attack in which all the starters participated.

Cleveland never was headed after jumping off to a 4-0 first inning lead built on four singles, a walk, the first of Francona's two doubles and a fielder's choice. Red Sox rookie Galen Cisco was the victim.

Latman had yielded nothing but singles until the last inning when Gary Geiger slammed out his seventh homer of the season with the bases empty. Three singles and a walk produced the other Boston runs in the third.

Podres Wins Eighth Game Beats Phils

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Left-hander Johnny Podres won his eighth game as the Los Angeles Dodgers moved within a game and a half of the National League leading Cincinnati Reds by beating the Philadelphia Phillies 5-2 Saturday night.

The Dodgers, after trailing most of the game, tied the score 2-2 in the sixth on an RBI triple by Norm Larker. They then routed losing pitcher John Buzhardt with a three-run flurry in the eighth inning with Daryl Spencer's two-run single with the bases loaded as the main wallop.

Tommy Davis led the Dodger attack with four straight singles. The Phillies managed only six hits—with one of their runs scoring on a wild pitch in the second—off Podres before Larry Sherry took over in the eighth and preserved the victory.

Podres has lost one game this season. It was Buzhardt's 10th loss in 12 decisions.

The Dodgers' Wally Moon was hit on the protective helmet by a Buzhardt fast ball in the fourth inning. After being helped to his feet, Wally headed for Buzhardt but he was restrained and assisted off the field.

Heuer Winner

NEW YORK WINS

Marris Homer In Ninth Saves Day

NEW YORK (AP)—Roger Maris' 28th homer with Tony Kubek on base in the ninth inning gave the New York Yankees a 7-6 victory over Washington Saturday. Mickey Mantle hit two tremendous homers and drove in the first tour Yankee runs.

Dale Long had broken a 5-5 tie and put Washington out front with a lead off homer in the ninth off Jim Coates, the third Yank pitcher. Luis Arroyo, who bailed him out in the ninth, was the winner. Dave Sisler who faced only two men and gave up a single to Kubek and a homer to Maris, both on the first pitch, was the loser.

Washington hopped on starter Bill Stafford for three runs in the second when Gene Green walked, Long singled and Marty Keough hit an inside-the-park home run.

Mantle's first home run, No. 26 of the season, came with nobody on in the second. It was a blast into the left field bleachers over the 457-foot mark, the 12th ever hit into that area in the stadium. It was his 1,000th run batted in.

The Senators lengthened their lead in the third on a two-run homer by Green, following a walk to Billy Klaus.

Mantle's 27th of the year was a 450-footer off starter Carl Mathias following singles by Kubek and Maris in the third, slicing Washington's lead to 5-4. When Bill Skowron and Bob Cerv singled, Mathias was replaced by Joe McClain.

The entire Washington infield shifted to the right when Mantle came up in the seventh after hitting two homers and a single. Mantle walked, stole second and raced home with the tying run on Elston Howard's single.

McCovey Bats Giants Past Pittsburgh

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Willie McCovey's run-scoring double in the eighth—his second of the game—earned San Francisco a 4-3 triumph Saturday over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

McCovey's first double was one of three key hits in the Giants' two-run sixth that knotted the score at 3-3. Jim Davenport's bases-empty homer accounted for the Giants other run in the third.

Right-hander Sam Jones picked up the victory in relief, scattering two hits over the last five frames. The loser was Bob Friend, now 8-9. Jones relieved starter Jack Sanford with the Giants trailing 3-1.

The Giants took a 1-0 lead in the third on Davenport's sixth homer of the year, but the Pirates bounced back with a two-run sock by Billy Virdon.

Singles by Roberto Clemente, Hal Smith and Billy Mazeroski hiked the Pirates' margin to 3-1 in the fourth. Up until the sixth Friend had allowed the Giants only two hits.

CONTINUE DOMINATION

Tigers Outslug Baltimore, 11-8

BALTIMORE (AP)—The league leading Detroit Tigers continued their domination of the Baltimore Orioles Saturday, scoring four runs in the 11th inning for an 11-8 victory.

It was the second successive extra-inning triumph here for the Tigers, who have won five straight games in Baltimore and have a 6-1 edge over the Orioles this season.

Billy Bruton and Rocky Colavito, whose outfield collision in the ninth enabled Baltimore to tie the score, sparked the winning rally.

Bruton, who had struck out three times and hit into two double plays in five previous trips, walked to lead off the inning. Bruton moved to second on a sacrifice and scored on Colavito's double, his third hit of the game and seventh in two games.

An intentional walk to Norm Cash, who upped his league-leading batting average to .373 with three hits, and an error by pitcher Dick Hyde scored Colavito. Then Jake Wood knocked in two more with a triple.

Gus Triandos hit a homer off Bill Fischer, the fourth Tiger pitcher, to complete the scoring in the bottom of the 11th.

Jim Gentile hit two homers and drove in four Baltimore runs to increase his rbi total to 72, best in the league.

Baltimore tied the score 7-7 in the ninth when pinchhitter Jim Busby's leadoff drive fell for a triple as Colavito and Bruton collided. After Hank Aguirre walked two batters, Dave Philley blooped a pinch single into short center for two runs.

BRAVES DUMP

Burdette In First Win Over Cincy

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Lew Burdette scored his first victory of the season over Cincinnati Saturday 5-1 but needed help from reliever Don McMahon in the ninth.

The fidgety right-hander, now 8-5, had a shutout going until the ninth. He held the Redlegs to eight hits to get the decision over right-hander Ken Hunt, now 8-4. It was Burdette's fourth victory in a row.

Burdette gave up a run to the Reds in the ninth when Vada Pinson singled, took second on an attempt to pick him off as he swung wide around first, and scored on a single by Gus Bell. With two out and a runner on second, McMahon forced Gene Freese to pop up for the final out of the game.

Successive home run blasts by Henry Aaron and Joe Adcock—their 15th and 13th respectively—off Jay Hook in the sixth helped Burdette, and Lew aided his own cause with a third inning leadoff double. He moved to third on a sacrifice and scored on Frank Bolling's double.

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago Cubs uncorked a 16-hit attack, a seven-run fifth inning and three home runs to jolt the St. Louis Cardinals 13-1 Saturday. It was only Chicago's third victory in 11 starts against the Cards.

Chicago's Ed Bouchee hit a solo homer in the second and league-leading batter George Altman and Bill Williams slammed back-to-back homers in a three-run Cub sixth. The Cubs now have smashed 20 homers in their last seven games.

Dick Ellsworth notched his third victory of the season—and second over the Cardinals—against five defeats as he scattered nine hits.

The Cubs' big fifth inning included three triples—by Altman, Williams and Jerry Kindall, whose two-run blast wound up the rampage.

The loser was Bob Miller, first of four Cardinal pitchers, although Larry Jackson and Maury McDermott were victims of Chicago's seven-run fifth.

The first Cub run came as Ernie Banks, ailing slugger, singled across a first inning run. Banks returned to the lineup at shortstop, a position he vacated because of a bad knee on May 23. He had benched himself as a first baseman recently to rest his bad knee.

Twins Doom Kansas City On Homers

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Minnesota Twins humbled Kansas City 9-3 Saturday as Harmon Killebrew hit a grand slam homer in the final inning.

Lefty Jim Kaat limited the Athletics to six singles.

It was the sixth straight loss for the sagging Athletics who have dropped 13 of their last 17 games.

Two errors in the first inning following Lou Klimchock's single gave the A's a brief 2-0 lead.

The Twins tied the score in the third on hits by Bill Tuttle, Billy Martin and Killebrew and went ahead 3-2 on Earl Beatty's home run in the next frame. Then they knocked out starter Bob Shaw with a four-hit attack in the sixth inning. Battey, who had hit a double in addition to his homer, started the rally with a single. Three more hits by Tuttle, Kaat and Gene Green, plus an error by Reno Bertoia brought in two runs.

Shaw, who gave up all the Minnesota runs, lost his seventh game in 11 decisions. Jerry Staley Ed Rakow and Bill Kunkel followed Shaw on the mound.

Kaat's double off Kunkel and a pair of errors by Dick Howser at shortstop filled the bases and set the stage for Killebrew's big hit. It was his 23rd home run of the season.

DISTANCE JUST RIGHT

Globemaster Win At Handicap Easy

NEW YORK (AP) — Globemaster, who found the rich early spring stakes a little too long, used his vaunted speed to an advantage Saturday and easily won the mile of the $28,750 Saranac Handicap for 3-year-old horses at Aqueduct.

With Johnny Rotz in the saddle, the son of Heliopolis from Leonard P. Sasso's stable took command early in the race, opening up a three-length margin in the home stretch and hit the finish line 2½ lengths in front of Mrs. Ethel D. Jacobs' late-running Dr. Miller.

Mrs. A. Garland's lightly regarded Hi Greco was beaten a nose for runnerup honors.

Globemaster, who cost $80,000 as a yearling and then gave promise of being a distance runner by beating Carry Back in the 1⅛-miles of the Wood Memorial, set burning paces in the longer Preakness and Belmont stakes only to wind up second. And he was sixth in the Kentucky Derby after battling for the early lead.

But here the distance and opposition was right down his alley. He bounded past Ogden Phipps' Hitting Away after one-quarter mile and never seriously was threatened as he reeled off the mile in 1:36 3-5 under top weight of 125 pounds. Hitting Away faded to seventh in the eight-horse field.

Globemaster paid $3.20, $2.40 and $2.20 in picking up $18,687.50 and running his 1961 bankroll to $158,559.50. Dr. Miller returned $3.80 and $3.10 and Hi Greci, outsider in the field, $5.60 to show.

Kirkland Hot In Indians 7-3 Victory

BOSTON (AP)—Unbeaten Barry Latman of Cleveland got his bullpen reprieve Saturday and defeated Boston 7-3 while Willie Kirkland led his support.

Latman, the big right-hander making his first pitching start of the season, posted his seventh straight triumph as he scattered 11 hits.

Kirkland, the dangerous .237 hitter of the third place Indians, spearheaded the offense by driving in three runs with a bases loaded single and a double.

Woodie Held, Tito Francona, Bubba Phillips and Vic Power also added two safeties apiece to the 14 hit attack in which all the starters participated.

Cleveland never was headed after jumping off to a 4-0 first inning lead built on four singles, a walk, the first of Francona's two doubles and a fielder's choice. Red Sox rookie Galen Cisco was the victim.

Latman had yielded nothing but singles until the last inning when Gary Geiger slammed out his seventh homer of the season with the bases empty. Three singles and a walk produced the other Boston runs in the third.

Podres Wins Eighth Game Beats Phils

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Lefthander Johnny Podres won his eighth game as the Los Angeles Dodgers moved within a game and a half of the National League leading Cincinnati Reds by beating the Philadelphia Phillies 5-2 Saturday night.

The Dodgers, after trailing most of the game, tied the score 2-2 in the sixth on an RBI triple by Norm Larker. They then routed losing pitcher John Buzhardt with a three-run flurry in the eighth inning with Daryl Spencer's two-run single with the bases loaded as the main wallop.

Tommy Davis led the Dodger attack with four straight singles. The Phillies managed only six hits—with one of their runs scoring on a wild pitch in the second—off Podres before Larry Sherry took over in the eighth and preserved the victory.

Podres has lost one game this season. It was Buzhardt's 10th loss in 12 decisions.

The Dodgers' Wally Moon was hit on the protective helmet by a Buzhardt fast ball in the fourth inning. After being helped to his feet, Wally headed for Buzhardt but he was restrained and assisted off the field.

Heuer Winner

Marris Homer In Ninth Saves Day

NEW YORK (AP)—Roger Maris' 28th homer with Tony Kubek on base in the ninth inning gave the New York Yankees a 7-6 victory over Washington Saturday. Mickey Mantle hit two tremendous homers and drove in the first tour Yankee runs.

Dale Long had broken a 5-5 tie and put Washington out front with a lead off homer in the ninth off Jim Coates, the third Yank pitcher. Luis Arroyo, who bailed him out in the ninth, was the winner. Dave Sisler who faced only two men and gave up a single to Kubek and a homer to Maris, both on the first pitch, was the loser.

Washington hopped on starter Bill Stafford for three runs in the second when Gene Green walked, Long singled and Marty Keough hit an inside-the-park home run.

Mantle's first home run, No. 26 of the season, came with nobody on in the second. It was a blast into the left field bleachers over the 457-foot mark, the 12th ever hit into that area in the stadium. It was his 1,000th run batted in.

The Senators lengthened their lead in the third on a two-run homer by Green, following a walk to Billy Klaus.

Mantle's 27th of the year was a 450-footer off starter Carl Mathias following singles by Kubek and Maris in the third, slicing Washington's lead to 5-4. When Bill Skowron and Bob Cerv singled, Mathias was replaced by Joe McClain.

The entire Washington infield shifted to the right when Mantle came up in the seventh after hitting two homers and a single. Mantle walked, stole second and raced home with the tying run on Elston Howard's single.

McCovey Bats Giants Past Pittsburgh

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Willie McCovey's run-scoring double in the eighth—his second of the game—earned San Francisco a 4-3 triumph Saturday over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

McCovey's first double was one of three key hits in the Giants' two-run sixth that knotted the score at 3-3. Jim Davenport's bases-empty homer accounted for the Giants other run in the third.

Right-hander Sam Jones picked up the victory in relief, scattering two hits over the last five frames. The loser was Bob Friend, now 8-9. Jones relieved starter Jack Sanford with the Giants trailing 3-1.

The Giants took a 1-0 lead in the third on Davenport's sixth homer of the year, but the Pirates bounced back with a two-run sock by Billy Virdon.

Singles by Roberto Clemente, Hal Smith and Billy Mazeroski hiked the Pirates' margin to 3-1 in the fourth. Up until the sixth Friend had allowed the Giants only two hits.

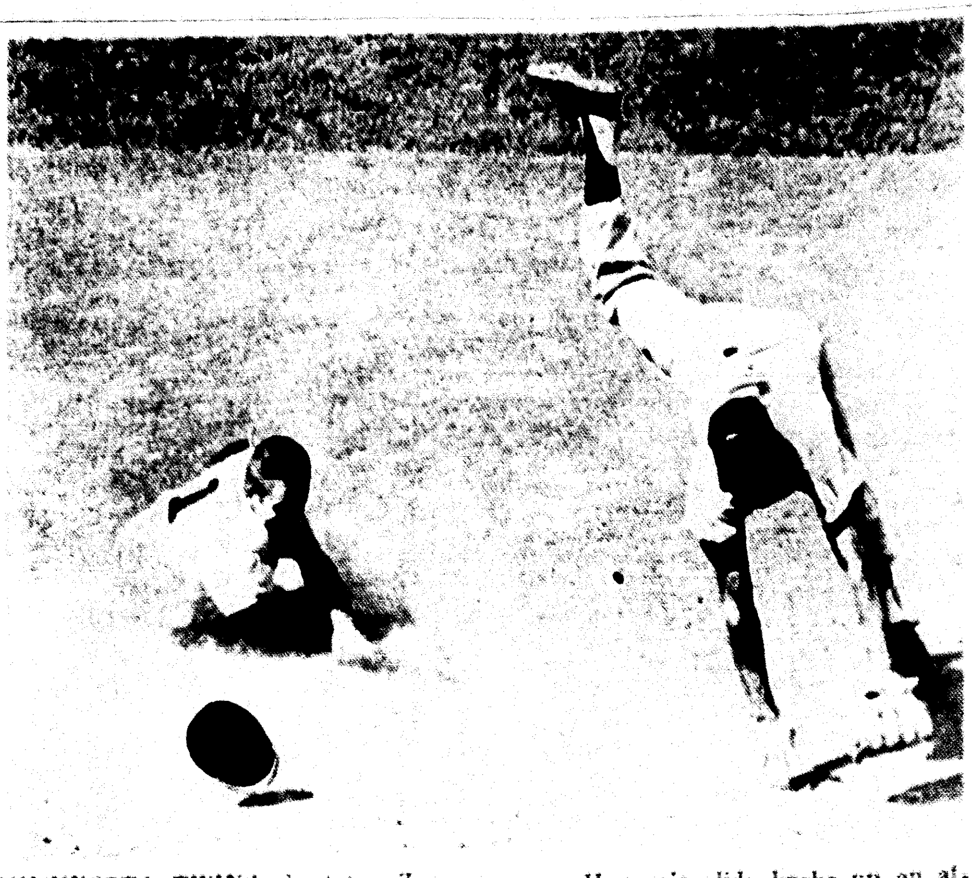
Four Return To All-Stars



MINNESOTA TWINS shortstop Zorro Versalles (right) almost goes into handstand after he was upset by Kansas City's Dick Howser in a forced out at second in the fifth inning of yesterday's game. Howser's slide broke up an attempt to double-up A's Norm Siebern. Siebern had hit to Twin's second baseman Billy Martin. Minnesota won the game 9-3.

Triple Deadlock Holds Up Second Day In Flint Open

FLINT, Mich. (AP) — The jam-up continued in the $53,000 Flint Open Saturday, as Billy Casper, Dave Ragan and Johnny Pott remained in a triple deadlock for the lead after 54 holes.

The trio of pace-setters had identical 37-34—71 third rounds and shared the lead with 211—5 under par.

Casper, Ragan and Pott—all non-winners in 1961—had gone into the day's play at par 36-36—72 Warwick Hills bunched ahead at 140.

A clutch 12-foot putt on the 18th green saved Casper's portion of the lead. He came out of a trap into the green and needed the putt to stay with the two 25-year-old Southerners.

The threesome withstood challenges from Jackie Burke and Lee Raymond, both with 214, and Jerry Steelsmith. Steelsmith, a rookie from Glendale, Calif., had the day's best 18 holes, shooting a 66 for a 215 total.

Bob Rosburg, former PGA champion, was the only other player equaling par for three rounds on the 7,280-yard layout. He had a 216 total.

Casper, winner of the inaugural Flint Open in 1958 and National Open champion the following year, rallied with his only three birdies on the 10th, 11th and 12th holes.

He went over par on 13 and finished with five straight pars, capped by his pressure putt.

Pott, a touring newcomer from Shreveport, La., had two pars on the back nine to keep pace with his coleaders. He could have taken sole command by sinking a 12-footer on 18, but missed it by 2 inches.

Ragan, a 25-year-old Floridian, needed birdies on the 17th and 18th holes to maintain his share of the lead.

"My putts on those two holes really chased me," said Ragan.

The field was cut to the low 62 pros who totaled 223 or better for Sunday's final round. If there is a tie after 72 holes, an 18-hole playoff will be held Monday.

JOHNSON IN WIN

Philly Fighter Gets Decision

By MURRAY ROSE

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Harold Johnson, National Boxing Association light heavyweight champion, racked up his 15th straight victory and moved high in the heavyweight ranks Saturday night by outpointing Eddie Machen in a non-title 10-rounder at Convention Hall.

Referee Paul Cavalier, the sole scorecard, had Johnson in front 7-3.

It was a dull duel of left jabs most of the way between two scientific and cautious boxers who respected each other. This resulted in boos from the fans as early as the fourth round and it wasn't until the eighth round that they each got in some solid licks.

Johnson, the 8-5 favorite, weighed 181 pounds, the heaviest of his career. Machen, the No. 2 heavyweight contender from Portland, Ore., weighed 192.

Johnson, of Philadelphia, now has a 66-8 record. Machen's record is 27-4-1. The West Coast fighter again lost the big fight he had to win to stay in contention for a shot at Floyd Patterson's weight crown.

Referee Cavalier gave Johnson the first, second, fourth, seventh and eighth rounds. He gave Machen the third, fifth, sixth, and ninth and called the 10th round even. The AP card gave Machen the third, fifth and ninth rounds and Johnson the other seven.

In the fifth round Machen connected with a couple of good punches and was going well when he suddenly held up his right hand in front of his face. He appeared to be temporarily blinded. Johnson bore in and scored with both hands to the jaw just before the bell.

In the fifth Johnson was cut over the right eye but it didn't hamper him until the ninth round when Eddie landed a solid hook which widened the gash and brought blood flowing.

It was in the eighth that the solidly built champion, spurred by the boos and the handclapping of fans, opened up with both hands, following up his jabs with a series of fast left-right combinations to the head that drew cheers from the fans.

Hemus Predicts Own Exodus If Cards Keep Sag

CHICAGO (AP)—Solly Hemus, manager of the downtrodden St. Louis Cardinals, indicated Saturday he doesn't expect to be rehired for next year unless the club does an about-face.

The Red Birds, beaten by the Cubs 13-1 for the 15th loss in their last 22 games, are mired in sixth place, eight games below .500.

Hemus received a vote of confidence of sorts from club owner August A. Busch Jr., a few hours before the game. Busch, admittedly discouraged with the club's lackluster showing, said he was "quite sure" Solly would finish out the season as manager but that it was "premature" to talk about next year.

"I'm going to try to keep winning," said Hemus. "Whether I'm here next year or not, I feel we're going in the right direction with young ball players, though at the moment we might have too much youth.

Sluggers Are Only Repeats On 1961 Squad

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK (AP)—Roger Maris and Mickey Mantle, the New York Yankees' one-two punch, Willie Mays of San Francisco and Eddie Mathews of Milwaukee were the only repeaters from 1960 named Saturday to the starting lineups for the All-Star Baseball games July 11 at San Francisco and July 31 at Boston.

The result of the vote by major league players, coaches and managers was announced from the office of Commissioner Ford Frick. There were 293 votes from the 10-club American League and 233 from the eight-club National. Frank Slocum of Frick's office conducted the poll.

Norm Cash, the American League's leading hitter, and home run hitting sensation of the Detroit Tigers who made the team for the first time, was the top vote-getter with 235 or 80 per cent. Frank Bolling, Milwaukee second baseman who never made the American team in his years with Detroit, topped the national vote with 182 or 78 per cent of the ballots.

Johnny Temple, who played in four All-Star games for the National at Cincinnati, made the American League team as the Cleveland second baseman. Johnny Romano, Indians' catcher, also made the team, beating out New York's Elston Howard and Minnesota's Earl Battey.

Tony Kubek, Yankee shortstop, was the third New Yorker on the team with Mantle in center and Maris in right field. Cash at first base and Detroit's Rocky Colavito in left field and Baltimore's Brooks Robinson at third rounded out the starting lineup, exclusive of pitchers. Robinson had the toughest battle, beating Minnesota's Harmon Killebrew 173 to 118 votes.

Mays will have teammate Orlando Cepeda of the Giants flanking him in left field and Roberto Clemente of Pittsburgh in right field. The Pittsburgh Pirates also are represented by all-star catcher Smoky Burgess.

The competition was real tough for shortstop and left field in the National. Maury Wills of the Los Angeles Dodgers won the shortstop job with 81 votes over Eddie Kasko of Cincinnati with 65, and Ernie Banks of Chicago, who had 41. Although Banks now is playing first base, he was voted on only as shortstop where he played most of his games. The same held true of [illegible] of New York in the American. [illegible] was considered only as a left fielder. Hank Aaron of Milwaukee also was considered only as a center fielder and lost out to Mays.

Farmerville Wins Over Monroe 7-6

FARMERVILLE, La. (Special) — Farmerville nipped Monroe 7-6 here last night behind the hurling of Donald Reeves and the hitting of Doc Hearn, their All-State catcher.

Hearn paced the attack with two for three, while Eddie Kincaid and Joey McGinn each garnered two hits for the losers.

Charlie Biggars started for Monroe but was relieved in the fourth by Lynn Causey.

Seven big runs in the fourth with two away turned the tide for the homestanders, eliminating a four-run Monroe lead built in the third, and putting Farmerville ahead for keeps. Single Brown-Rivers-Scogin runs in the fifth and seventh narrowed the account to a single tally.

Hearn, Mathews, Barron and Tettleton all hit safely for Farmerville in the big fourth inning rally.

Monroe's four-run bulge was ignited by Randall Fallins' single. Cowboy Walton walked and Ralph Roberts made first by an error to score Fallin.

James Cromwell was served four bad pitches and his arrival on first pushed the second run across.

Joey McGinn then grounded out, but Eddie Kincaid, the slugger from Neville High, doubled to tally two.

As a result of action Friday night Rayville still holds first with 10-2, Monroe is second and Ruston 6-5 is third.

Mickey Wright Wins Open

THE SUN causes Mickey Wright to squint but it can't erase that bright smile as she poses for photographers with the silver cup after winning the Women's National Open Golf championship yesterday at Springfield, N.J. Miss Wright, of Dallas, Tex., became a three time winner of the competition after shooting final rounds of 69-72, three under par, for a 72-hole total of 293. She previously won open titles in 1958 and 1959. (AP Wirephoto)

SPRINGFIELD, N.J. (AP)—Power-hitting Mickey Wright of Dallas, as relaxed and comfortable as an old shoe, won her third Women's National Open Golf Championship in four years Saturday by shooting final rounds of 69-72, three-under-par, for a 72-hole total of 293 at Baltursrol.

Miss Wright, winner of the Open in 1958 and 1959, almost succumbed to tension and pressure in the second round of the tournament. But she came back in tremendous fashion with the only sub-par round of the tournament and one of even par.

"I was completely relaxed today and wasn't expecting too much," Miss Wright said. "I think you have a much better chance of scoring when you don't expect too much of yourself."

And Mickey played according to that formula when she shot a morning round of 34-35—69 to take a two-stroke lead over defending champion Betsy Rawls, then added an afternoon 18 of 35-37—72 to stretch out her margin as her rivals fell back. She wasn't driving particularly well but her sharp irons gave her 10 one-putt greens on the third round.

Saturday's victory was Miss Wright's fourth tournament triumph this year and it put her on even terms with Miss Rawls as a three-time winner of the Women's Open in the nine years it has been conducted under U.S. Golf Association auspices. Betsy, however, won the title once before the USGA took over.

Mickey also went to the top of the women's money winning list for the year. The $1,800 she won Saturday gave her a total of $11,248.72 and put her ahead of Louise Suggs.

Miss Wright's total wasn't near her own record of 287, for the USGA tournament, set when she won in 1959 at Pittsburgh's Churchill Valley course, or Louise Suggs' 284 in 1952 on the short Bala course at Philadelphia. But it was a tremendous performance on the big, long Baltusrol layout.

WANT ADS are for EVERYBODY

When I decided to make a late try at learning the game of golf, I remembered that old saying about teaching an old dog new tricks. I was hesitant about putting a lot of money in equipment since I had no idea of how golf and I would get along together. So I turned to the Want Ad pages in search of a good set of used clubs. I found them, just the kind I wanted. I learned long ago that the Want Ads can help solve a variety of problems, and it was just proving the old truth when they helped me get started on my golf game. Want Ads are for everybody, and almost everything!

Triple Deadlock Holds Up Second Day In Flint Open

FLINT, Mich. (AP) — The jam-up continued in the $53,000 Flint Open Saturday, as Billy Casper, Dave Ragan and Johnny Pott remained in a triple deadlock for the lead after 54 holes.

The trio of pace-setters had identical 37-34—71 third rounds and shared the lead with 211—5 under par.

Casper, Ragan and Pott—all non-winners in 1961—had gone into the day's play at par 36-36—72 Warwick Hills bunched ahead at 140.

A clutch 12-foot putt on the 18th green saved Casper's portion of the lead. He came out of a trap into the green and needed the putt to stay with the two 25-year-old Southerners.

The threesome withstood challengers from Jackie Burke and Lee Raymond, both with 214, and Jerry Steelsmith. Steelsmith, a rookie from Glendale, Calif., had the day's best 18 holes, shooting a 66 for a 215 total.

Cary Middlecoff and Al Balding were tied with Steelsmith.

Bob Rosburg, former PGA champion, was the only other player equaling par for three rounds on the 7,280-yard layout. He had a 216 total.

Casper winner of the inaugural Flint Open in 1958, and National Open champion the following year, rallied with his only three birdies on the 10th, 11th and 12th holes.

He went over par on 13 and finished with five straight pars—capped by his pressure putt.

Pott, a touring newcomer from Shreveport, La., had two pars on the back nine to keep pace with his co-leaders. He could have taken sole command by sinking a 12-footer on 18, but missed it by 4 inches.

Ragan, a 25-year-old Floridian, needed birdies on the 15th and 16th holes to maintain his share of the lead.

"My putts on those two holes really shaved me," said Ragan.

The field was cut to the low 63 pros who totaled 223 or better for Sunday's final round. If there is a tie after 72 holes, an 18-hole playoff will be held Monday.

Farmerville Wins Over Monroe 7-6

FARMERVILLE, La. (Special) — Farmerville nipped Monroe 7-6 here last night behind the hurling of Donald Reeves and the hitting of Doc Hearn, their All-State catcher.

Hearn paced the attack with two for three, while Eddie Kincaid and Joey McGinn each garnered two hits for the losers.

Charlie Biggars started for Monroe but was relieved in the fourth by Lynn Causey.

Seven big runs in the fourth with two away turned the tide for the homestanders, eliminating a four-run Monroe lead built in the third, and putting Farmerville ahead for keeps. Single Brown-Rivers-Scogin runs in the fifth and seventh narrowed the account to a single tally.

Hearn, Mathews, Barron and Tettleton all hit safely for Farmerville in the big fourth inning rally.

Monroe's four-run bulge was ignited by Randall Fallins' single. Cowboy Walton walked and Ralph Roberts made first by an error to score Fallin.

James Cromwell was served four bad pitches and his arrival on first pushed the second run across.

Joey McGinn then grounded out, but Eddie Kincaid, the slugger from Neville High, doubled to tally two.

As a result of action Friday night Rayville still holds first with 10-3. Monroe is second and Ruston (6-4) is third.

Rayville Keeps On; Shallacks Bernice, 11-1

RAYVILLE (Special) — Doc Mercer and Ed Quimby combined pitching talents to set down Bernice on three hits while their Rayville teammates jumped on opposing pitchers for 11 runs and an 11-1 American Legion baseball victory here Friday.

Rayville currently holds down first place in the fifth district race with a 10-3 record. Bernice's loss dropped its season's record to 5-7.

For Rayville, O'Neal had two hits, one a double, and Stockton had two hits, accounting for four RBI's in the process.

Mickey Wright Wins Open

THE SUN causes Mickey Wright to squint but it can't erase that bright smile as she poses for photographers with the silver cup after winning the Women's National Open Golf championship yesterday at Springfield, N.J. Miss Wright, of Dallas, Tex., became a three time winner of the competition after shooting final rounds of 69-72, three under par, for a 72-hole total of 293. She previously won open titles in 1958 and 1959. (AP Wirephoto)

SPRINGFIELD, N.J. (AP)—Power-hitting Mickey Wright of Dallas, as relaxed and comfortable as an old shoe, won her third Women's National Open Golf Championship in four years Saturday by shooting final rounds of 69-72, three-under-par, for a 72-hole total of 293 at Baltursrol.

Miss Wright, winner of the Open in 1958 and 1959, almost succumbed to tension and pressure in the second round of the tournament. But she came back in tremendous fashion with the only sub-par round of the tournament and one of even par.

Par for the 6,372-yard Baltusrol course is 36-36—72.

"I was completely relaxed today and wasn't expecting too much," Miss Wright said. "I think you have a much better chance of scoring when you don't expect too much of yourself."

And Mickey played according to that formula when she shot a morning round of 34-35—69 to take a two-stroke lead over defending champion Betsy Rawls, then added an afternoon 18 of 35-37—72 to stretch out her margin as her rivals fell back. She wasn't driving particularly well but her sharp irons gave her 10 one-putt greens on the third round.

Saturday's victory was Miss Wright's fourth tournament triumph this year and it put her on even terms with Miss Rawls as a three-time winner of the Women's Open in the nine years it has been conducted under U.S. Golf Association auspices. Betsy, however, won the title once before the USGA took over.

Mickey also went to the top of the women's money winning list for the year. The $1,800 she won Saturday gave her a total of $11,248.72 and put her ahead of Louise Suggs.

Miss Wright's total wasn't near her own record of 287, for the USGA tournament, set when she won in 1959 at Pittsburgh's Churchill Valley course, of Louise Suggs' 284 in 1952 on the short Bala course at Philadelphia. But it was a tremendous performance on the big, long Baltusrol layout.

WANT ADS are for EVERYBODY

When I decided to make a late try at learning the game of golf, I remembered that old saying about teaching an old dog new tricks. I was hesitant about putting a lot of money in equipment since I had no idea of how golf and I would get along together. So I turned to the Want Ad pages in search of a good set of used clubs. I found them, just the kind I wanted. I learned long ago that the Want Ads can help solve a variety of problems, and it was just proving the old truth when they helped me get started on my golf game. Want Ads are for everybody, and almost everything!

Major League Averages

NEW YORK (AP) — Jackie Brandt of Baltimore collected three hits in four times at bat to tie Detroit's Norm Cash for the American League batting lead Friday night. Both are hitting .367.

In the National League, George Altman of the Chicago Cubs went hitless in three tries and his pacesetting average dipped to .347. He leads runner-up Don Hoak of Pittsburgh by three points.

Mickey Mantle of New York slammed his 25th homer, putting him two behind teammate Roger Maris, who leads the AL with 27. Willie Mays and Orlando Cepeda of San Francisco are deadlocked for the National League top spot with 20.

Among the pitchers who have worked a minimum of 70 innings, Baltimore's Hoyt Wilhelm heads the American League in earned run average with 1.89 while Joey Jay of Cincinnati tops the National with 2.84. Whitey Ford of the Yanks has the most victories, 14.

SHOT PUT CHAMP

Urges Campaign To Change AAU

LOS ANGELES (AP)—World shot put champion Bill Neider urged a campaign Saturday to "clean up the ranks of officials and policies of the National AAU and give the athletes a break."

The recommendation was another spark in a revolt touched off recently by a host of track and field stars against the AAU.

Neider holds the world record in the shot at 65 feet 10 inches and won the gold medal at the 1960 Rome Olympics. He has retired from amateur sports.

"Since the AAU no longer has any say over me, I can speak freely. The younger fellows still in track and field can't be so independent. The AAU (officials) think only of themselves. The athletes come way down the line."

Several other famous athletes, including discus champion Al Oerter, two-time Olympic shot put king Parry O'Brien and others, have publicly criticized the AAU for its approaching sponsorship of a U.S. team to Europe in general and Russia in particular.

Most complaints are that the AAU insists the athletes agree to a tour of several weeks or forfeit a chance to go at all. The tour opens with a meet in Moscow July 18-19.

O'Brien said "the AAU should recognize a lot of our athletes are working and can't afford a month away. It should make some provision to let them compete in Moscow and come home."

Said discus star Rink Babka: "I could go to Russia for 10 days or so but I can't afford to take a long trip. They (the AAU) don't care about the athletes, all they care about is a long vacation in Europe. Maybe all this will open everybody's eyes."

"We knew for a long time that some of them like O'Brien, Dallas Long and Oerter could not make this trip. But I don't think they should make things tough for the younger men by complaining.

"The older fellows like O'Brien and (hammer thrower Hal) Connolly have been through this many times. When they first got the opportunity of making trips abroad, they jumped at it."

To this Nieder answered:

"This was true when we were younger but fellows like Parry and Oerter and Connolly, and for that matter a younger man such as Long, now have family responsibilities which we didn't have before. We have permanent jobs to hold.

"For an important meet such as with Russia, these athletes could get time off for the one meet. Why couldn't the AAU arrange for this and then let the younger, foot-free fellows finish out the tour?"

Over all, the unhappy athletes blamed the AAU for poor management in such areas as transportation, food and lack of cooperation with the athletes themselves.

Nieder recalled that after winning at Rome last year with an Olympic record of 64-6¾, Sweden wanted him for an appearance.

"It was all set. I even had my ticket. I was in great shape and I wanted to break my world record. Track was over in this country for the year.

"But no. One man said, 'No—you go home with the team.' If I hadn't been in the Army and owed it an obligation, I think I would have gone anyhow."

Concluded Nieder: "It is time for a cleanup so that the younger athletes won't suffer from the blunders we experienced."

Styrons Go Into Vanishing Act

Don holds the listed world record in the 220-yard low hurdles. Brother Dave was fourth in the world record-setting :09.2 100-yard dash at the recent National AAU meet.

Major League Averages

NEW YORK (AP) — Jackie Brandt of Baltimore collected three hits in four times at bat to tie Detroit's Norm Cash for the American League batting lead Friday night. Both are hitting .367.

In the National League, George Altman of the Chicago Cubs went hitless in three tries and his pacesetting average dipped to .347. He leads runner-up Don Hoak of Pittsburgh by three points.

Mickey Mantle of New York slammed his 25th homer, putting him two behind teammate Roger Maris, who leads the AL with 27. Willie Mays and Orlando Cepeda of San Francisco are deadlocked for the National League top spot with 20.

Among the pitchers who have worked a minimum of 70 innings, Baltimore's Hoyt Wilhelm heads the American League in earned run average with 1.89 whle Joey Jay of Cincinnati tops the National with 2.84. Whitey Ford of the Yanks has the most victories, 14.

(Through games of Friday, June 30)

SHOT PUT CHAMP

Urges Campaign To Change AAU

LOS ANGELES (AP)—World shot put champion Bill Neider urged a campaign Saturday to "clean up the ranks of officials and policies of the National AAU and give the athletes a break."

The recommendation was another spark in a revolt touched off recently by a host of track and field stars against the AAU.

Neider holds the world record in the shot at 65 feet 10 inches and won the gold medal at the 1960 Rome Olympics. He has retired from amateur sports.

"Since the AAU no longer has any say over me, I can speak freely. The younger fellows still in track and field can't be so independent. The AAU (officials) think only of themselves. The athletes come way down the line."

Several other famous athletes, including discus champion Al Oerter, two-time Olympic shot put king Parry O'Brien and others, have publicly criticized the AAU for its approaching sponsorship of a U.S. team to Europe in general and Russia in particular.

Most complaints are that the AAU insists the athletes agree to a tour of several weeks or forfeit a chance to go at all. The tour opens with a meet in Moscow July 18-19.

O'Brien said "the AAU should recognize a lot of our athletes are working and can't afford a month away. It should make some provision to let them compete in Moscow and come home."

Said discus star Rink Babka: "I could go to Russia for 10 days or so but I can't afford to take a long trip. They (the AAU) don't care about the athletes, all they care about is a long vacation in Europe. Maybe all this will open everybody's eyes."

Last week in New York AAU boss Dan Ferris argued back.

"We knew for a long time that some of them like O'Brien, Dallas Long and Oerter could not make this trip. But I don't think they should make things tough for the younger men by complaining.

"The older fellows like O'Brien and (hammer thrower Hal) Connolly have been through this many times. When they first got the opportunity of making trips abroad, they jumped at it."

To this Nieder answered:

"This was true when we were younger but fellows like Parry and Oerter and Connolly, and for that matter a younger man such as Long, now have family responsibilities which we didn't have before. We have permanent jobs to hold.

"For an important meet such as with Russia, these athletes could get time off for the one meet. Why couldn't the AAU arrange for this and then let the younger, foot-free fellows finish out the tour?"

Over all, the unhappy athletes blamed the AAU for poor management in such areas as transportation, food and lack of cooperation with the athletes themselves.

Nieder recalled that after winning at Rome last year with an Olympic record of 64-6¾, Sweden wanted him for an appearance.

"It was all set. I even had my ticket. I was in great shape and I wanted to break my world record. Track was over in this country for the year.

"But no. One man said, 'No—you go home with the team.' If I hadn't been in the Army and owed it an obligation, I think I would have gone anyhow."

Concluded Nieder: "It is time for a cleanup so that the younger athletes won't suffer from the blunders we experienced."

Styrons Go Into Vanishing Act

Dignitaries In Eastern Star To Visit Here

J. WESLEY CHAMBERS

IRENE S. CHAMBERS

An official visit here of the worthy grand matron and worthy grand patron, Order of Eastern Star, State of Louisiana, Mrs. Irene S. Chambers and J. Wesley Chambers, will be highlighted by a banquet at the Paragon Supper Club Saturday, July 8.

Mr. and Mrs. Chambers, who reside in Baton Rouge, will be acccompanied here by several grand officers and other distinguished guests. They will make their official inspection of District 5, Order of Eastern Star in the Masonic Temple immediately following the banquet.

Mrs. Howard Shepard, Monroe, district deputy grand matron of District 5, will preside over the meeting.

Eastern Star chapters to be represented with members from each participating in the program, include Cadeville, Eros, Annie D. Bennett, Sterlington, Louise L. McGuire and Dixie.

At conclusion of the meeting a reception will be held in the banquet room of the Masonic Temple honoring the guests. Many of the grand officers plan to attend services Sunday at 8:30 a.m. at the First Methodist church of Monroe, following which a brunch will be held at the home of Mrs. Jewel La Pietra for the out-of-town guests and their hosts.

U.S. Output Climbs, Work Force Drops

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is the first nation in the world to combine an increase in total output with a decline in its productive work force, a House labor subcommittee reported Saturday.

Testimony given shows production increased 43 per cent between 1950 and 1960 while the number of workers in factory production dropped 10 per cent.

Far from condemning automation because of the decline in employment, the report held it up as the promise of the future for achieving the economic growth needed to put all Americans to work.

But automation has raised immediate and far-reaching problems that must be faced if this goal is to be reached, it added. And unemployment, whatever its causes, is becoming increasingly serious, the subcommittee said.

Each of the three recessions in the past decade has left a higher residue of unemployment, the report said, and an average unemployment rate of 4 per cent is now widely—although reluctantly—accepted as normal. The Labor Department's latest figures show a seasonally adjusted unemployment rate of 6.9 per cent as of May 31.

There is cause for alarm, the report said, "in the tendency to be content with an ever-growing acceptable minimum level of unemployment."

In addition to the human problems raised, it added, there are "the broad, international implications of our apparent inability to maintain full and steady employment for those of our people who are willing and able to work.

The report, signed by four Democrats and two Republicans on the subcommittee gives general support to the aims of the administration's retraining and relocation program, but not to its specific provisions. The administration has proposed a four-year, $700-million program to train unemployed workers in new skills and help them move from depressed areas to new jobs.

The remaining member of the subcommittee, Rep. Donald C. Bruce, R-Ind., filed a dissenting report in which he said no federal assistance is needed. Lower taxes on corporations would lead to business expansion and meet the problem, he said.

Dive Off Roof Kills Divorcee

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Anything he can do, I can do better," detectives said a divorcee announced early Saturday.

She then dived into a swimming pool from a third-story roof. The fall killed her.

Janice M. Pitchford, 28, ignored attempts of several companions to dissuade her from the dive, they told police. A neighbor, Francis Menley, had executed a perfect swan dive from the roof of the two-story building just before her fatal dive.

Officers said she probably hit the side of the pool.

Nixon Praises Stand By JFK

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Former Vice President Richard M. Nixon said Friday Soviet Premier Khrushchev wants peace because this is the best way for him to accomplish his purpose at this time.

"We can not assume he means the same thing as we do by peace," said Nixon in addressing the convention of the California department of the American Legion. "We must look beyond and see why they say they are for peace."

Nixon urged support for President Kennedy's request for more funds for military purposes and praised the President's refusal to compromise on the Berlin issue.

He said this nation should show no sign of weakness in its position on admission of Red China to the United Nations.

The former vice president said military strength, diplomatic firmness and willingness to take risks will minimize the dangers of war.

On Dit'

by Denise

Well, the weather has been a little more summery this week. We have been able to catch up with some of the rained-out ball games, swimming lessons, and outdoor parties that have had to be postponed during unseasonable June. Out of towners here this week received a more favorable impression of Monroe climate.

Our visitor from Italy, FAY WINK, was complimented when DIBBLE PATE entertained with a coffee in her home on Frances Place Saturday morning. Fay, a former Monroyan, will be here for several weeks. . . . MARGARET ANN TIDWELL greeted guests at the door. Dibbie and Fay received in the living room, which was decorated with an arrangement of fresh greenery and ivy.

The refreshment table, which was set up in the family room, was centered with yellow and white Majestic daisies in a small black pot. CHARLOTTIE DENT and MARGE MULLENS alternated at the coffee service. Others who assisted were CHARLOTTE BRIGHT, NELL CHURCH, JANE PLITT, SARA MAYO, ROSALIND COOPER, and MARY BIRCKHEAD.

LILY HARRINGTON entertained at a coffee party at home Saturday, honoring BETTY NOE of New Orleans, and LINDA LAINE. Betty and JIMMY are spending this week end in Dallas, after which she will be here for a three weeks visit with the JAMES A. NOES.

Pink and white flowers were used in the Harrington home for the party. Pink roses and pink and white ruffled petunias were outstanding in the living room. On the piano were daisies and white phlox. Fruit juice was served on the porch, after which guests were invited into the dining room for coffee.

Guests of JEAN and JACK DAVIS this week were her mother, MRS. DONOVAN BROWN of New Orleans; and sister, MRS. JAMES FOUTS and children, BETTY, DONOVAN, ALAN, and JAMES, of Salt Lake City. Several parties have honored these ladies. Monday morning, DOROTHEA GARRETT was hostess at a neighborhood coffee in her home on Lakeside Drive. Aspidistra leaves and eucalyptus were used in an all-green bouquet near the entrance, while a tall arrangement of yellow gladioli decorated the mantel in the den. . . . Roses and daisies centered the dining room table, where BERNICE GIRAULT served coffee and miniature pastries.

Tuesday afternoon, JOY MARSHALL invited a group of friends who had attended Newcomb with Betty Fouts for dessert. Guests were served at the dining room table, which was centered with deep rosy-red zinnias . . . ADRIENNE GASTON was hostess for coffee on Wednesday morning. Roses and gardenias decorated the table, where JANE EARNEST poured for the twelve guests. . . . Mrs. Browne and her daughter left for New Orleans on Thursday.

Honoring her houseguest, CAROL CAVIN of Jackson, Mississippi, ELIZABETH LEIGH entertained at a conversational hour Wednesday morning at the home of her parents, the NED LEIGHS. Green berries and foliage decorated the living room, while fresh fruit was used on the dining table. The unusually delicious goodies included bite-size pastries filled with shrimp, cheese straws, dainty cookies, and iced petit-fours. Assisting with the courtesies were LINDA DANSBY, MINETTE SMITH, MAG TAYLOR, LOUISE LEIGH, LINDA HORNBEAK, and CYNTHIA LEIGH.

Thursday Louise invited Carol, Elizabeth, and eight friends for luncheon at Bayou DeSiard country club. Daisies centered the table in the bay window for the party, and daisies also decorated the cards marking the guests' places. Carol received a book from her hostess.

Highland Park country club was the scene of a luncheon honoring CAROLYN OLIVER BROWN of Glastonbury, Connecticut, who is visiting her parents, the COURTNEY OLIVERS, on Wednesday at noon. JEAN HAMMONDS and GLADYS MURPHY were hostesses for the party. The table in the private dining room held a centerpiece of magnolias, and placecards were decorated with the same blooms. Shrimp Arnaud and lime sherbert highlighted the menu served to eight guests.

Unusual Polynesian food will be the feature of the Hawaiian luau scheduled for this coming Saturday night, July 8, at the Lotus club. This is planned as the first "getting-to-know-you" party, to acquaint new and old members of the club.

Beginning at 7:30 p.m., poi will be served with mai-tai (punch). . . . Puaa kalua pork (whole roast pig), lomi limi salmon, and mao (chicken luau), will be featured, along with baked island bananas and banana muffins. A number of other delicacies are planned to carry out the theme, along with surprise decorations.

For her ninth birthday Tuesday, LYNN M'KENZIE invited ten little girls for a backyard party in shorts. The guests enjoyed an hour of outdoor games before supper of barbecued hamburgers. The meal was served from a picnic table covered with red checked cloths and centered with calladium leaves in an iron pot.

Celebrating the Fourth of July, children of members of Bayou DeSiard country club are invited to participate in a swimming meet Tuesday afternoon at the club pool. Hot dogs and hamburgers will be served from an outdoor grill all afternoon. Beginning at six, barbecue supper will be served for adults, and children preferring this menu. A Dixieland combo will play for dancing on the patio from four until nine in the evening.

For the week of the Fourth, there is no poem so fitting as these lines from Sir Walter Scott's "Lay of the Last Minstrel":

Breathes there the man with soul so dead
Who never to himself hath said:
"This is my own, my native land"?
Whose heart hath ne'er within him burned
As home his footsteps he hath turned,
From wandering on a foreign strand?
If such there breathe, go mark him well.
For him no minstrel raptures swell:
High though his titles, proud his name,
Boundless his wealth as wish can claim,
Despite those titles, power and pelf,
The wretch concentred all in self,
Living, shall forfeit fair reknown,
And doubly dying, shall go down
To the vile dust from whence he sprung,
Unwept, unhonored, and unsung.

Miss Greene Is Married In Texas Church

Miss Elsie Faye Greene, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Greene of Jonesboro, became the bride of Harry Ferguson Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. H. N. Ferguson Sr., of Alta Lama, Texas, on June 24 at 7 p.m. in Memorial Missionary Baptist Church in LeMarque, Texas. The Rev. A. O. Singer officiated.

Providing nuptial music was Miss Roberta Holmes of Texas City, Texas.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a ballerina length gown of Chantilly lace over satin. The scalloped neckline featured lace appliques and the scalloped lace also formed a peplum over the full skirt. Her shoulder veil of illusion fell from a tiara of seed pearls and sequins and she carried a cascade of white roses on a white Bible.

Mrs. Shirley Boyett Witt of Texas City, was matron of honor and only attendant. She wore a dress of American Beauty linen with pale pink accessories and a corsage of pink carnations.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Doolittle, sister and brother-in-law of the bridegroom. The bride's table was covered with a lace cloth over pink and was centered with the wedding cake, with punch bowls at either end. Assisting in the courtesies were Mrs. H. W. Boyett, aunt of the bride and Mrs. Sue Michael, both of Texas City.

For a wedding trip to various parts of Texas the bride was wearing a crystal blue silk shantung dress with white accessories. The couple will be at home in Victorville, California, where the bridegroom is stationed at George Air Force Base.

Church Vows Are Read For City Couple

Baskets of white gladioli against a background of tall candelabra holding tapers in graduated sizes formed a setting in Memorial Methodist church when Virginia Redding became the bride of Gilbert Milo Marx on Sunday evening, June 25. Rev. Lloyd E. Williams performed the double ring ceremony in the presence of members of the families.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Edward J. Brown and the late Mr. Brown of Monroe and Mr. Marx is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Marx, also of this city.

Preceding the lighting of the candles by Edward Scheps of New Orleans and Buzz Redding, Monroe, Mrs. Irene Nelson, organist, presented a program of nuptial music and accompanied Miss Betty Bandy, who sang "At Dawning," and "Because."

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Dr. Edward J. Brown of Monroe. She wore an afternoon dress of imported beige Chantilly lace and a small matching hat and carried a white Bible topped with pink roses, encircled with ivy.

Her only attendant was her sister Mrs. Clarence Scheps of New-Orleans, who served as matron of honor. She wore a bone embroidered linen dress with matching accessories and carried a nosegay of pink roses and ivy.

Charles Marx, brother of the bridegroom served as best man. Phillip Scheps of New Orleans was usher.

A reception was held in the church parlor following the ceremony where many friends greeted the couple. The table, overlaid with a lace cloth, held white candles in silver candelabra and a central arrangement of white stock and calla lilies. Mrs. Edward Brown Jr. kept the bride's book and Mrs. Jesse Gilstrap and Mrs. John Tolar assisted at the punch service and tiered wedding cake. Tea girls were Sage Redding, Mary Louise Tolar, Rose Mary Upshaw, Gretchen Lafrance, Zella Faye Brown and Sydney Greenblatt.

For a wedding trip to Houston, Texas the couple plans to visit points of interest en route. While in Houston Mr. Marx will serve as a groomsman in the wedding of Freddie Landry, former Monroe resident. Upon their return Mr. and Mrs. Marx will be located in their new home on Sherwood Drive.

Mrs. Marx is a graduate of Ouachita Parish high school, Northeast Junior College and Northeast Louisiana State College. Mr. Marx is a graduate of Neville high school and Northeast Louisiana State college and also attended Louisiana State University.

Out-of-town guests for the ceremony were Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Hirsch, Miss Julia Hirsch, Mannye Hirsch, all of Shreveport; Mr. and Mrs. Louis Kariel Sr., Mr. and Mrs. Louis Kariel Jr., Nancy and Mark Kariel and Stanley Kariel, Marshall, Texas; Mr. and Mrs. Jim Henderson, Bogalusa; Mrs. Thomas Morris of Raleigh, North Carolina; Dr. and Mrs. Clarence Scheps, Phillip and Edward Scheps, New Orleans; Mrs. C. H. Pardue of Vivian; Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Brown, Miss Zella Faye Brown, and Winston Brown of Calhoun.

Well, the weather has been a little more summery this week. We have been able to catch up with some of the rained-out ball games, swimming lessons, and outdoor parties that have had to be postponed during unseasonable June. Out of towners here this week received a more favorable impression of Monroe climate.

Our visitor from Italy, FAY WINK, was complimented when DIBBLE PATE entertained with a coffee in her home on Frances Place Saturday morning. Fay, a former Monroyan, will be here for several weeks. . . . MARGARET ANN TIDWELL greeted guests at the door. Dibble and Fay received in the living room, which was decorated with an arrangement of fresh greenery and ivy.

The refreshment table, which was set up in the family room, was centered with yellow and white Majestic daisies in a small black pot. CHARLOTTIE DENT and MARGE MULLENS alternated at the coffee service. Others who assisted were CHARLOTTE BRIGHT, NELL CHURCH, JANE PLITT, SARA MAYO, ROSALIND COOPER, and MARY BIRCKHEAD.

LILY HARRINGTON entertained at a coffee party at home Saturday, honoring BETTY NOE of New Orleans, and LINDA LAINE. Betty and JIMMY are spending this week end in Dallas, after which she will be here for a three weeks visit with the JAMES A. NOES.

Pink and white flowers were used in the Harrington home for the party. Pink roses and pink and white ruffled petunias were outstanding in the living room. On the piano were daisies and white phlox. Fruit juice was served on the porch, after which guests were invited into the dining room for coffee.

Guests of JEAN and JACK DAVIS this week were her mother, MRS. DONOVAN BROWN of New Orleans; and sister, MRS. JAMES FOUTS and children, BETTY, DONOVAN, ALAN, and JAMES, of Salt Lake City. Several parties have honored these ladies. Monday morning, DOROTHEA GARRETT was hostess at a neighborhood coffee in her home on Lakeside Drive. Aspidistra leaves and eucalyptus were used in an all-green bouquet near the entrance, while a tall arrangement of yellow gladioli decorated the mantel in the den. . . . Roses and daisies centered the dining room table, where BERNICE GIRAULT served coffee and miniature pastries.

Tuesday afternoon, JOY MARSHALL invited a group of friends who had attended Newcomb with Betty Fouts for dessert. Guests were served at the dining room table, which was centered with deep rosy-red zinnias. . . . ADRIENNE GASTON was hostess for coffee on Wednesday morning. Roses and gardenias decorated the table, where JANE EARNEST poured for the twelve guests. . . . Mrs. Browne and her daughter left for New Orleans on Thursday.

Honoring her houseguest, CAROL CAVIN of Jackson, Mississippi, ELIZABETH LEIGH entertained at a conversational hour Wednesday morning at the home of her parents, the NED LEIGHS. Green berries and foliage decorated the living room, while fresh fruit was used on the dining table. The unusually delicious goodies included bite-size pastries filled with shrimp, cheese straws, dainty cookies, and iced petit-fours. Assisting with the courtesies were LINDA DANSBY, MINETTE SMITH, MAG TAYLOR, LOUISE LEIGH, LINDA HORNBEAK, and CYNTHIA LEIGH.

Thursday Louise invited Carol, Elizabeth, and eight friends for luncheon at Bayou DeSiard country club. Daisies centered the table in the bay window for the party, and daisies also decorated the cards marking the guests' places. Carol received a book from her hostess.

Highland Park country club was the scene of a luncheon honoring CAROLYN OLIVER BROWN of Glastonbury, Connecticut, who is visiting her parents, the COURTNEY OLIVERS, on Wednesday at noon. JEAN HAMMONDS and GLADYS MURPHY were hostesses for the party. The table in the private dining room held a centerpiece of magnolias, and placecards were decorated with the same blooms. Shrimp Arnaud and lime sherbert highlighted the menu served to eight guests.

Unusual Polynesian food will be the feature of the Hawaiian luau scheduled for this coming Saturday night, July 8, at the Lotus club. This is planned as the first "getting-to-know-you" party, to acquaint new and old members of the club.

Beginning at 7:30 p.m., poi will be served with mai-tai (punch). . . . Puaa kalua pork (whole roast pig), lomi limi salmon, and mao (chicken luau), will be featured, along with baked island bananas and banana muffins. A number of other delicacies are planned to carry out the theme, along with surprise decorations.

For her ninth birthday Tuesday, LYNN M'KENZIE invited ten little girls for a backyard party in shorts. The guests enjoyed an hour of outdoor games before supper of barbecued hamburgers. The meal was served from a picnic table covered with red checked cloths and centered with calladium leaves in an iron pot.

Celebrating the Fourth of July, children of members of Bayou DeSiard country club are invited to participate in a swimming meet Tuesday afternoon at the club pool. Hot dogs and hamburgers will be served from an outdoor grill all afternoon. Beginning at six, barbecue supper will be served for adults, and children preferring this menu. A Dixieland combo will play for dancing on the patio from four until nine in the evening.

For the week of the Fourth, there is no poem so fitting as these lines from Sir Walter Scott's "Lay of the Last Minstrel":

Breathes there the man with soul so dead
Who never to himself hath said:
"This is my own, my native land"?
Whose heart hath ne'er within him burned
As home his footsteps he hath turned,
From wandering on a foreign strand?
If such there breathe, go mark him well.
For him no minstrel raptures swell;
High though his titles, proud his name,
Boundless his wealth as wish can claim,
Despite those titles, power and pelf,
The wretch concentred all in self,
Living, shall forfeit fair reknown,
And doubly dying, shall go down
To the vile dust from whence he sprung,
Unwept, unhonored, and unsung.

Miss Greene Is Married In Texas Church

Miss Elsie Faye Greene, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Greene of Jonesboro, became the bride of Harry Ferguson Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. H. N. Ferguson Sr., of Alta Lama, Texas, on June 24 at 7 p.m. in Memorial Missionary Baptist Church in LeMarque, Texas. The Rev. A. O. Singer officiated.

Providing nuptial music was Miss Roberta Holmes of Texas City, Texas.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a ballerina length gown of Chantilly lace over satin. The scalloped neckline featured lace appliques and the scalloped lace also formed a peplum over the full skirt. Her shoulder veil of illusion fell from a tiara of seed pearls and sequins and she carried a cascade of white roses on a white Bible.

Mrs. Shirley Boyett Witt of Texas City, was matron of honor and only attendant. She wore a dress of American Beauty linen with pale pink accessories and a corsage of pink carnations.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Doolittle, sister and brother-in-law of the bridegroom. The bride's table was covered with a lace cloth over pink and was centered with the wedding cake, with punch bowls at either end. Assisting in the courtesies were Mrs. H. W. Boyett, aunt of the bride and Mrs. Sue Michael, both of Texas City.

For a wedding trip to various parts of Texas the bride was wearing a crystal blue silk shantung dress with white accessories. The couple will be at home in Victorville, California, where the bridegroom is stationed at George Air Force Base.

Lynn Adelle Zoll, Carl Frey Tucker Exchange Wedding Vows Saturday

Miss Lynn Adelle Zoll, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John P. Zoll, of Monroe, became the bride of Carl Frey Tucker, son of Mrs. Alvin Perilloux of Ponchatoula and the late Carl F. Tucker of New Orleans, in a ceremony solemnized Saturday, July 1 in Covenant Presbyterian Church.

White gladioli and Majestic daisies in gold vases, interspersed with seven branched candelabra holding slender white tapers formed a setting at the altar for the double ring ceremony performed by Rev. Wayne W. Gray at 4 p.m. Pedestal baskets of the flowers also flanked the chancel.

Mrs. Claude L. Dillingham, organist, presented a program of nuptial music and accompanied Mrs. James E. Lewis as she sang "Because," and "The Lord's Prayer."

Escorted to the altar by her father, who gave her in marriage the bride was wearing a gown of white peau de soie, styled on princess lines with billowing skirt extending into a chapel train. The bodice of reembroidered Alencon lace, featured a Sabrina neckline and long sleeves tapered to lily points over the hands. A small Swedish crown of pearls and iridescent sequins held her full circular veil of pure silk imported English illusion and she carried a single white orchid with cascades of stephanotis and satin streamers. She also wore a strand of cultured pearls, a gift of the bridegroom.

Mrs. James Randall Goodwin, of Baton Rouge, cousin of the bride, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Jan Moore, also a cousin of the bride; Mrs. Thomas Denman of New Orleans and Miss Margaret Louise Taylor of Monroe.

They wore identical gowns of pale yellow silk organza, styled with round necklines and brief sleeves. Panels of silk organza kerchiefs fell from satin bows which marked the fitted waistlines. Their headpieces were hand-made bows of matching silk organza and veils, and they carried cascade bouquets of white Majestic daisies and ivy leaves.

Reginald David Wheat of Port Sulphur, La., attended Mr. Tucker as best man. Groomsmen were Tillman Wayne McDonald of New Orleans; Jimmy Head of Springhill; James Randall Goodwin of Baton Rouge and Eugene Settoon of New Orleans.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Zoll wore a gown of pale green lace with matching accessories and a corsage of white phalaenopsis orchids. The bridegroom's mother wore a beige lace dress with matching flower hat and bone accessories and a white phalaenopsis orchid.

A reception followed the ceremony in Fellowship Hall of the church. The tiered wedding cake was served from a round table covered with a satin cloth overlaid with lace and net. Refreshment tables from which punch and coffee were served were covered to match the bride's table and held central arrangements of white stock and leatherleaf fern in silver epergnes.

For a wedding trip to Gatlinburg, Tennessee the bride changed to a three-piece green suit with blouse and jacket lining of multi-color stripes. Black accessories completed her ensemble. The couple will be at home in New Orleans for three years where both are attending L.S.U. Medical School.

Mrs. Tucker is a graduate of Neville High school and Louisiana State University and is a member of Phi Mu sorority. Mr. Tucker was graduated from Port Sulphur high school and L.S.U. and is a member of Phi Chi and Mu Sigma Rho, honorary scholastic fraternity.

Out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Perilloux of Ponchatoula, mother and step-father of the bridegroom, Eugene Perilloux, brother of the groom; Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Peter, Ponchatoula; Mr. and Mrs. John A Crawford, Port Sulphur; Mrs. R. O. Wilcomb, Mrs. Wayne McDonald, Thomas Denman, Mrs. Eugene Settoon and Lois Ann Settoon, Independence, La., Mr. and Mrs. Oren O. Moore and Annabel, Alexandria; Miss Dulcy Randolph of Colfax and Miss Nancy Lemoine of Simmesport.

Our Lady Of Fatima Scene Of Bernard-McCarty Vows

Our Lady of Fatima Catholic Church of Monroe, was scene of the wedding of Miss Anne Marjorie McCarty and Donald Milton Bernard, which was solemnized Saturday, June 24 at 10:30 a.m. Father George Martinez performed the double ring ceremony before the altar which was decorated with white gladioli. Mrs. Della Williamson was organist.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley S. McCarty of Columbia, Mississippi and Mr. Bernard is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis B. Bernard Jr., of Crowley.

The bride's gown of white lace over taffeta featured a scalloped neckline, long sleeves which tapered to points at the wrists and a bouffant floor length skirt. Seed pearls encrusted the neckline and sleeves and her three - quarter length veil of illusion was held in place by a tiara of lace and seed pearls. She carried a white orchid attached to a white prayer book. The bride was given in marriage by her father.

Miss Mary Kate McCarty, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore a street-length frock of orchid lace over taffeta and a ruffled veil of orchid lace and carried a bouquet of glamelias. Bridesmaids were Miss Patricia Graham and Miss Maria Varino, who wore dresses identical to the honor attendant's in skylark blue, with matching lace veils and glamelia bouquets.

Martin Guidry, brother - in-law of the bridegroom, served as best man and ushers were John Robert Lee and George McCarty, cousins of the bride.

Flower girls were Mary Sue McCarty and Cherie Suzanne Colbert, cousins of the bride, who were dressed in skylark blue lace and carried baskets of spring flowers. They also wore headdresses of daisy wreaths.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of Dr. and Mrs. F. E. McCarty, 1100 Hilton Street in Monroe. Caladium leaves and magnolias were used throughout the reception rooms and on the patio and centerpiece for the bride's table was of white gladioli and stock.

For travel when the couple left on a wedding trip to Florida, the bride was wearing a pink dacron and silk dress with bone accessories and an orchid corsage. The couple will establish a home in Lafayette.

Mrs. Bernard attended St. Mathew's in Monroe and graduated from Columbia High School in Columbia, Miss. She also attended Northeast Louisiana State College, where she was a member of Alpha Omicron Pi sorority. Mr. Bernard graduated from Cathedral High School in Lafayette and from Northeast Louisiana State College School of Pharmacy.

Out-of-town guests were Dr. and Mrs. Walter Colbert, Natchez, Miss., Mrs. L. B. Dennig, Miss Nell Dennig and Miss Kathy Dennig, all of Ruston.

Let's talk about Maternity Fashions

By LILLIAN ELIAS

CHARMINGLY SHORT

A small girl is bound to "show" early (when you're junior size there's no place to go but out!) By carefully selecting your maternity clothes you can avoid the "five by five" problem and show off your attractive petiteness to the fullest advantage.

YOUR BEST BUYS

One piece dresses with vertical lines — jumpers and blouses — skirts and tops that match — are your best buy. A wise "little" girl will decide on the quieter colors, the smaller bows, up and down stripes and fine dressmaker detail. Professional advice from experienced maternity wear salesladies can be an invaluable aid to you in selecting your "waiting" wardrobe. Such assistance is yours for the asking at Lillian's Maternity Shop.

WATCH YOUR WEIGHT

You should watch your weight like a Hollywood starlet. Extra pounds show up alarmingly when you are small. Think tall . . . carry yourself straight . . . don't slump or slouch! Wear shoes that compliment your costume . . . not flat, sloppy shoes! Make the most of rather high heels, high hats and a slightly higher hemline. Avoid fussiness — stick to straight styles in one piece dresses—the "outfit look" in two-piece wear.

HAVE FUN!

Enjoy the many different styles and materials there are to choose from . . . while accenting the fact that you are naturally charmingly short. With a wardrobe of maternity clothes that fit and "become" you, you will be ready for any occasion. This will make the "waiting" a lot of fun!

COME TO SEE US

Lillian's Maternity Shop is located at 1129 Forsythe Ave. in Forsythe Shopping Center. Come to see us! You are always welcome in our shop. Use our convenient layaway plan. We are open till 5:30 p.m. and for night appointments call Lillian in advance at FA 3-2482.

Miss Gibson Is Bride Of Mr. McDonald

Miss Martha Evelyn Gibson and Tillman Wayne McDonald exchanged wedding vows Saturday, June 17. The ceremony took place at 7:30 p.m. in the First Baptist church at Harrisonburg with the Rev. Joseph Hance Hamilton, uncle of the bride, officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Wana Gibson and Mr. McDonald's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Tillman McDonald of Haynesville.

The ceremony was performed before an altar flanked by baskets of white chrysanthemums, stock and gladioli. Leatherleaf fern and white cathedral tapers in branched candelabra entwined with Southern smilax formed a background. Mrs. Thomas Harris Cassel was organist.

Escorted by her father, who gave her in marriage, the bride wore a gown of Italian pure silk, appliqued with motifs of Alencon lace and seed pearls. The moulded bodice with portrait neckline and brief sleeves was attached to a full circular skirt appliqued in circles of lace which swept to a cathedral train in back. Her fingertip veil of silk illusion fell from a cap of lace and her bouquet of lily of the valley was centered with white orchids.

Miss Rose Katherine Gibson of Harrisonburg attended her sister as maid of honor and Mrs. Jack Malone Sharp, Dallas, Tex., also a sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were another sister, Mrs. Donald Allen Hamilton Jr., of Bartlesville, Okla., and Miss Carole Lucille Taliaferro of Harrisonburg. They wore dresses of imported white organdy over yellow taffeta, with sashes of yellow ribbon. The skirts, accented with a fold of embroidered organdy forming a deep hem, featured a flat front and pleats forming a back pouf. Their headdresses were wreaths of flowers and they carried bouquets of yellow and white daisies.

Clyde Colvin McDonald of Haynesville, served his brother as best man. Groomsmen were another brother, John Allen McDonald of Haynesville; Carl Frey Tucker of New Orleans and Maurice Harper Lindsay Jr. of Monroe.

Following the wedding a reception was given by the bride's parents in the church parlor. Mrs. Orville C. Crawford welcomed guests and alternating at the cake and punch bowl were Mrs. Maud Beard, Mrs. Robert Lansing McKillips and Mrs. Charles Cicero Finley. Other members of the house party were Miss Sylvia Cloutier, Miss June Riddick, Miss Rose Theresa Rinaudo and Mrs. Frank Vestil Cox. Miss Diane Cassel presided at the guest book.

The couple will reside in New Orleans where Mr. McDonald is a student at Louisiana State University School of Medicine.

West Monroe Couple Wed In Baptist Church

Baskets of white gladioli and white candles against a background of greenery formed a setting in the First Bapist Church chapel of West Monroe, for the wedding of Miss Barbara Ann Odaware and Glenn I. Tidwell, both of West Monroe. The ceremony was performed at 7:30 p.m. June 16 by Rev. Charles E. Holstead.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. L. L. Odaware, West Monroe, and parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. I. E. Tidwell of Downsville.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Oscar Odaware. She wore a gown of hand-clipped Chantilly lace with nylon tulle ruffles creating back interest of the bouffant ballerina skirt, with pearls and sequins adorning the neckline. She wore a fingertip veil of illusion and nylon tulle.

Mrs. Agnes Elizabeth Alexander, as matron of honor wore a pale yellow dress of silk organza, styled with bracelet sleeves and scoop neckline in ballerina length. She wore a matching nylon net veil attached to a sequin and pearl crown and carried a bouquet of yellow chrysanthemums arranged in star shape.

Bridesmaids who were dressed identically to the honor attendant were Miss Linda Daniel and Miss Sylvia Hayden. Jennifer Gaye Alexander, niece of the bride, was flower girl, and wore a frock of white silk organza, styled similar to the other attendants.

Hugh O. Tidwell served as best man and groomsmen - ushers were Bobby Tidwell and Ferman Tidwell. Kevin Owen acted as ringbearer.

For the occsion the bride's mother wore an ice blue lace dress with matching hat and white accessories. The bridegroom's mother wore a beige ensemble with white accessories and both had corsages of white carnations.

After a wedding trip to Hot Springs and Fort Smith, Arkansas, the couple has established a home at 136 Parkdale Drive in West Monroe.

Out-of-town guests were Mrs. Agnes Elizabeth Alexander, Sandy, Jenny and David from Montgomery, Alabama.

Mrs. Lee Fetes Bosco HD Club

"Better Breads for Less Money," was topic of the demonstration given by Mrs. P. M. Jeter for the Bosco Home Demonstration Club when it met June 20 in the home of Mrs. J. R. Lee.

Members and guests present were Misses Cheryln Lee, Dajuana Salisbury, Denice Pender and Mrs. Coty Hair, Mrs. Whellis Dear, Mrs. Allen Cloud, Mrs. Jeter, Mrs. Pat Salisbury, Mrs. James Pender and the hostess.

The next meeting will be July 18 at 2 p.m. in the home of Mrs. Roy Hart, when the demonstration on "Be Your Most Attractive Self," will be given by Mrs. Audrey Dawson, home demonstration agent.

MRS. DONALD MILTON BERNARD

Our Lady Of Fatima Scene Of Bernard-McCarty Vows

Our Lady of Fatima Catholic Church of Monroe, was scene of the wedding of Miss Anne Marjorie McCarty and Donald Milton Bernard, which was solemnized Saturday, June 24 at 10:30 a.m. Father George Martinez performed the double ring ceremony before the altar which was decorated with white gladioli. Mrs. Della Williamson was organist.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley S. McCarty of Columbia, Mississippi and Mr. Bernard is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis B. Bernard Jr., of Crowley.

The bride's gown of white lace over taffeta featured a scalloped neckline, long sleeves which tapered to points at the wrists and a bouffant floor length skirt. Seed pearls encrusted the neckline and sleeves and her three - quarter length veil of illusion was held in place by a tiara of lace and seed pearls. She carried a white orchid attached to a white prayer book. The bride was given in marriage by her father.

Miss Mary Kate McCarty, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore a street-length frock of orchid lace over taffeta and a ruffled veil of orchid lace and carried a bouquet of glamelias. Bridesmaids were Miss Patricia Graham and Miss Maria Varino, who wore dresses identical to the honor attendant's in skylark blue, with matching lace veils and glamelia bouquets.

Martin Guidry, brother - in-law of the bridegroom, served as best man and ushers were John Robert Lee and George McCarty, cousins of the bride.

Flower girls were Mary Sue McCarty and Cherie Suzanne Colbert, cousins of the bride, who were dressed in skylark blue lace and carried baskets of spring flowers. They also wore headdresses of daisy wreaths.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of Dr. and Mrs. F. E. McCarty, 1100 Hilton Street in Monroe. Caladium leaves and magnolias were used throughout the reception rooms and on the patio and centerpiece for the bride's table was of white gladioli and stock.

For travel when the couple left on a wedding trip to Florida, the bride was wearing a pink dacron and silk dress with bone accessories and an orchid corsage. The couple will establish a home in Lafayette.

Mrs. Bernard attended St. Matthew's in Monroe and graduated from Columbia High School in Columbia, Miss. She also attended Northeast Louisiana State College, where she was a member of Alpha Omicron Pi sorority. Mr. Bernard graduated from Cathedral High School in Lafayette and from Northeast Louisiana State College School of Pharmacy.

Out-of-town guests were Dr. and Mrs. Walter Colbert, Natchez, Miss., Mrs. L. B. Dennig, Miss Nell Dennig and Miss Kathy Dennig, all of Ruston.

Let's talk about Maternity Fashions

By LILLIAN ELIAS

CHARMINGLY SHORT

A small girl is bound to "show" early (when you're junior size there's no place to go but out!) By carefully selecting your maternity clothes you can avoid the "five by five" problem and show off your attractive petiteness to the fullest advantage.

YOUR BEST BUYS

One piece dresses with vertical lines — jumpers and blouses — skirts and tops that match — are your best buy. A wise "little" girl will decide on the quieter colors, the smaller bows, up and down stripes and fine dressmaker detail. Professional advice from experienced maternity wear salesladies can be an invaluable aid to you in selecting your "waiting" wardrobe. Such assistance is yours for the asking at Lillian's Maternity Shop.

WATCH YOUR WEIGHT

You should watch your weight like a Hollywood starlet. Extra pounds show up alarmingly when you are small. Think tall . . . carry yourself straight . . . don't slump or slouch! Wear shoes that compliment your costume . . . not flat, sloppy shoes! Make the most of rather high heels, high hats and a slightly higher hemline. Avoid fussiness — stick to straight styles in one piece dresses—the "outfit look" in two-piece wear.

HAVE FUN!

Enjoy the many different styles and materials there are to choose from . . . while accenting the fact that you are naturally charmingly short. With a wardrobe of maternity clothes that fit and "become" you, you will be ready for any occasion. This will make the "waiting" a lot of fun!

COME TO SEE US

Lillian's Maternity Shop is located at 1129 Forsythe Ave. in Forsythe Shopping Center. Come to see us! You are always welcome in our shop. Use our convenient layaway plan. We are open till 5:30 p.m. and for night appointments call Lillian in advance at FA 3-2482.

MR. AND MRS. GLENN I. TIDWELL

West Monroe Couple Wed In Baptist Church

Baskets of white gladioli and white candles against a background of greenery formed a setting in the First Bapist Church chapel of West Monroe, for the wedding of Miss Barbara Ann Odaware and Glenn I. Tidwell, both of West Monroe. The ceremony was performed at 7:30 p.m. June 16 by Rev. Charles E. Holstead.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. L. L. Odaware, West Monroe, and parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. I. E. Tidwell of Downsville.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Oscar Odaware. She wore a gown of handclipped Chantilly lace with nylon tulle ruffles creating back interest of the bouffant ballerina skirt, with pearls and sequins adorning the neckline. She wore a fingertip veil of illusion and nylon tulle.

Mrs. Agnes Elizabeth Alexander, as matron of honor wore a pale yellow dress of silk organza, styled with bracelet sleeves and scoop neckline in ballerina length. She wore a matching nylon net veil attached to a sequin and pearl crown and carried a bouquet of yellow chrysanthemums arranged in star shape.

Bridesmaids who were dressed identically to the honor attendant were Miss Linda Daniel and Miss Sylvia Hayden. Jennifer Gaye Alexander, niece of the bride, was flower girl, and wore a frock of white silk organza, styled similar to the other attendants.

Hugh O. Tidwell served as best man and groomsmen - ushers were Bobby Tidwell and Ferman Tidwell. Kevin Owen acted as ringbearer.

For the occsion the bride's mother wore an ice blue lace dress with matching hat and white accessories. The bridegroom's mother wore a beige ensemble with white accessories and both had corsages of white carnations.

After a wedding trip to Hot Springs and Fort Smith, Arkansas, the couple has established a home at 136 Parkdale Drive in West Monroe.

Miss Gibson Is Bride Of Mr. McDonald

Miss Martha Evelyn Gibson and Tillman Wayne McDonald exchanged wedding vows Saturday, June 17. The ceremony took place at 7:30 p.m. in the First Baptist church at Harrisonburg with the Rev. Joseph Hance Hamilton, uncle of the bride, officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Wana Gibson and Mr. McDonald's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Tillman McDonald of Haynesville.

The ceremony was performed before an altar flanked by baskets of white chrysanthemums, stock and gladioli. Leatherleaf fern and white cathedral tapers in branched candelabra entwined with Southern smilax formed a background. Mrs. Thomas Harris Cassel was organist.

Escorted by her father, who gave her in marriage, the bride wore a gown of Italian pure silk, appliqued with motifs of Alencon lace and seed pearls. The moulded bodice with portrait neckline and brief sleeves was attached to a full circular skirt appliqued in circles of lace which swept to a cathedral train in back. Her fingertip veil of silk illusion fell from a cap of lace and her bouquet of lily of the valley was centered with white orchids.

Miss Rose Katherine Gibson of Harrisonburg attended her sister as maid of honor and Mrs. Jack Malone Sharp, Dallas, Tex., also a sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were another sister, Mrs. Donald Allen Hamilton Jr., of Bartlesville, Okla., and Miss Carole Lucille Taliaferro of Harrisonburg. They wore dresses of imported white organdy over yellow taffeta, with sashes of yellow ribbon. The skirts, accented with a fold of embroidered organdy forming a deep hem, featured a flat front and pleats forming a back pouf. Their headdresses were wreaths of flowers and they carried bouquets of yellow and white daisies.

Clyde Colvin McDonald of Haynesville, served his brother as best man. Groomsmen were another brother, John Allen McDonald of Haynesville; Carl Frey Tucker of New Orleans and Maurice Harper Lindsay Jr. of Monroe.

Following the wedding a reception was given by the bride's parents in the church parlor. Mrs. Orville C. Crawford welcomed guests and alternating at the cake and punch bowl were Mrs. Maud Beard, Mrs. Robert Lansing McKillips and Mrs. Charles Cicero Finley. Other members of the house party were Miss Sylvia Cloutier, Miss June Riddick, Miss Rose Theresa Rinaudo and Mrs. Frank Vestil Cox. Miss Diane Cassel presided at the guest book.

The couple will reside in New Orleans where Mr. McDonald is a student at Louisiana State University School of Medicine.

Mrs. Lee Fetes Bosco HD Club

"Better Breads for Less Money," was topic of the demonstration given by Mrs. P. M. Jeter for the Bosco Home Demonstration Club when it met June 20 in the home of Mrs. J. R. Lee.

Members and guests present were Misses Cheryln Lee, Dajuana Salisbury, Denice Pender and Mrs. Coty Hair, Mrs. Whellis Dear, Mrs. Allen Cloud, Mrs. Jeter, Mrs. Pat Salisbury, Mrs. James Pender and the hostess.

Double Ring Ceremony Unites Rayville Couple

Vows uniting Miss Carolyn Bozeman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Bozeman, and Louie Richardson, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Richardson, all of Rayville, were solemnized Friday, June 30 in Cedar Baptist Church at Archibald.

Arrangements of pompons and gladioli against a background of palmettos and lighted tapers formed a setting for the double ring ceremony at 7:30 p.m. performed by Rev. John Carlisle.

A program of nuptial music was presented by Miss Elenor Parker, organist and Richard Rocket, soloist. Candles were lighted by Miss Glenda Bozeman, sister of the bride and Miss Deborah Bozeman, cousin of the bride.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of silk organza and nylon tulle over taffeta. The bodice and bouffant skirt was richly embroidered with designs of pearls and sequins and her fingertip veil fell from a headdress, similarly beaded. She carried a large white orchid atop a white Bible.

Miss Dixie Milby served as maid of honor. She wore a gown of pearl pink silk organza, styled with large puff sleeves and full skirt and carried a bouquet of pink chrysanthemums.

Serving as best man was Fred Richardson, brother of the bridegroom. Ushers were Dewey Senn and Jerry Wilson.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Bozeman wore an orchid suit with white accessories and the bridegroom's mother wore a black sheath, trimmed in white with white accessories. Both had corsages of white carnations.

Avant-Owen Vows Read In Texas

Solemnized Saturday, July 1 in Irving, Texas was the wedding of Miss Betty Jo Owen of that city and Roy D. Avant of Dallas, Texas. The bride is the daughter of Rev. and Mrs. E. L. Owen of Irving, and parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. B. O. Avant of Downsville, La.

The double ring ceremony was performed at 7:30 p.m. in the home of the bride's brother, Fred E. Owen with Rev. Jack McCullough officiating.

A color scheme in shades of pink and lavender was carried out in decorations of the home and wedding appointments.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of blush pink silk peau de soie, designed with moulded bodice, portrait neckline, traced with rosettes and satin streamers drifting onto the waltz length skirt. The rose motif was repeated on the skirt and her veil was attached to a crown of pearlized orange blossoms. She carried a white orchid arrangement atop a white Bible.

Mrs. Wanda Crippen, sister of the bride, served as matron of honor and wore a pink waltz length gown. The junior bridesmaid, Miss Janice Baggs, wore a lavender gown in waltz length and both attendants carried nosegays of pink carnations.

Serving as best man for his brother was James B. Avant. Rocky and Randy Owen, nephews of the bride, lighted the candles.

The bride's mother wore a pink lace dress with matching accessories and Mrs. Avant, mother of the bridegroom, wore a pink silk frock. Both had corsages of pink carnations.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the home. Flowers shading from pink to lavender adorned the bride's table where the tiered wedding cake was encircled with clusters of pale pink roses. Members of the house party for the reception were Misses Jo Bitros, Claudia Reese, Cathy Williamson, Wilma Lake and Carol Owen.

Mr. Avant was graduated from Northeast Louisiana State college in Monroe, and attended Louisiana Tech.

Special pans are availabe for baking lady fingers; if you are not adept at using a pastry tube, or haven't one, you might find it worthwhile investing in these.

Illinois Plans Colored Asphalt Highways Soon

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP)—Yellow, red, off-white and black asphalt will be introduced on Illinois highways soon.

W. J. Payes Jr., state public works director, said Saturday the colored asphalt eliminates pavement glare and extends headlight vision.

He said yellow asphalt would be used at approaches to intersections. Intersections would be paved with red asphalt to signal the need for caution.

Yellow and red paving will be used at the intersection of some Cook County roads. Off-white will be tested with black asphalt in Sangamon County.

Studies will determine reactions in traffic movements and safety.

NOT FROM HOLLYWOOD

Major Feminine Star Not Actress

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—For the first time in memory, the nation's top feminine star is not from Hollywood, nor is she an actress.

Even here Jacqueline Kennedy, the chic First Lady, has supplanted Elizabeth Taylor, Marilyn Monroe and other movie queens as the idol of young girls.

Mr. Bennett, hair stylist at Paganos of Beverly Hills, reports that young girls all bring in pictures of Mrs. Kennedy's hairdos and want them copied.

Charles LeMaire, a movie fashion designer, notes the same thing in his field and comments: "I think it's the healthiest trend in years. Mrs. Kennedy's taste in clothes will lift America out of the fashion doldrums."

But most important is the glamorous First Lady's effect morally on young girls.

An informal survey among clergymen and educators finds unanimous approval of the teen-age adulation shift from Hollywood to Washington. One priest summed it up thus:

"Mrs. Kennedy's recent conquest of Europe did more in a week than a thousand sermons from the pulpit. Our young people saw a gracious lady and mother, who believes in the sanctity of the home, conquer Europe like no movie queen ever did.

"So effective was her quiet dignity and charm that even President Kennedy, by his own admission, took second billing. Thank God, she has made good breeding, good maners and good education popular again."

Curtain Call

By BOBBY GRIFFIN

Thursday, July 6, will be opening night for the hilarious comedy, "Mr. Roberts," at the Strauss Playhouse Theatre. Be sure and call to make your reservations early. You can call the Strauss Playhouse beginning July 3, in the afternoon from 1:00 to 7:00 and your reservations will be made for you.

"Mr. Roberts," had a very successful run on Broadway and will be shown here with local talent at the Little Theatre in conjunction with Northeast State College July 6 through July 12.

Recently opening in London, was "Bye-Bye Birdie." The show was attended by former Monroyan, Slade Brown, who made a special trip over for this showing. As you know, Brown has an interest in "Bye-Bye Birdie."

PLANS

J. H. "Buddy" Henry is going to New Orleans this week - end and plans to see the mystery drama, "Monicque," which is being shown at the LePetite Theatre Vieux Carre.

We are now announcing the foreign films to be shown this summer and fall at the Little Theatre. Six great films selected for top adult entertainment are scheduled for special showing under the new Cinema 6 Little Theatre program between July 15 and December 7. Admission will be by membership card only.

Memberships are $5.00 for the entire series of six films, and can be obtained by application at Little Theatre box office. An outstanding series of short subjects have also been selected for your added pleasure. Memberships will be limited to 250 persons and sales close with the first film, July 15.

July 15: "The Golden Age of Comedy."

A side - splitting cavalcade of sight gags. Knockabout scenes of slapstick with the Keystone Cops and Billy Bevan . . Laurel and Hardy . . Will Rogers . . Douglas Fairbanks . . Harry Langdon . . . Ben Turpin . . Andy Clyde and many others.

August 17: "A Nous, La Liberte" (French).

"A comedy constructed for belly laughts which it unfailingly produces . . easily among the ten best films of all times . . George Perinal's mangificent photography . . truly a remarkable comedy. Arthur Knight Saturday Review.

September 9: "La Strada" (Italian).

Federico Fellini's story of a simple - minded waif, a brutish strong man and a philosophical "fool" who travel the highway in Italy becomes, through the artistry of all concerned, a story of every man's loneliness and search for the way of his life. Academy Award, Best Foreign Film of 1956.

October 12: "Tales of Hoffman" (English).

Jacque Offenbach's greatest work in its complete form (prologue, three acts and epiloge) performed by the world's leading opera and ballet stars. Luxurious music . . new methods of lighting, unusual and lavish costume designing help make this movie "The most beautiful thing pictorially ever seen in any entertainment medium" . . . United Press.

November 4: "Ikiru" (To Live-Japanese).

Ikirie is the story of the search of the meaning of life by a man who knows he has only a short time to live. It is a search illuminated by some of the most brilliant cinematic images ever seen on the screen and by a memorably matchelss performance by its leading actor.

December 7: "The Belles of St. Trinian's" (English).

This hilarious farce concerns an English girl's school - one of the oddest schools imaginable - a hotbed of perfectly awful teachers and horrid little uninhibited scholars who make gin in the chemistry class, bet on horses and cheat outrageously at field hockey.

That's all for this week. See you at "Mr. Roberts" during the week.

MICKEY MOUSE Club during the summer will be held again this year at the downtown Paramount Theatre, starting Tuesday, July 11. The summer features will be held at 10 a.m. each Tuesday.

LANA TURNER AND Efrem Zimbalist Jr., appear in one of the love scenes which mark the United Artists release "By Love Possessed," which opens today at the Paramount Theatre. Also starring are Jason Robards Jr., and Barbara Bel Geddes.

Movie Billing Changes Urged By Film Director

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Director Michael Joseph Kane wants to change a common billing practice for movies, and his argument makes sense.

"The players in a movie should be identified at the end of a movie instead of before," he says. "I know it's required to reel off a long list of names before the picture, but who notices the other names after the stars' names have flashed on?

"At the end of the movie, the public wants to know who played what part, especially in the case of a newcomer who may have given an impressive performance in a top role."

Marilyn Monroe Is Recovering

A hospital spokesman said she had proved to be a good patient.

Clay Shaped While Music Sets Theme

NEW YORK (UPI) — Mixing clay with music sounds sticky. But it's the newest party idea for youngsters.

Invitations should state that the guests are being invited to a "musiclay modeling party." The youngsters are supposed to arrive in musical costumes and they're to be prepared to model clay to music.

There's a bit of the old-fashioned amateur hour about it. Before the party moves on to modeling, guests with musical ability are expected to perform, using instruments ranging from pie pans to whatever else is at hand.

Siebolt Frieswyk, consultant in the performing arts for the National Recreation Association, explains the musically modeling contest this way:

"Participants are asked to listen to a musical recording and while the music is going on to model the clay into forms which express the music.

Illinois Plans Colored Asphalt Highways Soon

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP)—Yellow, red, off-white and black asphalt will be introduced on Illinois highways soon.

W. J. Payes Jr., state public works director, said Saturday the colored asphalt eliminates pavement glare and extends headlight vision.

He said yellow asphalt would be used at approaches to intersections. Intersections would be paved with red asphalt to signal the need for caution.

Yellow and red paving will be used at the intersection of some Cook County roads. Off-white will be tested with black asphalt in Sangamon County.

Studies will determine reactions in traffic movements and safety.

NOT FROM HOLLYWOOD

Major Feminine Star Not Actress

Even here Jacqueline Kennedy, the chic First Lady, has supplanted Elizabeth Taylor, Marilyn Monroe and other movie queens as the idol of young girls.

Mr. Bennett, hair stylist at Paganos of Beverly Hills, reports that young girls all bring in pictures of Mrs. Kennedy's hairdos and want them copied.

Charles LeMaire, a movie fashion designer, notes the same thing in his field and comments: "I think it's the healthiest trend in years. Mrs. Kennedy's taste in clothes will lift America out of the fashion doldrums."

But most important is the glamorous First Lady's effect morally on young girls.

An informal survey among clergymen and educators finds unanimous approval of the teen-age adulation shift from Hollywood to Washington. One priest summed it up thus:

"Mrs. Kennedy's recent conquest of Europe did more in a week than a thousand sermons from the pulpit. Our young people saw a gracious lady and mother, who believes in the sanctity of the home, conquer Europe like no movie queen ever did.

"So effective was her quiet dignity and charm that even President Kennedy, by his own admission, took second billing. Thank God, she has made good breeding, good maners and good education popular again."

C. ALLISON SALLEY

Salley Named To Church's Music Posts

C. Allison Salley will begin his duties as organist and choirmaster at Grace Episcopal Church on Sunday, July 9th. He will replace Jerry McSpadden who has resigned to do further graduate work.

He attended Louisiana College where he majored in organ under the direction of Mattie Lee Pate. In New York City he was engaged in private study of organ and conducting with Ernest White and Walter Baker.

COLLEAGUE

He is a colleague of the American Guild of Organists, New York City chapter. In 1955 he was the statewide and southwide winner of the organ auditions sponsored by the National Federation of Music Clubs. Salley has served civilian churches and Military Chapels as orgnist-director of music for the past eight years. He has traveled extensively, concertizing, directing choirs and accompanying oratorios. He has appeared in outstanding churches in Louisiana, Wyoming, New York City and on Long Island.

While stationed at Mitchell Air Force Base, New York, he was accompanist and director of the Continental Air Command Choral Aires. This glee club won the second place awarded in the Air Force World-Wide group singing contest and concertized throughout America, the Far East, and has appeared on nationwide television programs.

MUSIC DIRECTOR

As director of music at the Protestant Chapel at Mitchell AFA, Salley received the Air Force Commendation Medal for his leadership of the musical phase of the Chaplain Cultural Leadership Program.

Salley is married to the former Shirley Stall of Sterlington. They have one daughter. They will reside at 1700 North Second Street, Monroe.

Cave Serves As Location For Services

NEW YORK (AP)—Hold church services in a cave?

"Why not?" asks the Rev. Lyman Riley, who believes he is the only member of the clergy in the world to operate a cavern.

An ordained minister of the reorganized Church of Latter-Day Saints, he owns and manages the famous Onondaga Cave at Leasburg, Mo., in the Ozark Hills, which has been described as one of the 10 most beautiful caves in America.

"It was originally discovered by Daniel Boone and in size of rooms—one room is nearly half a mile in length—it is second only to Carlsbad Cavern in New Mexico," he said.

SPECIAL SERVICES

While the cave is primarily a tourist attraction, the minister-owner, as well as the clergymen of other faiths, periodically holds candlelit services there on Sundays and religious holidays, such as Easter, using a natural rock formation as a pulpit.

"It reminds many of the occasions in Roman times when Christians held their services in grottoes to avoid torture," said the Rev. Mr. Riley. "The candlelight lends a reverential atmosphere."

Before taking up the study of caves, the colorful pastor, who is 43, had a brief career as a schoolteacher. He is still active as a youth leader in the Ozark area.

After losing a teaching job, he hitch-hiked around the country for a while. Then, following a hitch in the Navy as radio technician aboard a destroyer in the South Pacific, he became first a guide and then manager at the Meramec Caverns at Stanton, Mo.

According to his own testimony, in those days he was a bit of a rounder.

"I got into the habit of using alcohol as a crutch," he recalled. "I became a minister—I was ordained in 1954—primarily because of a need within myself. I realized I wasn't the man I wanted to be.

"I decided the only way a man can become immortal on this earth is to live in the minds of other people—but the only way to do that is to serve them."

POINT OF PRIDE

Busy in half a dozen community philanthropies, he is proudest of the fact that of the 23 couples he has married none has divorced or separated.

As to operating the cave, which drew 123,000 visitors last year, he remarked: "It sounds like odd work, but it is one of the most interesting businesses in the world. It is never boring.

"In the United States now there are 427 caves open to the public, most of them run by the government. Only about 70 are privately operated, and they are owned by about 17 people. It's a pretty closely held industry.

"Seventy per cent of the people who visit caves have never been in one before, and some have childish fears. Adults are usually more afraid than children."

EXPRESSED LONG AGO

Christian View Towards Death

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

The Christian attitude toward death was expressed nearly 2,000 years ago in a famous passage of St. Paul's first letter to the Corinthians:

"O death, where is thy sting? O grave, where is thy victory?"

In those triumphant words, the great apostle summed up the Christian assurance that death is not an end but a beginning, not the final defeat of man's aspirations but a gate through which he passes into eternal life.

Modern Christians profess to share St. Paul's nonchalance toward death. But when death strikes in a Christian family, the surviving members rarely think of their bereavement as an opportunity to bear witness to their faith. They are more likely to go along with—or even to insist upon — funeral customs which are based on a pagan rather than a Christian view of death.

The frequent failure of Christians to bury their dead in a Christian manner is a source of concern to many church leaders. Both Protestant and Roman Catholic clergymen have spoken out strongly on the subject. Religious magazines have published numerous editorials and articles deploring "paganism" in funerals. One denomination, the Church of the Brethren, appointed a special commission to study "ways in which the Christian faith can be more clearly expressed" in burial rites.

CALL PASTOR FIRST

1. Call the pastor as soon as possible following a death in the family. He should be one of the first people notified. No funeral arrangements should be made without consulting him.

2. Have the funeral in the church, if at all practicable. "The church," says the Rev. Dr. Edgar S. Brown Jr., director of worship for the United Lutheran Church, "is the place where we are baptized and confirmed, where we are sustained in word and sacrament, and before whose altar we are married. It is appropriate that the body be brought there for the last time."

3. Avoid any custom or practice which focuses undue attention on the body, or which tries to mask the reality of physical death. A Catholic theologian, the Rev. Juniper Cummings, is especially horrified by innerspring mattresses in coffins. "Such attention to cadavers," he says, "is decidedly un-Christian."

4. Seal the casket before the funeral. This is strongly urged by many clergymen, who feel it is easier on the mourners and lessens the chances of emotional excesses.

5. Resist any temptation to demonstrate love for the deceased by having a lavish funeral. It is natural for a family to feel a sense of guilt toward a member who has died, and to attempt to "make up" for kind words left unsaid and kind deeds left undone in life. (This is a major reason, clergymen believe, why funerals have become a $1.5 billion a year business in America, with the average burial costing upwards of $900.

6. Consider a private burial with graveside rites attended only by the family. This can be followed at a later date by a public memorial service in the church. Clergymen strongly commend this procedure, which spares a grieving family from the barbaric ordeal of a big public funeral, and automatically eliminates any temptation toward ostentation.

7. Accept bereavement like a Christian who believes in the promise of eternal life and who knows what God's love is sufficient to heal the deepest human hurt, including the loss of an adored parent, child or mate. A Christian will suffer like anyone else when death deprives him of human companionship which he has cherished above all earthly treasures. By bearing his loss with serenity and without bitter complaint, he can witness for Christ before a world which judges a man's faith, not by what he says he believes, but by how he acts in the supreme crises of life.

Church Slates $150,000 Bond Issue For Work

FERRIDAY (Special) — The First Baptist Church of Ferriday will sell a $150,000 bond issue to finance the construction of a new sanctuary for the church.

The bonds, it was announced by church officials, will be six per cent first mortgage bearer bonds. They will be offered in denominations of $100, $250, $500, and $1,000.

The bond issue, which is being prepared by an investment company in Shreveport, will be delivered to the church July 11th.

Plans for the new sanctuary are being drawn by the architectural firm of Elwood Reames and Associates, Lake Charles, La. It will be large enough to seat about 850 persons. There will be a balcony.

Ground - breaking ceremonies are to be set around August 1, with construction to begin soon afterwards, according to the pastor, The Rev. M. H. Fields.

REV. WOODROW HEARN

Rev W. Hearn Will Speak At Local Church

The Rev. Woodrow Hearn, associate Pastor of First Methodist Church, Shreveport will speak at the First Methodist Church, Monroe, this evening at 7:30. He will discuss the National Council of Churches.

Rev. Hearn is a graduate of Louisiana Tech and Boston School of Theology, and speaks with authority on this subject. At the insistance of the Shreveport Ministerial Association he has made a comprehensive study of the National Council.

Much has been said in recent days concerning The National Council. This study is being presented in order that people may have a better understanding of the Council and its functions.

The program is presented under the auspices of the Joint Commissions on Social Christian Concerns of the First Methodist Church and St. Paul's Methodist Church. The service is open to the public.

Rev. Tom Pfeifer Speaker Today At Services Here

The Rev. Tom L. Pfeifer, state director for work with Negroes in the Louisiana Baptist Convention and Home Mission Board, will be speaker at services today at Emmanuel Baptist Church of Monroe.

He has served as state director of the organization for the past two years. He works with evangelistic efforts, promotion work and the educational fields.

He is a former pastor of the [illegible] Baptist Church of Baton Rouge, and is a graduate of Mississippi College and the New Orleans Baptist Theological seminary.

Two licensed ministers from Emmanuel Baptist Church will fill the pulpit there next Sunday. Sergeant Pierce, ROTC instructor at Northeast State College will appear at the morning service, and Joe Moseley will appear at the evening service.

Evangelist Sets Meeting Series At Area Church

Evangelist Frederick P. Billings, of Dallas, Texas, will begin a series of meetings at the [illegible] Chapel Independent Congregational Church today and continue through the Sunday evening service July 9th.

Evangelist Billings has been in the ministry for 17 years, the past four being spent in evangelistic campaigns. He has conducted meetings from coast to coast as well as appearing before high schools and civic clubs. He was formerly vice president of the Dallas Bible Institute.

According to the Pastor, Roy V. Wood, the meetings will begin nightly at 7:30.

Local Minister Attends Confab

A local minister was in attendance when the 73rd annual International Convention of the Church of God opened recently in Anderson, Ind.

He is the Rev. Paul L. Owens, pastor of the Welcome Home Church of God in West Monroe.

C. ALLISON SALLEY

Salley Named To Church's Music Posts

C. Allison Salley will begin his duties as organist and choirmaster at Grace Episcopal Church on Sunday, July 9th. He will replace Jerry McSpadden who has resigned to do further graduate work.

He attended Louisiana College where he majored in organ under the direction of Mattie Lee Pate. In New York City he was engaged in private study of organ and conducting with Ernest White and Walter Baker.

COLLEAGUE

He is a colleague of the American Guild of Organists, New York City chapter. In 1955 he was the statewide and southwide winner of the organ auditions sponsored by the National Federation of Music Clubs. Salley has served civilian churches and Military Chapels as orgnist-director of music for the past eight years. He has traveled extensively, concertizing, directing choirs and accompanying oratorios. He has appeared in outstanding churches in Louisiana, Wyoming, New York City and on Long Island.

While stationed at Mitchell Air Force Base, New York, he was accompanist and director of the Continental Air Command Choral Aires. This glee club won the second place awarded in the Air Force World-Wide group singing contest and concertized throughout America, the Far East, and has appeared on nationwide television programs.

MUSIC DIRECTOR

As director of music at the Protestant Chapel at Mitchell AFA, Salley received the Air Force Commendation Medal for his leadership of the musical phase of the Chaplain Cultural Leadership Program.

Salley is married to the former Shirley Stall of Sterlington. They have one daughter. They will reside at 1700 North Second Street, Monroe.

Cave Serves As Location For Services

NEW YORK (AP)—Hold church services in a cave?

"Why not?" asks the Rev. Lyman Riley, who believes he is the only member of the clergy in the world to operate a cavern.

An ordained minister of the reorganized Church of Latter-Day Saints, he owns and manages the famous Onondaga Cave at Leasburg, Mo., in the Ozark Hills, which has been described as one of the 10 most beautiful caves in America.

"It was originally discovered by Daniel Boone and in size of rooms—one room is nearly half a mile in length—it is second only to Carlsbad Cavern in New Mexico," he said.

SPECIAL SERVICES

While the cave is primarily a tourist attraction, the minister-owner, as well as the clergymen of other faiths, periodically holds candlelit services there on Sundays and religious holidays, such as Easter, using a natural rock formation as a pulpit.

"It reminds many of the occasions in Roman times when Christians held their services in grottoes to avoid torture," said the Rev. Mr. Riley. "The candlelight lends a reverential atmosphere." Before taking up the study of caves, the colorful pastor, who is 43, had a brief career as a schoolteacher. He is still active as a youth leader in the Ozark area.

After losing a teaching job, he hitch-hiked around the country for a while. Then, following a hitch in the Navy as radio technician aboard a destroyer in the South Pacific, he became first a guide and then manager at the Meramec Caverns at Stanton, Mo.

According to his own testimony, in those days he was a bit of a rounder.

"I got into the habit of using alcohol as a crutch," he recalled. "I became a minister—I was ordained in 1954—primarily because of a need within myself. I realized I wasn't the man I wanted to be.

"I decided the only way a man can become immortal on this earth is to live in the minds of other people—but the only way to do that is to serve them."

POINT OF PRIDE

Busy in half a dozen community philanthropies, he is proudest of the fact that of the 23 couples he has married none has divorced or separated.

As to operating the cave, which drew 125,000 visitors last year, he remarked: "It sounds like odd work, but it is one of the most interesting businesses in the world. It is never boring.

"In the United States now there are 427 caves open to the public, most of them run by the government. Only about 70 are privately operated, and they are owned by about 17 people. It's a pretty closely held industry.

"Seventy per cent of the people who visit caves have never been in one before, and some have childish fears. Adults are usually more afraid than children.

EXPRESSED LONG AGO

Christian View Towards Death

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

The Christian attitude toward death was expressed nearly 2,000 years ago in a famous passage of St. Paul's first letter to the Corinthians:

"O death, where is thy sting? O grave, where is thy victory?"

In those triumphant words, the great apostle summed up the Christian assurance that death is not an end but a beginning, not the final defeat of man's aspirations but a gate through which he passes into eternal life.

Modern Christians profess to share St. Paul's nonchalance toward death. But when death strikes in a Christian family, the surviving members rarely think of their bereavement as an opportunity to bear witness to their faith. They are more likely to go along with—or even to insist upon — funeral customs which are based on a pagan rather than a Christian view of death.

The frequent failure of Christians to bury their dead in a Christian manner is a source of concern to many church leaders. Both Protestant and Roman Catholic clergymen have spoken out strongly on the subject. Religious magazines have published numerous editorials and articles deploring "paganism" in funerals. One denomination, the Church of the Brethren, appointed a special commission to study "ways in which the Christian faith can be more clearly expressed" in burial rites.

CALL PASTOR FIRST

1. Call the pastor as soon as possible following a death in the family. He should be one of the first people notified. No funeral arrangements should be made without consulting him.

2. Have the funeral in the church, if at all practicable. "The church," says the Rev. Dr. Edgar S. Brown Jr., director of worship for the United Lutheran Church, "is the place where we are baptized and confirmed, where we are sustained in word and sacrament, and before whose altar we are married. It is appropriate that the body be brought there for the last time."

3. Avoid any custom or practice which focuses undue attention on the body, or which tries to mask the reality of physical death. A Catholic theologian, the Rev. Juniper Cummings, is especially horrified by innerspring mattresses in coffins. "Such attention to cadavers," he says, "is decidedly un-Christian."

4. Seal the casket before the funeral. This is strongly urged by many clergymen, who feel it is easier on the mourners and lessens the chances of emotional excesses.

5. Resist any temptation to demonstrate love for the deceased by having a lavish funeral. It is natural for a family to feel a sense of guilt toward a member who has died, and to attempt to "make up" for kind words left unsaid and kind deeds left undone in life. (This is a major reason, clergymen believe, why funerals have become a $1.5 billion a year business in America, with the average burial costing upwards of $900.

6. Consider a private burial with graveside rites attended only by the family. This can be followed at a later date by a public memorial service in the church. Clergymen strongly commend this procedure, which spares agrieving family from the barbaric ordeal of a big public funeral, and automatically eliminates any temptation toward ostentation.

7. Accept bereavement like a Christian who believes in the promise of eternal life and who knows what God's love is sufficient to heal the deepest human hurt, including the loss of an adored parent, child or mate. A Christian will suffer like anyone else when death deprives him of human companionship which he has cherished above all earthly treasures. By bearing his loss with serenity and without bitter complaint, he can witness for Christ before a world which judges a man's faith, not by what he says he believes, but by how he acts in the supreme crises of life.

Church Slates $150,000 Bond Issue For Work

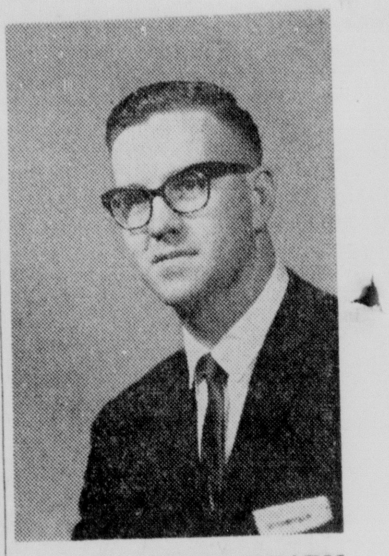
FERRIDAY (Special) — The First Baptist Church of Ferriday will sell a $150,000 bond issue to finance the construction of a new sancturary for the church.

The bonds, it was announced by church officials, will be six per cent first mortgage bearer bonds. They will be offered in denominations of $100, $250, $500, and $1,000.

The bond issue, which is being prepared by an investment company in Shreveport, will be delivered to the church July 11th.

Plans for the new sanctuary are being drawn by the architectural firm of Elwood Reames and Associates, Lake Charles, La. It will be large enough to seat about 850 persons. There will be a balcony.

Ground - breaking ceremonnes are to be set around August 1, with construction to begin soon afterwards, according to the pastor, The Rev. M. H. Fields.



REV. WOODROW HEARN

Rev W. Hearn Will Speak At Local Church

The Rev. Woodrow Hearn, associate Pastor of First Methodist Church, Shreveport will speak at the First Methodist Church, Monroe, this evening at 7:30. He will discuss the National Council of Churches.

Rev. Hearn is a graduate of Louisiana Tech and Boston School of Theology, and speaks with authority on this subject. At the insistance of the Shreveport Ministerial Association he has made a comprehensive study of the National Council.

Much has been said in recent days concerning The National Council. This study is being presented in order that people may have a better understanding of the Council and its functions.

The program is presented under the auspices of the Joint Commissions on Social Christian Concerns of the First Methodist Church and St. Paul's Methodist Church. The service is open to the public.

Rev. Tom Pfeifer Speaker Today At Services Here

The Rev. Tom L. Pfeifer, state director for work with Negroes in the Louisiana Baptist Convention and Home Mission Board, will be speaker at services today at Emmanuel Baptist Church of Monroe.

He has served as state director of the organization for the past two years. He works with evangelistic efforts, promotion work and the educational fields.

He is a former pastor of the Monte Sano Baptist Church of Baton Rouge, and is a graduate of Mississippi College and the New Orleans Baptist Theological seminary.

Two licensed ministers from Emmanuel Baptist Church will fill the pulpit there next Sunday. Sergeant Pierce, ROTC instructor at Northeast State College will appear at the morning service, and Joe Moseley will appear at the evening service.

Evangelist Sets Meeting Series At Area Church

Evangelist Frederick P. Billings, of Dallas, Texas, will begin a series of meetings at the Aulds Chapel Independent Congregational Church today and continue through the Sunday evening service July 9th.

Evangelist Billings has been in the ministry for 17 years, the past four being spent in evangelistic campaigns. He has conducted meetings from coast to coast as well as appearing before high schools and civic clubs. He was formerly vice president of the Dallas Bible Institute.

According to the Pastor, Roy V. Wuest, the meetings will begin nightly at 7:30.

Local Minister Attends Confab

A local minister was in attendance when the 73rd annual International Convention of the Church of God opened recently in Anderson, Ind.

He is the Rev. Paul L. Owens, pastor of the Welcome Home Church of God in West Monroe.

More Palms, Cactus Plants

By MILDRED SWIFT

Each year we are seeing more yuccas, cactus and palms in gardens in this area. There are many reasons: First they withstand the heat and cold and seldom ever need to be watered in dry spells.

Second, we've learned that difference in foliage structure is more interesting in our gardens. In the past we've been prone to use too many small leafed plants because we have more of those available.

PALMS

There are a number of varieties of palms but only a few will survive some of our winter freezes. There are several that are quite hardy and these are the ones we should use. They love heat and drouth.

The palms can be transplanted in warm weather because when their roots are cut, they heal quickly and put out new ones. The three varieties that do best here are: Trachycarpus and Fortunei, which grow 30 feet or more in height and have a palmetta type foliage. The cocus Australia has fronds that weep and are very graceful. The Texas Sabal also has the palmetta type leaf and grows not quite so tall as the Trachycarpus.

DIFFERENT

Most natives of Louisiana love our plants that grow here and would hesitate to go in for a startlingly different garden such as one I'm going to describe in Baton Rouge. This place is situated on the triangular corner lot of America, Maximilian and Grape Streets. I visited this last August and found it interesting and certainly easy to keep. Most of the plants used were desert or semi-desert ones.

With such an arid garden the owner provides an arid setting. There was a porch, terrace and slate paved steps. The house is trimmed with iron grill works. This front yard was very small, triangular in shape. The featured plantings were yuccas and cacti.

As an accent there is a variegated century plant that thrives well here.

Four species of yucca were used in the garden. Some had their lower leaves stripped away, leaving only the upper ones as is so often used these days in landscape work. A group of three with somewhat twisted stems is planted against the house. Three [illegible] and in the garden [illegible] with [illegible]. There [illegible] is darker grey rocks to the side. The owner explained that beneath the crushed rock is a covering of indestructible plastic material that will keep weeds and grasses from coming through. Slits were made in this plastic material so the water can get through to the roots of the plants.

Then the garden is edged with dwarf junipers, a northern plant. These have a scaly look that gives them a quality that seems to fit. They frame the garden nicely.

If you're in Baton Rouge it will be worth your while to drive by this interesting garden.

GARDEN JOBS

The white fly is making his visit to Ouachita Parish. The flies suck the plant juices and a black mold forms in the "honey dew" secreted by the insects. The mold blackens the leaves making them unsightly. When you see these white flies, wait six or eight days to spray. The adults will disappear, but they'll leave their eggs hatching. This spray will get the young. To control use malathion [illegible] strength [illegible] label.

Some camellias make seed so can be propagated by their seed. However, the plants grown from seed will not be like the mother plant. Only a few will be worthy of keeping. You'll be privileged to name these seedlings.

Gather the camellia seed as soon as the pod begins splitting. Extract the seed before they dry out. Full instructions for planting and caring for these seed will be found in our bulletin, "Camellias for the Yard."

Joseph's Coat of all colors gives vivid color to summer gardens and the seed can be planted now. It's an annual, fast growing to a height of two or three feet. Plant masses for spectacular effect. They thrive best in poor soil, in full sun. Plant seed shallow.

PLANTING

Portulaca could be planted close to the Joseph's Coat. They like the same type soil and the coloring is similar.

Roach says an elephant's ear can be raised as a house plant by planting it in a large cedar tub. Of course, they don't grow as large, which is good. They would necessarily need to be used in a large room, too.

Leave grass clippings on the lawn. In this hot sun they're gone in a day or two. They decay and add organic matter to the soil. If you rake these clippings you are depleting the soil of some of its best qualities.

Cut back hydrangeas and oleanders as soon as they cease blooming.

Watch evergreens for red spider. Run the finger on the underside of a leaf. If there's a red smudge, he's there. Malathion or dusting sulphur is the treatment. Be sure you get under the leaf.

Your crepe myrtles will be deeper in color and will bloom more profusely if you keep them watered during dry spells. Then if you'll keep the old blooms cut you'll have blossoms until frost.

There is an everblooming hydrangea, but I can't tell you the botanical name. It starts blooming in early spring and blooms until frost. The leaves are thicker, fleshier and darker green that our common kind. Ask your nurseryman about these and he'll carry them next winter when it's time to plant.

DREAM KITCHENS

In another five or 10 years it's possible that you'll decide on your dinner menu. Push some buttons and without lifting a finger, your food will move from your freezer right into your electronic oven and be cooked in a fifth of the time it takes today.

This is the kind of thing the appliance designers and engineers are working on. And if it sounds a little fantastic, look back to five years ago. Did you ever think then that we'd have the up-to-the-minute items that are available for our kitchens today?

Let's say, for example, you want the very ultimate in design and convenience. Well you might choose the "pushbutton" kitchen in-the-round with a control panel to turn on everything from the range and television to an electrically operated "lazy susan" table. You can have a kitchen designed to suit your own personality, too, in the color and style you want to blend harmoniously with the furnishings throughout your home.

Or, if you're the proverbial "green thumb" and you'd rather spend your time with plants and flowers, you'd most enjoy the kitchen with a built-in greenhouse area. Then you could tend to your hobby while automatic washer and dishwasher tend to your household chores.

The active, outdoor family with plenty of space will appreciate the luxurious snack kitchen complete with soda fountain, built in a sheltered patio right by the swimming pool. So when you hear the hostess say "dip anyone?" you're not quite sure if she's offering more cheese spread or a plunge before dinner!

None of this I'm telling you is far fetched, either. All these dream kitchens are equipped with standard units and everything in them is available today. Pick your favorite!

ANNOUNCEMENTS

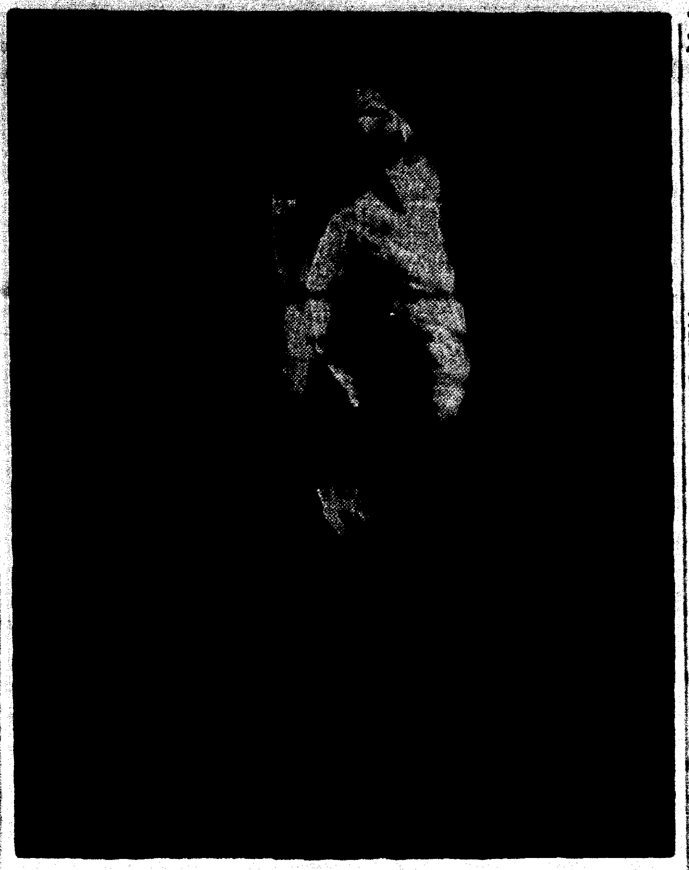
See you next week.



THIS YELLOW hybrid tea rose, the Eclipse, makes a striking appearance with its urn-shaped bud. The rose, which was a two-year-old field grown plant when Greg Hare set it out at his home in Swartz community this past year, is in its first season of blooming. Hare, a member of the News-Star—World staff, made this interesting photo study of the bud.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

Flower Show Held By Club Of Wisner

By MRS. K. R. YOUNG
Guest Writer

All the designs were lovely, and the display of horticulture consisting of roses, verbena, gladiolus, zinnia, dahlia and triple orange daylily made a most interesting show.

CRESCENT DESIGN

Mrs. Bill Thaxton did a crescent design in a low white milk glass bowl placed on a black base. She used cedar for the line of the crescent, placing zinnias low in the focal area, the larger darker blooms at the lowest point, and the smaller ones extending along the line giving both transition and strength to the crescent line. This design would be nice for almost any place in the home.

Mrs. Ray Adams and Mrs. Charles Watson made a triangular design, using driftwood as the container. This was placed on a large rectangular piece of masonite. The line of the design was created by the use of dried brown dock.

Blooms and buds of the tiger lily were used to carry out the triangular pattern, and to add strength at the center of interest. This would be a lovely arrangement for the den or family room.

Mrs. R. M. Hammond and Mrs. J. Gordon Mitchell Jr. created an interesting interpretation of the parabolic curve. For a container they used a dark brown wooden compote on a four tiered wooden base. The main line was achieved by the placement of aspidistra leaves.

Within this line were placed yellow dahlias, larger ones in the center with smaller ones extending along the line. A curved line of the green [illegible] begonia was placed to the right of the aspidistra, also used as a filler.

RATHER NEW IDEA

The parabolic curve is a rather new idea in flower arranging and is a most interesting design to work with. This arrangement would be suitable for the entrance hall.

Mrs. Wilton Hoggatt made a lovely Hogarth Curve using dried Scotch broom for the line material. She used a tall milk glass vase as a container, placing this on a tiered black base.

Wine red dahlias were used at the center of interest and extended along the Hogarth line, with oriental holly filling in and giving a touch of green. The arrangement is suitable for a bed room or console table.

SEW SIMPLE

By Eunice Farmer

"Dear Mrs. Farmer:

I like fitted overblouses, yet most of the patterns are cut very straight and boxy. Should I fit them in at the side seams to make them more fitted?"

Mrs. J. W. J.

Dear Mrs. J. W. J.:

Yes, overblouses can be fitted in to suit the individual figure. You can add darts, but they must be darts, to be in line with your bust line. Perhaps you will find that a dart at the underarm as well as one below the bust will give you the fitting you desire.

You may have a slight curve at the side seam, however, I would not add too much shape here. It is better to shape a garment with darts. You will enjoy sewing so much more when you do and become a slave to any pattern, but consider it a basic shell and change it until it is most becoming to you.

"Dear Editor,

"Can you please tell me if there is any way or method to set permanent pleats in fabrics such as cotton, jerseys, percales, etc?"

Mrs. I. E. A.

PERMANENT PLEATS

Dear Mrs. I. E. A.:

"Permanent" pleats is a term that has been used rather loosely, and everyone expects too much of it. Pleats that stay in after washing are made with special pleating equipment and done commercially. Even these usually have to be pressed over with a steam iron to make them look sharp. They usually are only successful in washable fabrics that have a synthetic content in them. The synthetic content such as nylon, dacron, orlon, etc., that makes a fabric crease resist, and, also helps hold the pleats in. The fabrics you mentioned will not stay permanently pleated even if they are pressed commercially.

"Dear Mrs. Farmer:

My little girl is only 11 years old, but is so interested in learning to sew. Do you think this is too young? She has been making doll clothes for more than a year."

Mrs. T. R.

SIMPLE PATTERN

Dear Mrs. T. R.:

Sometimes a child is pushed into learning to sew just because her mother thinks she should have something to do. This is a mistake and the child might never have a desire to learn because of this first experience. Since your little girl has expressed such a desire to sew, by all means let her. I would suggest you find a pattern with a very simple overblouse that could be worn with shorts or a skirt. This would give her the experience of applying facings, hems, and just plain straight sewing, along with learning to read pattern instructions. From there, she can gradually go on to more difficult patterns. You can help her most by giving her plenty of enthusiastic praise for her efforts.

Virus Causes Lily Mosaic

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

If you have not had success with lilies — the true, scale bulb lilies — your trouble was very probably the virus disease known as "lily mosaic." Yes, even lilies have virus diseases!

Lily mosaic is so-called because the disease makes a mosaic of streaks or dots on the foliage of the plants it attacks. When you see these signs of trouble, there is only one thing to do.

Burn the plant, roots, bulbs, stems and all immediately. By the time you detect it, your other lilies may already have been infected, and you will have to keep an eye on them, too.

SPREAD

Lily-mosaic is spread by the melon aphid, a little insect with a long proboscis with which it sucks the juice from plants. Some of its favorites are milkweed, periwinkle and bindweed.

This aphid gets around so fast that, where there is a single lily infected with mosaic in a garden, before you know it, the aphid has sucked the juices from it and inoculated every other lily in sight.

The mosaic situation is still further complicated by the fact that certain lilies are "carriers." They can have the mosaic disease and still not show it because they are more or less immune to it.

Most dangerous of all is the common old tiger lily. In fact, its immunity is the real reason for its existence in so many gardens. If you wish to grow any other lilies, be sure that they are not within 200 feet of tiger lilies.

Most of the lily bulbs we buy today from American dealers are disease - free because the bulb growers have seen to it that their stock is clean.

Many of their bulbs are raised from seed, and mosaic is not transmitted through seed. Starting out with disease - free bulbs, thousands of gardeners are raising lilies every year in spite of mosaic and some other lily troubles.

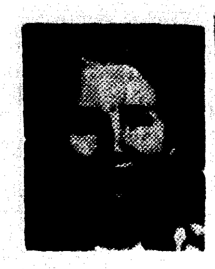
Give Mums Plant Food



By AUDREY DAWSON

If you want better bloom from your chrysanthemums this fall, feed them every two or three weeks and be sure to stake your plants. Better watch for insect and diseases, too.

Now is the time to propagate azaleas and camellias from cuttings. Insert the cutting in a mixture of sand and peat moss and place in a shaded area.

Shrubs and trees can be fed during July, but should not be fed later than July. Fertilize with a complete fertilize such as 8-8-8 and water it.

NEW THREAD

There's a new thread now on the market - wash-n-wear thread for wash-n-wear fabrics. It is called taslan, but there are a few hints in using the thread as true with any kind of wash-n-wear fabric to prevent puckering. You need a looser tension, a lighter pressure on the pressure foot, a steady even pace while stitching.

This thread is not to be used on untreated cotton or linen. It is recommended for wash and wear fabrics, wool, silk, and rayon. Another precaution, do not use hot iron for ironing garment made with this thread. Use a warm iron or a steam iron, set at steam. Taslan is a textured nylon thread which has a slight stretch which keeps the seam from puckering. It comes in 30 different colors.

NEW PRODUCT

A new product known as polyurethane foam is laminated to many kinds of knits and loosely woven fabrics. The foam makes these fabrics practical for outer garments and for certain household articles. All articles with the foam backing are hand washable and most are machine washable. However, be careful not to touch iron to foam when pressing.

These fabrics have a tendency to turn yellow due to atmospheric conditions rather than laundering.

OILING MACHINES

Many homemakers are confused as to how often a sewing machine should be oiled. Perhaps these statements may help you, Mrs. Homemaker. It is most important to oil the moving parts of your machine regularly. How often is determined by how much the machine is used.

Most manufacturers recommend when a machine is used daily, apply a drop or two of oil each day. When the machine is used less frequently, weekly oiling may be sufficient. After a long period of inactivity the machine should be thoroughly cleaned of oil that may have dried, before fresh oil is applied. The parts that need oiling will vary with the machine — the make and model of the machine.

The booklet of instructions you received when you purchased the machine will give you detailed instructions on oiling. But, be sure to remember that only specially designated sewing machine oil should be used. Lint that collects around the feed-dog should be removed with a small brush.

If you give your sewing machine a minimum amount of care it will perform a maximum amount of trouble-free service.

New Horizon Is Forecast For Computer

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Scientists say electronic computers already are able to think, after a fashion, and even to dream.

What you have to say to the machine would be conveyed in a set of images which can be put to tape. The machine would think and respond in terms of images. Thus there would be no language barrier between man in the machine.

These highlights in the projected evolution of computers were disclosed by the Air Force in a series of reports on three years of research into "certain phases of artificial intelligence."

TEACH GAME

The research was conducted by the Moore School of Electrical Engineering of the University of Pennsylvania. Scientists taught one of their machines the strategy of "go", a 4,000-year-old game invented by the Chinese.

The mold blackens the leaves making them unsightly. When you see these white flies, wait six or eight days to spray. The adults will disappear, but they'll leave their eggs hatching. This spray will get the young. To control use summer strength oil emulsion or malathion.

Some camellias make seed, so can be propagated by their seed. However, the plants grow from seed will not be like the mother plant. Only a few will be worthy of keeping. You'll be priviledged to name these seedlings.

Gather the camellia seed as soon as the pod begins splitting. Extract the seed before they dry out. Full instructions for planting and caring for these seed will be found in our bulletin, "Camellias for the Yard."

Joseph's Coat of all colors gives vivid color to summer gardens and the seed can be planted now. It's an annual, fast growing to a height of two or three feet. Plant masses for spectacular effect. They thrive best in poor soil, in full sun. Plant seed shallow.

PLANTING

Portulaca could be planted close to the Joseph's Coat. They like the same type soil and the coloring is similar.

Roach says an elephant's ear can be raised as a house plant by planting it in a large cedar tub. Of course, they don't grow as large, which is good. They would necessarily need to be used in a large room, too.

Leave grass clippings on the lawn. In this hot sun they're gone in a day or two. They decay and add organic matter to the soil. If you rake these clippings you are depleting the soil of some of its best qualities.

Cut back hydrangeas and oleanders as soon as they cease blooming.

Watch evergreens for red spider. Run the finger on the under side of a leaf. If there's a red smudge, he's there. Malathion or dusting sulphur is the treatment. Be sure you get under the leaf.

Your crepe myrtles will be deeper in color and will bloom more profusely if you keep them watered during dry spells. Then if you'll keep the old blooms cut you'll have blossoms until frost.

There is an everblooming hydrangea, but I can't tell you the botanical name. It starts blooming in early spring and blooms until frost. The leaves are thicker, fleshier and darker green than our common kind. Ask your nurseryman about these and he'll carry them next winter when it's time to plant.

DREAM KITCHENS

In another five or 10 years it's possible that you'll decide on your dinner menu. Push some buttons and, without lifting a finger, your food will move from your freezer right into your electronic oven, and be cooked in a fifth of the time it takes today.

This is the kind of thing the appliance designers and engineers are working on. And if it sounds a little fantastic, look back to five years ago. Did you ever think then that we'd have the up-to-the-minute items that are available for our kitchens today?

Let's say, for example, you want the very ultimate in design and convenience. Well you might choose the "pushbutton" kitchen-in-the-round with a control panel to turn on everything from the range and television to an electrically operated "lazy susan" table. You can have a kitchen designed to suit your own personality, too, in the color and style you want to blend harmoniously with the furnishings throughout your home.

Or, if you've the proverbial "green thumb" and you'd rather spend your time with plants and flowers, you'd most enjoy the kitchen with a built-in greenhouse area. Then you could tend to your hobby while automatic washer and dishwasher tend to your household chores.

The active, outdoor family with plenty of space will appreciate the luxurious snack kitchen complete with soda fountain, built in a sheltered patio right by the swimming pool. So when you hear the hostess say "dip anyone?"—you're not quite sure if she's offering more cheese spread, or a plunge before dinner.

None of this I'm telling you is far fetched, either, for these dream kitchens are equipped with standard units and everything in them is available today. Pick your favorite?

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Your Open House programs this week are: Monday, Lola Caldwell will tell us about the new fabrics on the market; Tuesday, Catherine Hoyt will make a belt; Wednesday, flower arrangements with Mary M. Jardine; Thursday and Friday, marketing with Mildred.

See you next week.

Virus Causes Lily Mosaic

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

If you have not had success with lilies — the true, scale bulb lilies — your trouble was very probably the virus disease known as "lily mosaic." Yes, even lilies have virus diseases!

Lily-mosaic is so-called because the disease makes a mosaic of streaks or dots on the foliage of the plants it attacks. When you see these signs of trouble, there is only one thing to do:

Burn the plant roots, bulbs, stems and all immediately. By the time you detect it, your other lilies may already have been infected, and you will have to keep an eye on them, too.

SPREAD

Lily-mosaic is spread by the melon aphid, a little insect with a long proboscus with which it sucks the juice from plants. Some of its favorites are milkweed, periwinkle and bindweed.

This aphid gets around so fast that, where there is a single lily infected with mosaic in a garden, before you know it, the aphid has sucked the juices from it and inoculated every other lily in sight.

The mosaic situation is still further complicated by the fact that certain lilies are "carriers." They can have the mosaic disease and still not show it because they are more or less immune to it.

Most dangerous of all is the common old tiger lily. In fact, its immunity is the real reason for its existence in so many gardens. If you wish to grow any other lilies, be sure that they are not within 200 feet of tiger lilies.

A good many plants are called "tiger - lilies" that are not true lilies at all. We are discussing lilium trigrinum, a true lily here.

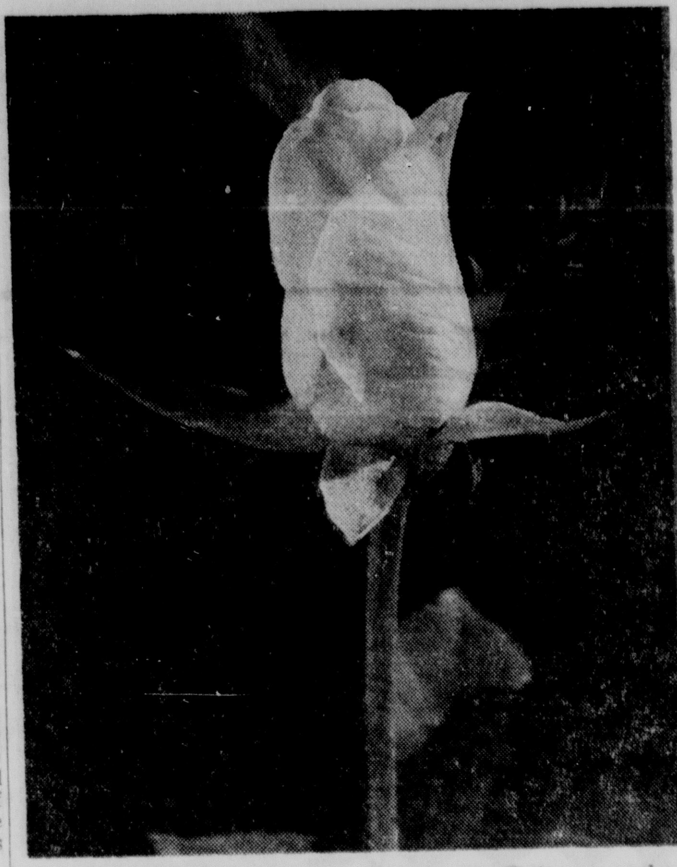
Most of the lily bulbs we buy today from American dealers are disease - free because the bulb growers have seen to it that their stock is clean.

Many of their bulbs are raised from seed, and mosaic is not transmitted through seed. Starting out with disease - free bulbs, thousands of gardeners are raising lilies every year in spite of mosaic and some other lily troubles.

The regional and national lily shows all over the United States every year are increasing in size and quality.



THIS YELLOW hybrid tea rose, the Eclipse, makes a striking appearance with its urn-shaped bud. The rose, which was a two-year-old field grown plant when Greg Hare set it out at his home in Swartz community this past year, is in its first season of blooming. Hare, a member of the News-Star—World staff, made this interesting photo study of the bud.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

Flower Show Held By Club Of Wisner

By MRS. K. R. YOUNG
Guest Writer

All the designs were lovely, and the display of horticulture consisting of roses, verbena, gladiolus, zinia, dahlia and triple orange daylily made a most interesting show.

CRESCENT DESIGN

Mrs. Bill Thaxton did a crescent design in a low white milk glass bowl placed on a black base. She used cedar for the line of the crescent, placing zinnias low in the focal area, the larger darker blooms at the lowest point, and the smaller ones extending along the line giving both transition and strength to the crescent line. This design would be nice for almost any place in the home.

Mrs. Ray Adams and Mrs. Charles Watson made a triangular design, using driftwood as the container. This was placed on a large rectangular piece of masonite. The line of the design was created by the use of dried brown dock.

Blooms and buds of the tiger lily were used to carry out the triangular pattern, and to add strength at the center of interest. This would be a lovely arrangement for the den or family room.

Mrs. R. M. Hammond and Mrs. J. Gordon Mitchell Jr. created an interesting interpretation of the parabolic curve. For a container they used a dark brown wooden compote on a four tiered wooden base. The main line was achieved by the placement of aspidistra leaves.

Within this line were placed yellow dahlias, larger ones in the center with smaller ones extending along the line. A curved line of the green pineapple begonia pods was placed to the right of the aspidistra, also used as a filler.

RATHER NEW IDEA

The parabolic curve is a rather new idea in flower arranging, and is a most interesting design to work with. This arrangement would be suitable for the entrance hall.

Mrs. Wilton Hoggat made a lovely Hogarth Curve using dried Scotch broom for the line material. She used a tall milk glass vase as a container, placing this on a tiered black base.

Wine red dahlias were used at the center of interest and extended along the Hogarth line, with oriental holly filling in and giving a touch of green. The arrangement is suitable for a bed room or console table.

SEW SIMPLE

By Eunice Farmer

"Dear Mrs. Farmer,

"I like fitted overblouses, yet most of the patterns are cut very straight and boxy. Should I fit them in at the side seams to make them more fitted?"

Mrs. J. W. E.

Dear Mrs. J.W.E.:

Yes, overblouses can be fitted in to suit the individual figure. You can add darts, but they must be directly in line with your bust - line. Perhaps you will find that a dart at the underarm as well as one below the bust will give you the fitting you desire.

You may have a slight curve at the side seam, however, I would not add too much shape here, it is better to shape a garment with darts. You will enjoy sewing so much more when you do not become a slave to any pattern, but consider it a basic shell, and change it until it is most becoming to you.

"Dear Eunice,

"Can you please tell me if there is any way or method to set permanent pleats in fabrics such as voiles, jerseys, percales, etc?"

Mrs. I.E.A.

PERMANENT PLEATS

Dear Mrs. I.E.A.:

"Permanent" pleats is a term that has been used rather loosely, and everyone expects too much of it. Pleats that stay in after washing, are made with special pleating equipment and done commercially. Even these usually have to be pressed over with a steam iron to make them look sharp. They usually are only successful in washable fabrics that have a synthetic content in them. This synthetic content, such as nylon, dacron, arnel, etc., that makes a fabric crease resistant, also helps hold the pleats in. The fabrics you mentioned will not stay permanently pleated even if they are pressed commercially.

"Dear Mrs. Farmer,

"My little girl is only 11 years old, but is so interested in learning to sew. Do you think this is too young? She has been making doll clothes for more than a year."

Mrs. T.R.

SIMPLE PATTERN

Dear Mrs. T. R.:

Sometimes a child is pushed into learning to sew just because her mother thinks she should have something to do. This is a mistake and the child might never have a desire to learn because of this first experience.

Since your little girl has expressed such a desire to sew, by all means let her. I would suggest you find a pattern with a very simple over-blouse that could be worn with shorts or a skirt. This would give her the experience of applying facings, hems, and just plain straight sewing, along with learning to read pattern instructions. From there, she can gradually go on to more difficult patterns. You can help her most by giving her plenty of enthusiastic praise for her efforts.

Please send all questions and suggestions to Sew Simple, in care of Monroe Morning World.

Many readers ask for copies of questions that have been answered and they aren't always available. Better save each column. The 20—Most Asked Questions are available in a reprint booklet for 25 cents. Send 25 cents and a large, stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Sew Simple, in care of this newspaper.

EXTENSION NEWS

Give Mums Plant Food

By AUDREY DAWSON

If you want better bloom from your chrysanthemums this fall, feed them every two or three weeks and be sure to stake your plants. Better watch for insect and diseases, too.

Now is the time to propagate azaleas and camellias from cuttings. Insert the cutting in a mixture of sand and peat moss and place in a shaded area.

Crepe myrtle will remain in bloom longer if you keep the faded blooms picked off.

Shrubs and trees can be fed during July, but should not be fed later than July. Fertilize with a complete fertilize such as 8-8-8 and water it.

NEW THREAD

There's a new thread now on the market - wash-n-wear thread for wash-n-wear fabrics. It is called taslan, but there are a few hints in using the thread as true with any kind of wash-n-wear fabric to prevent puckering. You need a looser tension, a lighter pressure on the pressure foot, a steady even pace while stitching.

This thread is not to be used on untreated cotton or linen. It is recommended for wash and wear fabrics, wool, silk, and rayon. Another precaution, do not use hot iron for ironing garment made with this thread. Use a warm iron or a steam iron, set at steam. Taslan is a textured nylon thread which has a slight stretch which keeps the seam from puckering. It comes in 30 different colors.

NEW PRODUCT

A new product known as polyurethane foam is laminated to many kinds of knits and loosely woven fabrics. The foam makes these fabrics practical for outer garments and for certain household articles. All articles with the foam backing are hand washable and most are machine washable. However, be careful not to touch iron to foam when pressing.

These fabrics have a tendency to turn yellow due to atmospheric conditions rather than laundering.

OILING MACHINES

Many homemakers are confused as to how often a sewing machine should be oiled. Perhaps these statements may help you, Mrs. Homemaker. It is most important to oil the moving parts of your machine regularly. How often is determined by how much the machine is used.

Most manufacturers recommend when a machine is used daily, apply a drop or two of oil each day. When the machine is used less frequently, weekly oiling may be sufficient. After a long period of inactivity the machine should be thoroughly cleaned of oil that may have dried, before fresh oil is applied. The parts that need oiling will vary with the machine — the make and model of the machine.

The booklet of instructions you received when you purchased the machine will give you detailed instructions on oiling. But, be sure to remember that only specially designated sewing machine oil should be used. Lint that collects around the feed-dog should be removed with a small brush.

If you give your sewing machine a minimum amount of care it will perform a maximum amount of trouble-free service.

A THOUGHT

New Horizon Is Forecast For Computer

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Scientists say electronic computers already are able to think, after a fashion, and even to dream.

Now they're talking of devising machines capable of giving advice on such things as war and finance.

Meanwhile, they are working on a "natural language" for use in dealing with electronic thinkers and dreamers.

What you have to say to the machine would be conveyed in a set of images which can be put to tape. The machine would think and respond in terms of images. Thus there would be no language barrier between man in the machine.

These highlights in the projected evolution of computers were disclosed by the Air Force in a series of reports on three years of research into "certain phases of artificial intelligence."

TEACH GAME

The research was conducted by the Moore School of Electrical Engineering of the University of Pennsylvania. Scientists taught one of their machines the strategy of "go", a 4,000-year-old game invented by the Chinese.

MISS ALICE JEANNETTE HALE

Miss Hale To Be Bride

Announcement of the engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Alice Jeanette Hale to J. R. Hegwood Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Hegwood Sr. of Monroe, is made today by her mother, Mrs. Lee Hale, also of this city.

August 11 is the date chosen for the nuptials which will be solemnized in St. Joseph Catholic Church with Father Michael Hannon officiating.

The bride-elect has chosen as her attendants, Mrs. Harry Rushing as matron of honor and Miss Marie Hegwood, maid of honor. Jimmy Hegwood will attend the bridegroom as best man.

Both Miss Hale and her fiance graduated from Neville high school and attended Northeast Louisiana State College.

Miss Camp Becomes Bride Of Douglas Alton Brothers

Miss Anna Rose Camp and Douglas Alton Brothers of Dallas, Texas, formerly of this city, were united in marriage on Saturday, June 24 in Liberty Baptist church at Calhoun. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Colbert Camp of Calhoun and Mr. Brothers is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wiley Alton Brothers of Monroe.

Dr. Hyran Barefoot of Louisville, Kentucky, performed the double ring ceremony at 7:30 p.m. before the altar which was banked with baskets of white gladioli and stock arranged in fan shape, white candles and English ivy.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of faille taffeta, the short sleeves and bodice of which were frosted with Chantilly lace and seed pearls. The lace motif was repeated on the skirt, which formed a butterfly back panel and sweeping train. Her elbow-length veil of illusion cascaded from a coronet of pearls and she carried a bouquet of white orchids and tuberoses on a white Bible.

Mrs. Hyran Barefoot, Louisville, Ky., sister of the bride, was matron of honor. She wore a gown of white lace with an overskirt and cummerbund of white silk organza and carried a basket of pastel colored flowers and English ivy. The junior bridesmaid, Miss Jane Barefoot, wore a floor-length gown of white silk organza with matching organza bonnet and carried a basket of flowers identical to the honor attendant.

Mr. Brothers attended his son as best man and ushers were Donald Cotton, Douglas Kelly and Larry Anderson of Crosby, Texas. Candlelighters were Judy and [illegible] Barfield, who wore dresses of white silk organza.

For the occasion the bride's mother wore a [illegible] pink lace and chiffon gown with matching accessories and a corsage of orchids. The bridegroom's mother was wearing an ice blue silk organza dress with matching accessories and an orchid corsage.

Following the ceremony a reception was held on the lawn at the home of the bride's parents. White caladiums, wedding bells and white doves with hurricane lamps created a background setting. The table, covered with an imported embroidered organdy cloth was centered with an arrangement of white gladioli, stock, tuberoses and white candles. Mrs. John Hawkins of Crossett, Ark. and Mrs. Archie White of Calhoun served the cake and Miss Rosemary Marks of Dallas and Miss Faye Parker of West Monroe presided at the punch bowl. Mrs. Ewell Camp had charge of the bride's book and tea girls were Miss Lorena White, Miss Sandra Staples, Miss Carolyn Taylor, Miss Zella Faye Brown and Miss Carolyn Futrell.

Mrs. Brothers was graduated from West Monroe high school and Baylor University in Waco, Texas. She is a member of Phi Beta Mu and Chi's Service club. Mr. Brothers, a graduate of Ouachita Parish high school, attended Louisiana State University, Baylor University and Southern Methodist University and is presently employed in Texas University Medical School of Dallas, Texas. He is a member of Beta Rho of Phi Gamma Delta and Circle K.

Trio Of Guests Attends Meet Of Claiborne Club

Mrs. C. A. [illegible] was hostess to the Claiborne Home Demonstration Club and three guests Wednesday, June 21 in her home on Farmerville Road. Mrs. J. D. Cannon was co-hostess for the coffee, followed by regular meeting.

Guests were Mrs. W. J. Jones Jr., of New Orleans, Miss Sue Myers and Mrs. R. V. Williams of West Monroe.

Mrs. W. J. Dunn conducted the business session during which Mrs. J. R. Fortune gave a report on the Ouachita Parish council meet. Leader reports were given by Mrs. Charles Crawford and Mrs. L. E. McCartney on home management and Mrs. Ouida Jones on consumer education.

A demonstration on "Better Breads for Less Money" was given by the nutrition leaders, Mrs. T. P. Sorrells and Mrs. L. H. Arant, who served the breads to the group. Members present were Mrs. E. C. [illegible], Mrs. Fortune, Mrs. McCartney, Mrs. J. D. Schaffer, Mrs. J. D. Cannon, Mrs. [illegible], Mrs. Arant, Mrs. Charles Crawford, Mrs. L. M. Bayne, Mrs. Jones, Mrs. H. O. Ivey, Mrs. David Bryan, Mrs. Dunn, Mrs. C. D. Henderson, Mrs. Ira Wellerman, Mrs. T. P. Sorrells and Mrs. Mark Bailey.

Hoffa To Ask Extra Funds From Unions

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — James R. Hoffa announced Saturday he would ask the Teamsters union convention opening here Monday to double the amount of member dues alloted to run the Teamster's national headquarters.

Hoffa called for a per-capita tax increase on the union's average 1.5 million membership at the special convention summoned to elect him to a new five-year term.

Getting himself re-elected, a matter regarded as a mere formality, is the final step necessary for the former Detroit Grocery warehouseman to extraicate himself from a legal morass resulting from his initial election four years ago, which was challenged.

Hoffa, charged with rigging the earlier election, is trying to make sure nobody will have the basis for challenging this one. Accordingly, he has arranged for full movie and tape recordings of all convention proceedings next week.

The Teamsters president, who is 48, greeted the more than 2,000 incoming delegates from all sections of the nation and Canada in a hospitality suite in the plush Carillon Hotel.

The hospitality suite is being paid for out of a $70,000 Hoffa re-election fund raised from $25 contributions from subordinate union officials. Convention sessions will be in the Napoleon Room of the nearby Deauville, another lavish Florida hotel.

In an officers report made public Saturday, Hoffa said the Teamsters have emerged from a "nightmare of legal entanglements and efforts of outsiders to direct and run our affairs" with a union stronger, more united and with better wages than ever before.

"We are thriving despite the hostile environment in which we have been forced to operate," Hoffa said. He referred only briefly to the long Senate investigation into Teamsters affairs and to legal battles with court-appointed monitors.

Hoffa proposed that local unions raise the per capita payments from 40 to 80 cents. This would raise from over $7 million to over $14 million the annual sum contributed to run Hoffa's Washington headquarters.

Many local Teamsters unions, to make up the difference, would probably raise the monthly dues from members, amounts that presently range from about $3 to $6.

Hoffa's report indicated the Teamsters, expelled from the AFL-CIO on corruption charges, would like to get back in the federation because "a divided house of labor is just what the employers want." However, the report said remaining out of the AFL-CIO saves the Teamsters about $1 million a year.

The teamsters reported net worth was $40 million. They said in nearly four years they have spent close to $7 million in organizing expenses and over $2 million on legal costs.

Cuban Official Blames Bomb Tossing On U.S.

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP)—Cuban Foreign Minister Raul Roa was quoted today as charging that the United States ambassador to Mexico was implicated in an attempt on Roa's life in Mexico City two days ago.

The Cuban Radio quoted Roa as saying that "at dawn on June 29 a gelatin-gasoline bomb was thrown from a speeding car and struck a doorway of the Cuban embassy" while Roa was there.

The broadcast quoted Roa as saying the incident was the action of "imperialist hirelings" who were "backed by Ambassador Thomas Mann."

Solons Urge Training Aid For Jobless

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A house subcommittee which has been studying the problem of automation recommended Saturday that the federal government speed new aid to the states for the retaining of workers replaced by machines.

The group, led by Rep. Elmer J. Holland, D-Pa., said the government also should encourage workers made jobless by automation to pack up and move to where there are better opportunities.

"It is often cheaper and sounder economically for workers to move to where the jobs are than for factories to move to where the surplus laborers are," the subcommittee said. "This would result in workers being gainfully employed in production rather than rusting in idleness and wasting our most valuable resource—the labor power of our people."

The subcommittee, which has held hearings since last March, noted testimony which predicted that by 1962 it will be possible to attain today's production levels with 1.8 million fewer workers than are employed now. And in the next decade, 26 million new, young workers will enter the job market.

Even though automation is a problem of the present, the congressmen said, it is also "the promise of the future."

"It is the means whereby the conquest of natural forces can be opened to the bundant benefit of mankind. Automation is not something to be feared and avoided. It is something to be harnessed and encouraged."

The subcommittee said this is why the federal government should move now in efforts to speed economic growth and the retraining of workers.

It said the vocational education programs of the states should be expanded with financial assistance from the federal government. In addition, the U. S. Employment Service should be strengthened so there will be "more rapid dissemination of information concerning employment opportunities throughout the country."

Investigation Opens In Death Of Movie Actor

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—An investigation in connection with the death of actor Jeff Chandler was underway today by state hospital bureau officials.

At the same time, an attorney for the silver-haired movie star who died June 17 after four operations said the actor's original will—found Friday in his Beverly Hills home—would be submitted to probate court on Monday.

Wallace R. Cameron, supervisor of the state hospital bureau, said the inquiry at Culver City Hospital where Chandler died would take several days to complete.

Cameron said the probe would include examination of hospital records relating to Chandler's case and of some past and present patients to determine that the hospital licensing act is being complied with.

The actor's physician, Dr. Marvin A. Korbin, said earlier this week that there was "no evidence of negligence either on the part of the hospital or the doctors" in Chandler's death.

Hospital director Dr. David M. Brotman said he welcomed the inspection "because we feel it will assist in satisfying the public interest in this case."

Prohibition Ends After 52 years

Six retail liquor stores opened about noon and about 30 more are expected to open shortly.

The first store to open was in a downtown hotel. Alcohol Tax Unit agent William Watkins and Capt. John McGinnis, ATU East Tennessee head, presented the hotel manager with a retail license.

Later they went to five other stores, inspected them and gave the proprietors retail licenses.

Knox County, in a recent referendum, voted to end legal prohibition, although the county has not really been dry. Bootleggers conducted a big business.

JFK Plans Uruguay Trip Next Month

WASHINGTON (AP)—President John F. Kennedy was reported Saturday planning to attend the Inter-American Economic and Social Conference in Uruguay next month unless official business prevents it.

Informed quarters said he would like very much to attend the conference and that he was not concerned whether his going might induce Fidel Castro to go to the conference also and try to use it as a sounding board for his campaign for revolutions throughout the hemisphere.

The assumption here is that if the President goes Mrs. Kennedy will make the trip also. Officials say she was a great asset to the President on his trip to Europe and would be an equally great hit in Latin America.

The conference is to open Aug. 5 in Punta Del Este, a beach resort. The president was reported unconcerned about the fact it would be cold there, since this is winter time in Uruguay.

It is an open secret around Washington that the White House has told the State Department, the Treasury Department and the Commerce Department to give special study to some possibility of aiding Latin America in one of its greatest economic problems—the fluctuation in prices.

Traditionally, the United States has balked at any proposal involving price guarantees or assured market minimum prices, contending that its experience in trying to stabilize farm prices has staggered this nation's economy with enormous surpluses and carrying costs.

Farmerville Post Office Completed

Files and equipment will be moved in soon, he said. Construction of the post office building was completed during the past week.

Hoffa To Ask Extra Funds From Unions

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — James R. Hoffa announced Saturday he would ask the Teamsters union convention opening here Monday to double the amount of member dues alloted to run the Teamster's national headquarters.

Hoffa called for a per-capita tax increase on the union's average 1.5 million membership at the special convention summoned to elect him to a new five-year term.

Getting himself re-elected, a matter regarded as a mere formality, is the final step necessary for the former Detroit Grocery warehouseman to extraicate himself from a legal morass resulting from his initial election four years ago, which was challenged.

Hoffa, charged with rigging the earlier election, is trying to make sure nobody will have the basis for challenging this one. Accordingly, he has arranged for full movie and tape recordings of all convention proceedings next week.

The Teamsters president, who is 48, greeted the more than 2,000 incoming delegates from all sections of the nation and Canada in a hospitality suite in the plush Carillon Hotel.

The hospitality suite is being paid for out of a $70,000 Hoffa-re-election fund raised from $25 contributions from subordinate union officials. Convention sessions will be in the Napoleon Room of the nearby Deauville, another lavish Florida hotel.

In an officers report made public Saturday, Hoffa said the Teamsters have emerged from a "nightmare of legal entanglements and efforts of outsiders to direct and run our affairs" with a union stronger, more united and with better wages than ever before.

"We are thriving despite the hostile environment in which we have been forced to operate," Hoffa said. He referred only briefly to the long Senate investigation into Teamsters affairs and to legal battles with court-appointed monitors.

Hoffa proposed that local unions raise the per capita payments from 40 to 80 cents. This would raise from over $7 million to over $14 million the annual sum contributed to run Hoffa's Washington headquarters.

Many local Teamsters unions, to make up the difference, would probably raise the monthly dues from members, amounts that presently range from about $3 to $6.

Hoffa's report indicated the Teamsters, expelled from the AFL-CIO on corruption charges, would like to get back in the federation because "a divided house of labor is just what the employers want." However, the report said remaining out of the AFL-CIO saves the Teamsters about $1 million a year.

The teamsters reported net worth was $40 million. They said in nearly four years they have spent close to $7 million in organizing expenses and over $2 million on legal costs.

Cuban Official Blames Bomb Tossing On U.S.

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP)—Cuban Foreign Minister Raul Roa was quoted today as charging that the United States ambassador to Mexico was implicated in an attempt on Roa's life in Mexico City two days ago.

The Cuban Radio quoted Roa as saying that "at dawn on June 29 a gelatin-gasoline bomb was thrown from a speeding car and struck a doorway of the Cuban embassy" while Roa was there.

The broadcast quoted Roa as saying the incident was the action of "imperialist hirelings" who were "backed by Ambassador Thomas Mann."

Solons Urge Training Aid For Jobless

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A house subcommittee which has been studying the problem of automation recommended Saturday that the federal government speed new aid to the states for the retaining of workers replaced by machines.

The group, led by Rep. Elmer J. Holland, D-Pa., said the government also should encourage workers made jobless by automation to pack up and move to where there are better opportunities.

"It is often cheaper and sounder economically for workers to move to where the jobs are than for factories to move to where the surplus laborers are," the subcommittee said. "This would result in workers being gainfully employed in production rather than rusting in idleness and wasting our most valuable resource—the labor power of our people."

The subcommittee, which has held hearings since last March, noted testimony which predicted that by 1962 it will be possible to attain today's production levels with 1.8 million fewer workers than are employed now. And in the next decade, 26 million new, young workers will enter the job market.

Even though automation is a problem of the present, the congressmen said, it is also "the promise of the future."

"It is the means whereby the conquest of natural forces can be opened to the bundant benefit of mankind. Automation is not something to be feared and avoided. It is something to be harnessed and encouraged."

The subcommittee said this is why the federal government should move now in efforts to speed economic growth and the retraining of workers.

It said the vocational education programs of the states should be expanded with financial assistance from the federal government. In addition, the U. S. Employment Service should be strengthened so there will be "more rapid dissemination of information concerning employment opportunities throughout the country."

Investigation Opens In Death Of Movie Actor

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—An investigation in connection with the death of actor Jeff Chandler was underway today by state hospital bureau officials.

At the same time, an attorney for the silver-haired movie star who died June 17 after four operations said the actor's original will—found Friday in his Beverly Hills home—would be submitted to probate court on Monday.

Wallace R. Cameron, supervisor of the state hospital bureau, said the inquiry at Culver City Hospital where Chandler died would take several days to complete.

Cameron said the probe would include examination of hospital records relating to Chandler's case and of some past and present patients to determine that the hospital licensing act is being complied with.

The actor's physician, Dr. Marvin A. Korbin, said earlier this week that there was "no evidence of negligence either on the part of the hospital or the doctors" in Chandler's death.

Hospital director Dr. David M. Brotman said he welcomed the inspection "because we feel it will assist in satisfying the public interest in this case."

Prohibition Ends After 52 years

Six retail liquor stores opened about noon and about 30 more are expected to open shortly.

The first store to open was in a downtown hotel. Alcohol Tax Unit agent William Watkins and Capt. John McGinnis, ATU East Tennessee head, presented the hotel manager with a retail license.

Later they went to five other stores, inspected them and gave the proprietors retail licenses.

Knox County, in a recent referendum, voted to end legal prohibition, although the county has not really been dry. Bootleggers conducted a big business.

JFK Plans Uruguay Trip Next Month

WASHINGTON (AP)—President John F. Kennedy was reported Saturday planning to attend the Inter-American Economic and Social Conference in Uruguay next month unless official business prevents it.

Informed quarters said he would like very much to attend the conference and that he was not concerned whether his going might induce Fidel Castro to go to the conference also and try to use it as a sounding board for his campaign for revolutions throughout the hemisphere.

The assumption here is that if the President goes Mrs. Kennedy will make the trip also. Officials say she was a great asset to the President on his trip to Europe and would be an equally great hit in Latin America.

The conference is to open Aug. 5 in Punta Del Este, a beach resort. The president was reported unconcerned about the fact it would be cold there, since this is winter time in Uruguay.

It is an open secret around Washington that the White House has told the State Department, the Treasury Department and the Commerce Department to give special study to some possibility of aiding Latin America in one of its greatest economic problems—the fluctuation in prices.

Traditionally, the United States has balked at any proposal involving price guarantees or assured market minimum prices, contending that its experience in trying to stabilize farm prices has staggered this nation's economy with enormous surpluses and carrying costs.

Farmerville Post Office Completed

Files and equipment will be moved in soon, he said. Construction of the post office building was completed during the past week.

500 feet located on Bayou DeSiard where fishing is fine. 40 ft. pier. Lovely 6 room residence, 5 room apt. Only 4½ years old. 4 car garage. Extra 5 room apt. with ½ bath on lower level, formely used as office space with over 1240 sq. ft. in this section. Also 2 story 4 apt. building on property with revenue. Constructed of heavy, fine quality concrete blocks, aluminum windows, insulated, gutter spouts. Full of lovely trees, St. Augustine lawn, camellias, azaleas, etc. Here is your opportunity to live in a lovely home, enjoy income from 5 apts. and use the basement for your business. There's an extra 350 ft. on the water that you could use for additional revenue by reselling or leasing. As a suggestion: Boat business, bait business, etc. This sounds like a lot of money but it's not. You can assume the owners' loan balance of $25,000, pay equity of $17,000. Save time, effort, and money going from your office to your home. Live here in all privacy, operate your business in part of the building and enjoy the revenue from the rest of it. It will actually pay for itself. Call us for appointment to see!

Former Monroe Couple Observe Wedding Event

Mr. and Mrs. Louis H. Cosper of Ocean Springs, formerly of Monroe, recently observed their golden wedding anniversary in a reception at the Gulf Hills Country Club in Ocean Springs, Mis.

Entertaining were Dr. and Mrs. Eldredge Linus Carroll of Columbia. Mrs. Carroll is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cosper. The Carrolls reside in Columbia.

Yellow gladioli and greenery decorated the reception suite where Dr. and Mrs. Carroll and their two sons, Linus and Sherman Louis, received guests with the honorees, Mr. and Mrs. Cosper.

A basket of yellow chrysanthemums adorned the registration table which was presided over by Mrs. J. C. Gay. The flowers on the table entwined the pictures of the honorees, made when they were married in 1911, and, also, a book containing their marriage service and certificate.

The five - tiered anniversary cake, centered on a table overlaid with white and yellow lace, was covered with yellow roses and topped with a little golden candles, greenery and yellow carnations.

Mrs. Vernon Gamble, Mrs. Karl Maxwell, Mrs. John Powers, and Miss Bernadine Wulff, all of Ocean Springs, alternated at the punch tables.

Mrs. T. D. Manuel and Mrs. John Eberhart, also of Ocean Springs, presided at the cake table. Miss Flossie Carroll of Columbia, and Mrs. Beverly Dalgo of Mobile, Ala., also assisted in the courtesies.

Several hundred friends called between the hour of seven and nine to wish Mr. and Mrs. Cosper many more years of happiness together.

Eichmann Tests Judges' Patience

JERUSALEM (AP)—Adolf Eichmann in nine days on the witness stand has tried the patience of his judges.

The former Gestapo colonel in charge of Jewish affairs has rejected all responsibility for the extermination of six million of them during World War II. That was to be expected.

But he is doing it with long and involved statements and the three-judge court is edgy.

President Judge Moshe Landau, a gentle-spoken man known for his tolerance and chosen for this job for just that reason, lost his patience completely this week.

After repeated warnings to Eichmann about his "lecturing," Landau said he had had enough of it. Then he scolded Eichmann's counsel, Robert Servatius. On top of that he chided Atty. Gen. Gideon Hausner, the prosecutor, for laxity in numbering documents. Finally, he warned the interpreters to pay more attention to their work.

Equal asperity was demonstrated by Judges Benyamin Halevy and Izhaak Raveh.

For nine days, the judges have heard Eichmann describe in detail the workings of his office, IV-B-4, and the SS and Gestapo.

Whenever the problem involved somebody else in the Nazi hierarchy, Eichmann spoke at considerable length with authority on just why this was. When his name came into it, the defendant said he could not remember. Or he would simply cloud his replies in bureacratic terminology.

From time to time, the presiding judge warned Eichmann. Servatius apologized. Once Eichmann also apologized and said he would try to be briefer but a moment later he was more long-winded than ever. Once Landau, referring to a confusing statement by Eichmann, said, "That answer contributes nothing."

Then the judge turned to the defendant and snapped, "You need not answer what I just have said."

The men guarding Eichmann every minute of a 24-hour day also are irked by his performance.

"When he came here he was just another job for us," a senior officer declared. "We had a right to have hatred for the Nazis, for the Nazi government. But he himself was just another job. Now we have forgotten our hatred for the Nazis. And he is making us hate him. If that's what he wants, he is managing it very well."

Kennedy Marks Anniversaries Of Two Plans

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (AP)—President Kennedy issued statements Saturday to mark the 10th anniversaries of two plans for international economic cooperation.

He said the one between the United States and Pakistan "stands as firm evidence of the friendly relations existing between our two countries." President Mohammed Ayub Khan of Pakistan is coming to Washington in mid-July for a state visit.

The other statement referred to the Colombo plan for co-operative economic development in Southeast Asia, which, he said, has become "a symbol of the economic aspirations of hundreds of millions of people in south and Southeast Asia."

DIPLOMATIC REASONS

U.S. Trip Delayed For Camel Driver

WASHINGTON (AP) — The intricacies of high diplomacy are preventing Bashir Ahmad, the Pakistani camel driver, from keeping his July 4 date with Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson, officials reported Saturday.

The reason: Pakistan's President Mohammed Ayub Khan is scheduled to arrive for a state visit on July 11. Ayub's aides are afraid Bashir's arrival a week earlier would take the edge off the president's welcome.

For one thing, Ayub also will be a guest of Johnson during part of his week-long stay, at a barbecue weekend on the Johnson ranch in Texas.

In view of this, officials said, the Pakistani government gave Bashir no encouragement about his trip.

Bashir, somewhat of a diplomat himself, sent word to Johnson that he couldn't keep the July-4 date. He cited family reasons without giving any details.

The upshot was that Johnson's office said the invitation to Bashir was still open. Negotiations for a mutually acceptable date will not begin until after Ayub's visit.

The woes of Bashir were confirmed by officials when asked about an article telling of them in the Washington Evening Star.

Johnson's invitation to Bashir was issued originally during the vice president's recent visit to Pakistan. Johnson met him on the outskirts of Karachi, shook hands with Bashir and told him he must visit America.

That chance remark snowballed into a project. Several airlines volunteered transportation for Bashir. Several cities wanted him to visit.

IN 12 STATES

Congress District Boundaries Shifted

WASHINGTON (AP)—Twelve of the 25 states that gain or lose House seats next year because of population shifts have revised their congressional district boundaries.

But one of these, Arkansas, and at least two of the remaining 13, Minnesota and Massachusetts, face the prospect of their entire delegations having to run at large.

All those three lose seats under the 1960 census. House candidates as a rule, unless widely known, are reluctant to run statewide races because of the greater risk of defeat.

Arkansas, whose delegation is reduced from six to four has redistricted, but a referendum petition has been filed for a popular vote on it in November 1962.

Unless a special session of the Arkansas Legislature adopts a new law before the 1962 election, all candidates for the state's four seats must run in the entire state.

Minnesota, which loses a seat in its present nine-man delegation, has failed to redistrict. Unless this is accomplished in an unlikely special session of the legislature, candidates for 8 seats must run at large.

There is a chance that all 12 seats from Massachusetts, which loses two under re-apportionment, will be filled at large. The legislature is dominated by Democrats, and Gov. John A. Volpe, a Republican, has said he will not sign a redistricting bill unfair to his party.

Pennsylvania, whose house seats are cut from 30 to 27, is having trouble over redistricting. Since neither party wants to run its candidates at large, the chances are believed good for a settlement of the issue.

Sixteen states stand to lose 21 seats in the district reshuffle. Nine others will gain 19.

Former Monroe Couple Observe Wedding Event

Mr. and Mrs. Louis H. Cosper of Ocean Springs, formerly of Monroe, recently observed their golden wedding anniversary in a reception at the Gulf Hills Country Club in Ocean Springs, Mis.

Entertaining were Dr. and Mrs. Eldredge Linus Carroll of Columbia. Mrs. Carroll is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cosper. The Carrolls reside in Columbia.

Yellow gladioli and greenery decorated the reception suite where Dr. and Mrs. Carroll and their two sons, Linus and Sherman Louis, received guests with the honorees, Mr. and Mrs. Cosper.

A basket of yellow chrysanthemums adorned the registration table which was presided over by Mrs. J. C. Gay. The flowers on the table entwined the pictures of the honorees, made when they were married in 1911, and, also, a book containing their marriage service and certificate.

The five - tiered anniversary cake, centered on a table overlaid with white and yellow lace, was covered with yellow roses and topped with a little golden candles. greenery and yellow carnations.

Mrs. Vernon Gamble, Mrs. Karl Maxwell, Mrs. John Powers, and Miss Bernadine Wulff, all of Ocean Springs, alternated at the punch tables.

Mrs. T. D. Manuel and Mrs. John Eberhart, also of Ocean Springs, presided at the cake table. Miss Flossie Carroll of Columbia, and Mrs. Beverly Dalgo of Mobile, Ala., also assisted in the courtesies.

Several hundred friends called between the hour of seven and nine to wish Mr. and Mrs. Cosper many more years of happiness together.

But he is doing it with long and involved statements and the three-judge court is edgy.

President Judge Moshe Laudau, a gentle-spoken man known for his tolerance and chosen for this job for just that reason, lost his patience completely this week.

After repeated warnings to Eichmann about his "lecturing," Landau said he had had enough of it. Then he scolded Eichmann's counsel, Robert Servatius. On top of that he chided Atty. Gen. Equal asperity was demonstrated by Judges Benyamin Halevy and Izhaak Raveh.

For nine days, the judges have heard Eichmann describe in detail the workings of his office, IV-B-4, and the SS and Gestapo.

Whenever the problem involved somebody else in the Nazi hierarchy, Eichmann spoke at considerable length with authority on just why this was. When his name came into it, the defendant said he could not remember. Or he would simply cloud his replies in bureacratic terminology.

From time to time, the presiding judge warned Eichmann. Servatius apologized. Once Eichmann also apologized and said he would try to be briefer but a moment later he was more long-winded than ever. Once Landau, referring to a confusing statement by Eichmann, said, "That answer contributes nothing."

Then the judge turned to the defendant and snapped, "You need not answer what I just have said."

The men guarding Eichmann every minute of a 24-hour day also are irked by his performance.

Now we have forgotten our hatred for the Nazis. And he is making us hate him. If that's what he wants, he is managing it very well."

DON'T TELL ME THAT WAITRESS REFUSED A CASH SETTLEMENT, UNCLE GUS?
BARRY HAD TIPPED HER OFF, JAY!... SHE STRUNG ME ALONG, THEN TORE UP THE CHECK AND THREW IT IN MY FACE!
AFTER WHICH SHE CALMLY INFORMED ME THAT.. MUCH AS SHE LOVED MY NEPHEW.. SHE WOULDN'T MARRY HIM!
ANNE SAXON MAY BE A HASH-SLINGER, MY BOY, BUT SHE IS QUITE A WOMAN! ..I CAN SEE WHY YOUR BROTHER FELL FOR HER!
YOU WOULDN'T TELL HIM THAT?! ..SURELY YOU DON'T INTEND TO ENCOURAGE THIS AFFAIR?!
OF COURSE NOT! I STILL INTEND TO GET HER OUT OF TOWN!.. IF SHE STAYS HERE, BARRY COULD CHANGE HER MIND ABOUT MARRIAGE!
SHE REFUSED A CLEAN CASH OFFER!.. NOW I MAY HAVE TO TRY A..AH... LESS CLEAN APPROACH!
FOR INSTANCE.. I'M WONDERING WHAT A GOOD PRIVATE INVESTIGATOR COULD TURN UP?
MR. BRENT... MR. AND MRS. WILMOT STERLING ARE WAITING TO SEE YOU.. ON A PERSONAL MATTER!... SHE SAYS IT'S QUITE URGENT!

COULD I TROUBLE YOU FOR A MINUTE, MISS?
JUST A MO... OH! OH, MY GOODNESS! COBY KINCAID!!
PETE FLETCHER TOOK SOME PICTURES OF ME A FEW YEARS BACK... I WONDER IF YOU'D STILL HAVE THAT ISSUE OF "VIEW" LYIN' AROUND?
CERTAINLY... OF COURSE! FOLLOW ME, PLEASE...
IT'S IN THIS VOLUME, MR. KINCAID... MAY 24TH...
THANK YOU KINDLY... COULD YOU TELL ME IF PETE'S HERE TODAY?
I...I'M SURE MR. FLETCHER'S IN THE BUILDING... I'LL TRY TO FIND HIM FOR YOU...
IS IT HIM? IS IT REALLY HIM?
WHO ELSE COULD LOOK LIKE THAT?
LET ME THROUGH, PLEASE... PARDON ME...
YO, PETE!
VIEW
I WAS JUST LOOKING AT THESE PICTURES YOU TOOK, YOU REALLY KNOW YOUR BUSINESS, DON'T YOU?
THANKS — BUT YOU DON'T CARE ABOUT PICTURES OF YOURSELF! WHAT REALLY BRINGS YOU HERE?
WELL — REMEMBER YOU SUGGESTED I MAKE MY OWN MOVIE? IT'S BEEN ON MY MIND... BUT I NEED YOUR HELP!
NAME IT!
MEANWHILE...
OF COURSE COBY WILL DO IT! WHO KNOWS HIS MIND BETTER?... SURE! HE'S LIKE MY OWN SON! YOU HAVE MY WORD... AND T.C. HART ALWAYS STANDS BEHIND HIS WORD!

BOOM!
WOW! THAT SURE WAS A BIG ONE!
"A PERPETUAL HOLIDAY IS A GOOD WORKING DEFINITION OF HELL." G.B. SHAW.
"THE RED-LETTER DAYS NOW BECOME, TO ALL INTENTS AND PURPOSES, DEAD-LETTER DAYS." -LAMB.
I RECALL WHEN I WAS A BOY WE REALLY BLASTED THE ROOF OFF! BUT WE WEREN'T ALLOWED TO START TILL THE FOURTH!
POP! POP! POP! POP! POP!
BANG!
IN OUR DAY THE "FOURTH" MEANT SOMETHING! GIVE YOU A HUNDRED TO ONE NOT ONE OF THOSE KIDS DOWN THERE CAN TELL YOU WHAT THE "FOURTH" REALLY STANDS FOR!
POP-POP-POP-POP-POP! BLAM!
YEAH! LAST EASTER V'CATION WAS TH' DAWN O' HIST'RY, WAY I HEAR IT! 'PORTANT PROBLEMS NOW ARE, "IS DOUBLE DATING CRICKET?" AND "IS SIXTH GRADE TOO LATE TO START GOING STEADY?"
I WONDER HOW MANY TEACHERS TODAY COULD PASS A SIMPLE AMERICAN HISTORY EXAMINATION.
SEEMS AS HOW 'MERICAN HIST'RY IS FOR SQUARES!
YI-I-I!
ZING!
THAT WAS NO FIRECRACKER! THAT WAS A BULLET!
HEAR THAT? THAT'S ANOTHER SHOT!
OH-H-H!
SHEBA! OH, SHEBA, BABY!
Y'HIT IT, TIGER! Y' HIT IT!
OF COURSE I HIT IT!

MOZART DOES A BENEFIT AT THE PALACE...
MR. MOZART... WOULD YOU LISTEN TO JUNIOR PLAY? HE'S BEEN STUDYING ONLY TWO YEARS AND ALREADY HE CAN PLAY CHOP-STICKS....
WILL YOU AND YOUR OLD LADY LET HIM PLAY? SIT DOWN AND LISTEN TO HIM!!
OH, MR. MOZART... I'VE WRITTEN A SONG.. COULD YOU GET IT PUBLISHED FOR ME? HOW DO YOU LIKE THE TITLE.."KNIGHT, KEEP YOUR ARMOR ON"?
POOR WOLFGANG!! HE HAS TO LISTEN TO EVERY KID WHO BANGS ON THE 88....
YEAH...AND THAT PESTY OLD DAME WITH HER CORNY SONG BOTHERING HIM... I WROTE A SWELL TUNE HE REALLY COULD DO SOMETHING WITH....
JUST HELP ME ROLL IT DOWN TO THE END OF THE DRIVE-WAY...
THEN THE FUN BEGAN
HOWCUM DEPT.
I'LL TAKE THAT ONE!
Thanx to GISELLA D. BROWN, CLARKSTON, WASH.
